FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

THE NICOTINE SUPPLY.

The unique value of nicotine as an insecticide has largely increased the demand for it. In consequence, greater attention is being paid to the culture of the tobacco plant, which remains the only source of this alkaloid. So much is this the case, that in Switzerland the plant is now cultivated solely for its nicotine, and an example is afforded of what was formerly an unimportant by-product becoming in its turn the principal manufacture. Nicotine is present only in traces in the young seedlings, but the amount increases steadily as growth takes place, until about the middle of September the leaves contain nearly five per cent of the alkaloid. At this stage the crop is gathered. The leaves only are used for the extraction of the nicotine, the rest of the plant being wasted. Recent analyses of this residue indicate that a good deal of valuable alkaloid is thrown away, the stalk and roots both containing nearly one-half of one per cent of nicotine, and there is as much as 1.27 per cent in the lateral shoots. Some simple process of extracting the alkaloid from the waste product is required, which at the same time leaves the residues available as fertilizers. The history of efforts to increase the amount of a particular substance in a plant by careful selection encourages the hope that similar success will attend the efforts now being made with nicotine.

Ishpeming, Mich.—Trebilcock Bros. are having materials delivered at their Deer Lake property for the erection of a range of greenhouses. The houses will be completed by the end of summer and will be used for the growing of vegetables, in which the firm will specialize at the Deer Lake range. Buildings will also be constructed for a hennery, and in a short time, it is said, "several thousand chickens will be doing business in the production of eggs."

BEGONIA MANICATA.

At the time of the begonia conference, held at Chiswick nearly twenty-one years ago, Begonia manicata was included among the best fifty species of begonia by Mr. Watson, of Kew, in his paper on the subject. Many begonias have been introduced since then, and garden forms innumerable have made their appearance, but there can be no question that B. manicata of the true species is still fully entitled to the position in which it was then placed. Many would go even further, and, from a flowering point of view, include it in the first twelve. Given a warm or intermediate temperature, this species will bear during the winter a profusion of light, elegant blossoms. It forms a short, stout stem of a somewhat succulent nature, while the large, solid-looking leaves are of a smooth, shining green tint. The stalks are long and conspicuous, by reason of being clothed with large, scale-like hairs. The flower scape is quite erect, and reaches a height of two feet to three feet, the upper half consisting of the loosely disposed flower panicle, which branches freely and bears a great number of small but pretty pink blossoms. For grouping purposes in the early months of the year it is extremely useful, and is pretty as a decorative flower. Some forty years ago it was extensively grown by the late Hermann Herbst, of Richmond, for the supply of cut flowers, which at that time found a ready sale in Covent Garden.

The typical Begonia manicata is a native of Mexico, and was introduced as long ago as 1842. There are two well-marked varieties of it now in cultivation—one, aureo-maculata, the leaves of which have large blotches of a golden yellow tint; and a singular form, crispa, the foliage of which is remarkably crimped and crisped. This last is more curious than beautiful.

The cultural requirements of Begonia manicata are not at all exacting, as it is of vigorous growth and will thrive in ordinary potting compost. Insect pests, too, give no trouble. It is strictly of an evergreen nature, and must therefore be kept watered at all seasons.—Gardeners' Chronicle.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our 'palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

...NEWS NOTES...

Waterbury, Conn.—The store formerly conducted at 144 Bank street by Nella B. Smith and Helen G. Bangs, under the name of the Flower Shop, has been closed.

Elmhurst, N. Y.—Frederick Marquardt has purchased the site of Mager's hotel at Middle Village, adjoining his establishment, and will extend his greenhouses. He will also erect a new dwelling on the property.

Little Rock, Ark.—Prof. E. R. Bennett, of the Colorado Agricultural College and Experiment Station, has been appointed horticulturist of the Rock Island lines and will probably have his headquarters in this city, taking up work in this state and Oklahoma. He has had marked success in building up the horticultural interests in other states and will give demonstration work and personal assistance to growers in the territory served by the Rock Island lines.

Jackson, Mich.—The winter meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society was held here March 18 and 19, in conjunction with the Jackson County Fruit Growers' Association. W. W. Farnsworth, of Waterville, O., was scheduled to deliver two addresses. The list of speakers also included T. A. Farrand, of Eaton Rapids; C. B. Bassett, of Fennville; L. W. Watkins, of Manchester; President Munson, of Grand Rapids, and Supt. F. A. Wilken, of the South Haven Experiment Station, besides several professors from the Agricultural College.

Pittsburg, Kan.—The students of the industrial arts department of the State Manual Training Normal College of Kansas have just completed a greenhouse, 16x24 feet, to be used by the agricultural department in testing seed germination and soil fertilization. T. A. Butler, in charge of one of the departments, says that dealers in seeds and shrubbery should bear in mind that this college is sending teachers to the high schools of the western country at the rate of 100 or more every year, and that a catalogue in the hands of Prof. B. W. Scheib, of the agricultural department, would be examined by the entire class.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong with extra good roots; just right to transplant for blooming in May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as the plebian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales 1913. Send for both of the booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

In a late number of the Market Growers' Journal, in a symposium on tomato growing, five of the six writers commended BONNY BEST. One calls it a "top-notcher," another says his patrons would take no other if Bonny Best was on the wagon. The qualities mentioned are earliness, almost the first; most desirable in size, smoothness, velvety red, thriftiness of plant, long bearing season, great productiveness, excellent for early or main crops. We have thousands of plants of this variety, transplanted, tough, stocky, well rooted, extra fine strain, sure to please, $1.00 per 100. Ready now.

WEED KILLER

THE VERY NEWEST AND QUICKEST METHOD OF DESTROYING WEEDS, GRASS AND OTHER GROWTH IN GARDEN WALKS, GUTTERS, TENNIS COURTS, DRIVEWAYS, ETC.

THIS fluid absolutely destroys all weeds and other growth wherever applied, and its effect on the ground prevents the growth of fresh ones for a year and thus saves a great deal of time and labor, as no cutting, hoeing or hauling away of the weeds is required.

We manufacture the strongest line of DISINFECTANTS on the market.

CANTON, O.

Ideal weather up to noon on Easter served to increase the volume of business far ahead of last year. At noon Sunday the rain began and it fell for three days. Fortunately, Canton escaped the storm and had no damage by the flood to speak of, being eight miles from the river.

Massillon, eight miles distant, suffered a big loss from the flood.

The Brown Floral Co., for the relief of the flood sufferers, donated March 29 their entire two days' cut of carnations to the Flower Mission ladies, who realized $300 from their sale. The sum was turned over to the relief treasurer.

As an appreciation of the good work done by the young ladies, they were banqueted April 3 at the Courtland hotel by Mrs. Brown, assisted by Mrs. M. C. Barber, a sister of the late Mrs. William McKinley. The flower decorations were elaborate.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Rochester Florists' Association met at the Pinnacle Club April 1, with Mrs. A. Rapalfe as hostess. The sum of $10 was contributed to the Ohio flood fund. Mrs. W. Keller and Mrs. John Dunbar won the prizes at bowling. Mrs. George Hart, Mrs. E. R. Fry and Mrs. F. Vick will entertain the club April 29 at the Elm bowling hall.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE trade has come through the winter in good shape insofar as the fuel question goes. An open winter has gone quite some ways toward making up for the higher price of coal. There has been no serious car shortage or interruption of transportation, such as endangered many plants the season before.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

THE NEW COAL YEAR.

The opening of the new coal year finds the anthracite trade in a quiet condition, the report being that buyers are abnormally slow in placing orders for April shipment. In the bituminous market those buyers and sellers who have been at loggerheads over the coming year's contract prices are not getting together rapidly and there is still a lot of business uncovered. Some contracts are being closed every day, of course, and perhaps a few more were entered into last week than during the weeks immediately preceding, as a certain number of consumers were not willing to let their old contracts run out without making new arrangements. But the stimulation from this cause was moderate and as a whole the situation remains about as it was during the latter half of March.

WHERE THE DOLLARS GO.

"The growers' dollars go up the chimney," was the substance of the way Walter Thompson put it in a recent address before the Portland, Ore., Florists' Society. "In the hot water systems we have high and low pressure, circulation by gravity, forced and accelerated circulation. In the steam systems we have high and low pressure and vacuum systems, with the condensation returned to the boiler by gravity, traps or pumps. Electric heat has been

IMPROVED RETURN TUBULAR FIREBOX BOILER

Johnston Heating Co.
131 E. 26th St., New York City

Kroeschell versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

CHARLES SCHULTZ,
Menominee, Mich.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

Our large cast iron sectional boiler cracked one section and the header last Sunday. It seemed to turn cold about the same time that the break occurred. By Monday night it was 14° below zero. However, by putting up coal stoves, oil stoves, lamps and pushing up the small furnace we have managed to keep most of our stock in pretty good shape, and our total loss, furnace and all, will be between $500 and $600. Just luck that it was not all gone.

New Kroeschell boiler ordered by telegraph on Sunday, shipped Monday, reached here on Friday; hauled to greenhouse on Saturday and started a fire Sunday; just seven days and ten hours after the accident. When dealing with people who will deliver a boiler as quick as that you cannot give up.

Yours very truly,
MICHLER BROS. CO.,
Lexington, Ky.

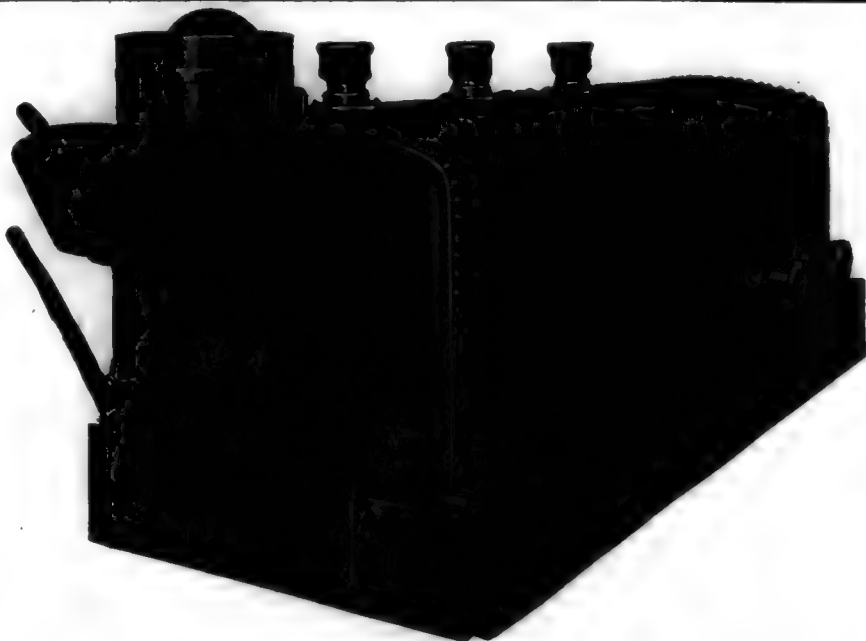

CAST IRON BOILERS CRACK

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13th. I had a breakdown, one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13th, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15th, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers had done, easier and better in every way.

(Signed) ANDREW BATHER, Clinton, Iowa.

Kroeschell vs. Return Tubular BoilerKroeschell Saved 1/2 the Coal

The No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler purchased of you in 1909 has given the very best satisfaction—would wish no better. Have taken out return tubular boiler this fall which used one-half more coal than your present boiler. Your boiler is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature very quickly. The return and flow connection with Generator, all work the very best according to your plans.

FRANK A. WAGNER,
Tiffin, Ohio.

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I bought a No. 3 boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of heating with this boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its full capacity.

SMOKING CHIMNEYS.

The smoking of greenhouse chimneys is caused by sending particles of unburnt carbon or hydrocarbons into the air, and the density of smoke may be reduced to almost any degree by simply diluting it with air without altering the total amount of solid matter emitted. To compare the amount of preventable smoke discharged from two chimneys it is necessary to know the amount of coal being burned in the furnaces. Many so-called smoke-preventing devices simply aim at diluting the gases with excess of air during the time smoke is most likely to be given off.

Few boiler furnaces fail to supply sufficient air for the complete combustion of the coal fired in them. About twelve pounds of air is necessary to supply the oxygen for completely burning one pound of coal and under actual conditions most furnaces pass from twenty to thirty pounds of air per pound of coal. The reason smoke is emitted is that the air is not intimately mixed with the carbon and is not at a sufficiently high temperature.

The problem of insuring complete combustion of bituminous coal is mainly one of temperature and involves continually keeping the furnace at a high temperature, which is by no means

Continuous Firing for Four Years Twenty-four Hours a Day Fails to Burn Out Cyclone Grates

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

Possibly the best attempt at smokeless hand firing is the coking system; that is, firing green coal only on the dead plate and the front part of the grate and gradually pushing it to the back after all the hydrocarbon gases have been driven off and it has become an incandescent mass. This method of firing is impossible unless the boiler is worked at a low rate, but can be employed in greenhouse boilers of sufficient size, as the coking process, during which the hydrocarbons are given off, is comparatively slow and the effect is to reduce the available grate area of the boiler by about one-half. If boilers are worked at a high rate it is impossible to fire them by hand without smoke and the only practicable cure generally is to increase the number of boilers.

Mechanical stokers more nearly comply with the conditions for smokeless combustion, because the coal is fed without opening the fire doors and in small quantities at a time, if not continuously. That they do not always succeed in working without producing smoke is generally due to the attempt to force the fires. This results in a low furnace temperature, because there is too much green coal on the bars.

The Market.

Although business has not been so active since the first few days after Easter, there was a further decline during the last week. There have been fewer social functions of prominence since the close of Lent than usual, so that the demand for flowers has not regained its customary activity. How it Looks to a Man Up a Tree.

LAST week I ran up to Rowayton greenhouses at Rowayton, Conn. Mr. Sefton, our president, sent me up with instructions to get a photo of the entire range of 7 Hitchings iron frame houses.

It sounds easy enough, but the only way possible to see it all was to climb up a tree. This is how it looked.

Those five small houses we built five years ago. Then no other firm's price was lower for a big house and they got the order.

It was not satisfactory.

We got the next order.

It was for those two big 55-foot ones 450 feet long. Only two columns, compress truss framing, Z-bar eave plate our cypress benches.

To a man up a tree, it looked to me as if there in these new houses was about as conclusive a bit of evidence as any man would want that our company builds superior houses and deals squarely and fairly. It's the opinion of the man who comes back with another order that counts.

It's the firm that has no comebacks on the work they do, that's worth counting.

You can count on counting on Hitchings and Company. Our catalogue tells all about these big houses.

I FIND The Review a great help and think it the best paper published for the trade.—Robert Rodden, Newton Center, Mass.

CYPRESS BY TEST. SUBSTITUTES BY TALK.

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 45 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 45 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

That is no more than a fair precaution on your part—good ordinary business sense.

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that wood-pile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the "peck") has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?

There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too.

A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work.) Vol. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for Vol. 2, on "Pecky"—a money-saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT.

GREENHOUSE LUMBER

"SPOT CLEAR CYPRESS"

LOCKLAND LUMBER CO., LOCKLAND, OHIO

The "One Lung" Against a Six Cylinder

AN AUTOMOBILE COMPARISON WITH A GREENHOUSE MORAL

SUPPOSE it were possible to pick out the six best separate concerns in the country, each making the best of each kind of greenhouse material; and then move their factories and entire working force and managers to either of our factory grounds, at Irvington, N. Y., or Des Plaines, Ill.

Suppose it were possible to bring such together under our well organized, watchful management; a cypress mill; an iron foundry; a heating, fitting and boiler foundry; a ventilating factory; a paint and putty mill; and lastly, a group of greenhouse construction and heating engineers and mechanical draughtsmen, the best the country afforded.

Suppose it were possible to do such a stupendous thing; wouldn't you at once recognize the tremendous advantage it must be to do business with such a wonderful concern, who manufacture for themselves everything that goes into a greenhouse, excepting only the glass?

Of course you would!

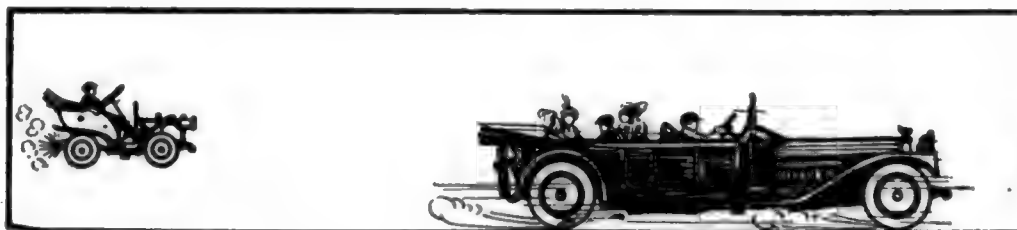

You would at once see the money saving advantage of being able to buy all your material from the one highly responsible concern. You would also be keen to take advantage of putting the entire responsibility up to them for the entire house, instead of dividing it among six different scattered concerns all over the country.

All of which would be highly endorsing Lord & Burnham, for that's exactly what this concern is—a combination of six factories, mills and foundries and an engineering concern, all in the one factory under the one skillful management. Each one of these six separate "departments," as we call them, has its own separate manager or head. Any one of these departments is larger than any one single concern in the country. Each of the six departments works with and for every other department in producing the entire materials for your house.

It's just like a fine big, well oiled six cylinder automobile working smoothly, riding easily, and getting you there safely and surely in the shortest time and by the smoothest roads.

Wouldn't you rather ride in this six cylinder car of ours than in a "one lung?"

If you contemplate painting your houses this year it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The LUTTON reputation for high-class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost, and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. Some of the largest growers in the country will testify to this fact.

SOLID AS A ROCK

Bassett & Washburn's New Range—Five Houses, 34 x 600 feet.
A Model Range Designed by Us in Our Forty-fifth Year of Experience.

“The wind blew, and they fell not;
The storm raged, and they held fast.”

LIKE the ROCK OF GIBRALTAR, these flat rafter houses, with the steel work supported by pipe columns, stood firm against the terrific gales that swept around them on all sides. Other greenhouses near were crushed to the ground, and dwellings, barns and chimneys were torn to pieces all around the spot where this range is built.

NEPHROLEPIS IN VARIETY

We are now the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country, in the following varieties; in fact, we are headquarters for them. The demand increases each year and it is our aim to have EVERY VARIETY OF NEPHROLEPIS IN EVERY SIZE EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Excellent values in all sizes.
NEPHROLEPIS TODEAOIDES—LONDON FERN
This we consider one of the best.

2½-inch pots, for growing on.....$5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots, very heavy.....$20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1,000

NEPHROLEPIS SCHOLELI

This is an ideal crested fern, holding the same relation to all other crested ferns that Scottii holds to the old Boston.

2½-inch pots.....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots, very heavy.....$20.00 per 100
11 -inch tubs.....$2.50 and $3.00 each

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED
This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima, and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston. This is now one of the most popular of the crested varieties.

2½-inch pots.....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots.....$20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1,000
10 -inch tubs, very heavy.....$2.00 each

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA COMPACTA
A dwarf compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape. Our stock of this variety is large and of exceptional quality.

DRACAENA MANDAIANA

Large leaf, beautifully colored bright red.

6-inch pots.....$15.00 and $18.00 per doz.

DRACAENA DE SMETIANA

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties; a strong, vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena De Smetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $5.00 and $6.00 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI

7-inch pots.....$1.50 and $2.00 each

After the Flower Show

we have time to draw breath and again put our shoulders to the Wheels of Commerce.

We were favored by the visits of scores of customers and friends during the past week, who had an opportunity to see demonstrated the facilities at our command for serving the Florists of America.

To those who were unable to visit the Flower Show we extend a standing cordial invitation to visit us at any time when in New York and consider our establishment their headquarters while here.

Incidentally we would state that our line was never more complete or our quotations more interesting than at the present time, in spite of the silk textile strike, which threatens a shortage of merchandise.

Samples submitted upon request, or one of our representatives will call upon you.

Buy Your Ribbons for Graduations and June Weddings at Once

The ribbon weavers have been on strike for over eight weeks and there is no prospect of a settlement. Fortunately, our stocks have been in such condition that we have been able to fill most orders. But stocks are rapidly becoming depleted, and we predict a great scarcity of ribbons during May and June, with a probable advance in price.

AFTERMATH OF THE BIG NATIONAL SHOW

IT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS.

New York Makes Good.

Those who thought New York could not win out on a big flower show were appallingly disappointed last week. The big exhibition, reported so fully in last week's issue of The Review that little remains to be said, proved a success in every particular, artistically, popularly and financially. As always is the case, the show improved from day to day. Rearrangement brought about better display, filling up the weak spots and the odd corners. By the second or third day so complete had been the shift that only the largest groups remained in their original places, and most of these had been made over. Part of the work was necessary, to make room for the cut flowers as they came on, and part was purely to increase the general effectiveness and add to the attractiveness of the show in the eyes of the public.

It was unfortunate that the show could not all be on one floor. Some florists thought the splendid building admirably adapted to flower show purposes, but the general opinion was that it is very poor indeed. Practically no effort was made to use the big third floor, and the mezzanine floor, where the greater part of the trade displays were located, was only kept in the running by signs on the main floor and a loud-mouthed crier, who every now and then appeared at the railing to invite the people up from the main floor. Also, the building is so cut up by posts that an effective general view is impossible. There were plenty of exhibits on the second floor and by the end of the week the lower floor was so crowded that really magnificent stock was crowded together until all individuality was lost and it became merely a riot of color—and yet it did not seem possible to get action on the big, almost vacant third floor. By all means, a flower show should be all on one floor, practically amounts to that anyway. The attendance was light the opening night and Sunday. Then rose day drew big crowd. Carnation day followed and drew as many. Then came matinee day and the afternoon attendance fell off, but there was a big crowd at night. Thursday again was a $2,000 day. Thus far the weather was bright and cool. Friday and Saturday it rained all day and then came an extra Sunday with the admission cut in half. On the whole, more people saw this show than ever did any other flower show in New York and the finances came out all right; there will be a small profit.

The Sweet Peas.

The National Sweet Pea Society had its inning April 10. Perhaps it was the element of surprise that was lacking, but the showing of sweet peas did not create the sensation that was made at Boston. Remembering the wonderful showing made in 1911 with the winter-blooming varieties of the grandiflora type and knowing that this year many of the winter-blooming Spencers would be added, the trade anticipated a revelation. It was another case where anticipation is better than realization, for, instead of eclipsing the Boston display, the showing, while larger, was not so sensational. At Boston the peas were better staged, where they all could be seen at once; at New York they were in four separate places, so that the effect was lost. Also, at Boston the long stems on all the peas were remarkable, while at New York some of the most promising varieties of the new Spencers could only be shown on short stems. The quantity was there, Wm. Sim alone having nearly 1,000 vases.

Special interest centered in the win-grown for him by Mr. Sim. Most of them were shown under number.

The awards on sweet peas were:

Fifty sprays pink and white—First, John M. Barker, Morristown, N. J.; second, Frederick Mamitsch, Paterson, N. J.; third, Winkler Bros., Hackensack, N. J.

Fifty sprays white—First, William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.; second, Frederick Mamitsch; third, Winkler Bros.

 Special mention to Thomas Ryan, gardener for John J. Downey, for vase of mixed sweet peas.

The Roses.

If, as many said, the showing of cut roses staged in the competition April 7 constituted the most wonderful display ever seen in the world, what, then, can be said of the rose section after the groups of cut roses were staged? April 9 only one new class came on; it was for groups arranged for effect. There was a discrepancy in the schedules, the final list of the general show specifying groups "covering 200 square feet," while the premium list of the American Rose Society called for "not less than 200 square feet." There were four entries, but only two exhibitors appeared; they agreed to each use about 400 square feet, so that if one was disqualified the other would be. The first premium was $250 and the second $150. The entry of A. Farenwald, under ordinary circumstances, would have taken first, but A. N. Pierson came forward with a display so exceptional that it became one of the features of the show. A great pyramid was built, twenty feet on a side and as high, the staging and pots well concealed and the whole surmounted by a wonderful vase of Killarney Queen. The schedule called for not less than 200 roses; the Pierson pyramid contained over 5,000, in a dozen varieties, and of splendid quality.

The special classes for cut roses were staged April 10 and here again A. N. Pierson was the bright particular star, winning the silver vase, valued at $200, offered by the New York Cut Flower Co., with a vase of 200 Killarney Queen that for quality of stock and excellence of arrangement will be talked about years hence. The arrangement was by David Geddes, of St. Louis, who begins to get nervous whenever he sees a grower trying to stage flowers for effect. The other awards of the day were:

Philadelphia growers' prize, for seventy-five roses any variety or varieties except Beauty—First, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; second, Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa.; third, John Stevenson & Sons, Philadelphia. Pierson used mixed varieties and here also the arrangement was by Mr. Geddes.

Six roses, no two of the same variety—First, Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J. There were thirteen entries, but only eight exhibitors staged their stock. The list called for not over 20-inch stems, so the exhibitors mostly used two Killarneys, two White Killarneys and two Richmonds, cutting the stems down to twenty inches. The prize was a cup valued at $50, put up by Moore, Hentz & Nash, who also prescribed the conditions.

Henshaw & Fenrich prize for twenty-five Richmond—First, A. Farenwald, Roslyn Pa.

Henshaw & Fenrich prize for twenty-five Killarney—First, U. S. Cut Flower Co., Elmira, N. Y.

Henshaw & Fenrich prize for twenty-five yellow roses—First, L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., on Lady Hillingdon.

Carnations.

Thursday, April 10, the American Carnation Society came back with a display of carnations arranged for effect, and with some fine showings of retail work. The awards given were as follows:

Exhibit of carnation blooms covering eighty to 100 square feet—First, not awarded; second, A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass.; third, not awarded; fourth, Boston Cut Flower Co., Boston.
 Mantel decoration of carnations—First, Alfred T. Bunyard, New York; second, S. A. Anderson, Buffalo; third, Boston Cut Flower Co.

Basket of carnations—First, A. T. Bunyard.
 Vase of carnations—First, not awarded; second, Boston Cut Flower Co.; third, A. A. Pembroke.

Last Day's Awards.

The last of the competitive classes were staged April 11 and by then interest had rather run down, so that the competition on the retail work was even less than at the opening of the show. The retailers made their best show on sweet pea day. The awards were:

Special table decoration—First, Henry Siegel, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; second, Samuel Untermeyer, Yonkers, N. Y.; third, Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.

Silver cup for cut flower novelty—F. W. Fletcher Co., Auburndale, Mass., on snapdragons.

Basket of foliage plants—First, Max Schling, New York.

Basket of flowering plants—First, Max Schling.

Combination of flowering and foliage plants—First, Max Schling.

Corsage bouquet of orchids—First, Max Schling; second, Boston Cut Flower Co.

Bride's bouquet—First, Alfred Kottmiller; second, Max Schling.

Late Special Awards.

Most of the special awards, as well as the awards in the competitive classes, were published in last week's issue of The Review. The special awards made later, officially reported, are as follows:

Chester K. Billings, Jas. Bell gardener, for collection of Schizanthus Boddingtonii, silver medal.
 Robt. Craig Co., Philadelphia, for collection of named crotons, seventy-three varieties, including many novelties, gold medal.

Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass., for Acacia Rolandii and a wonderful display of acacias, bougainvilleas, etc., S. A. F. gold medal.

Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me., for hybrid Astilbe Arendsi varieties, silver medal.

Miss Mary Helen Carlisle, London, England, for pictures in oil and pastel of famous English gardens, gold medal.

Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, La., for group of lilies from American-grown bulbs, hybrids of Lillium Harrisii and multiflorum, gold medal.

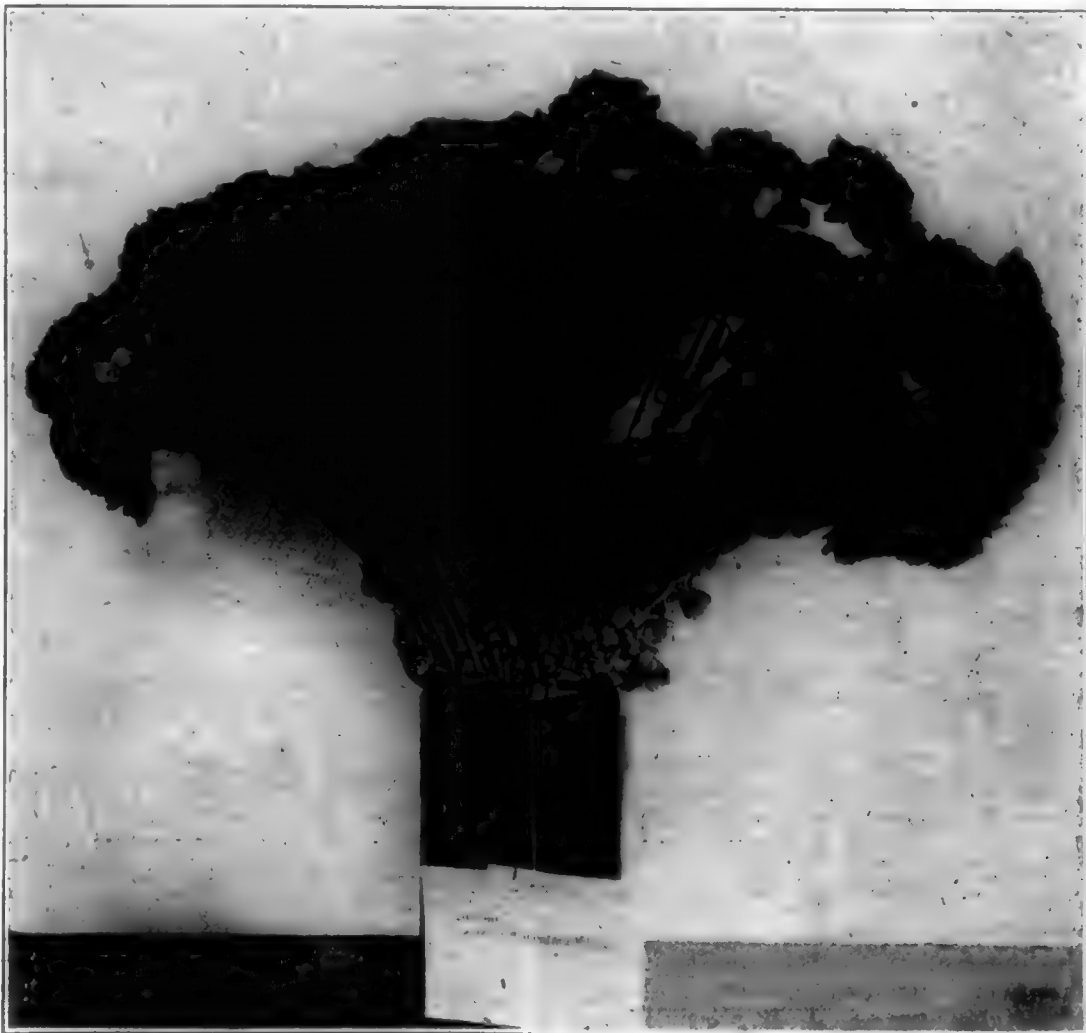

S. M. Goldsmith, W. B. Seymour gardener, West End, N. J., for cut callas, bronze medal.

W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., for collection of orchids, including hybrid odontoglossums, etc., shipped from England, gold medal.

Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, La., for cut lilliums, hybrids of Lillium Harrisii and multiflorum, silver medal.

Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., for roses and carnations and general display of cut flowers, etc., gold medal.

J. J. Goodwin, J. F. Huss gardener, Hartford,

Carnation Princess Dagmar Staged at the National Flower Show.

Conn., for display of ferns showing gradation of growth from spores to the full grown plant, silver medal.

Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., for group of orchid hybrids, gold medal.

Mrs. W. G. S. Griswold, A. J. Loveless superintendent, Lenox, Mass., for new antirrhinums, silver medal.

David S. Miller, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., for model estate, silver medal.

Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass., the Henry F. Michell Co. gold medal for the most artistically arranged exhibit.

Award Revisions.

Harry A. Bunyard, chairman of the board of jurors, supplies the following list of additional, revised and corrected awards in the official list of awards in the competitive classes published in last issue:

Specimen lœlia—First, W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.

Twenty 10-inch pans early single tulips, ten or more varieties, exclusive of Darwin—First, E. Fardel, gardener to Mrs. A. M. Booth, Great Neck, L. I.

Two plants Kentia Forsteriana—First, R. Tyson, gardener to Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Convent, N. J.; second, W. A. Manda.

Specimen maranta—First, W. A. Manda.

Twenty-five plants conifers, twenty varieties—First, F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.; second, Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

Twenty-five plants conifers, dwarf or flat growing, twenty-five varieties—First, Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; second, W. A. Manda.

One plant holly—First, Bobbink & Atkins.

Miniature landscape garden—First, Frank Josefko, Glen Cove, L. I.; second, Julius Roehrs Co.

Miniature model of estate—First, Frank Josefko.

Cypripedium hybrid—First, W. A. Manda.

Cypripedium, variety—Second, W. A. Manda; no first awarded.

Flowering plant, species—First, R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.

Nephrolepis, species—First, Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; second, F. R. Pierson Co.

Orchid hybrid—First, J. Mossman, gardener to Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J.; second, W. A. Manda.

Orchid, variety—First, Clement Moore; second, W. A. Manda.

Collection of plants or flowers introduced by exhibitor—First, W. A. Manda; second, A. C. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J.

Three plants marguerites—First, Madsen & Christensen, Wood Ridge, N. J.; second, J. Stuart, gardener to Mrs. F. A. Constable.

Specimen rhynchospermum—Second, S. W. Popp, gardener to H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; no first awarded.

Twelve plants spiræa or astilbe—First, Mount Desert Nurseries, Bar Harbor, Me.

Lælio-cattleya—First, Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; second, W. A. Manda.

Class 36A—First, Thomas Roland.

Late Arrivals.

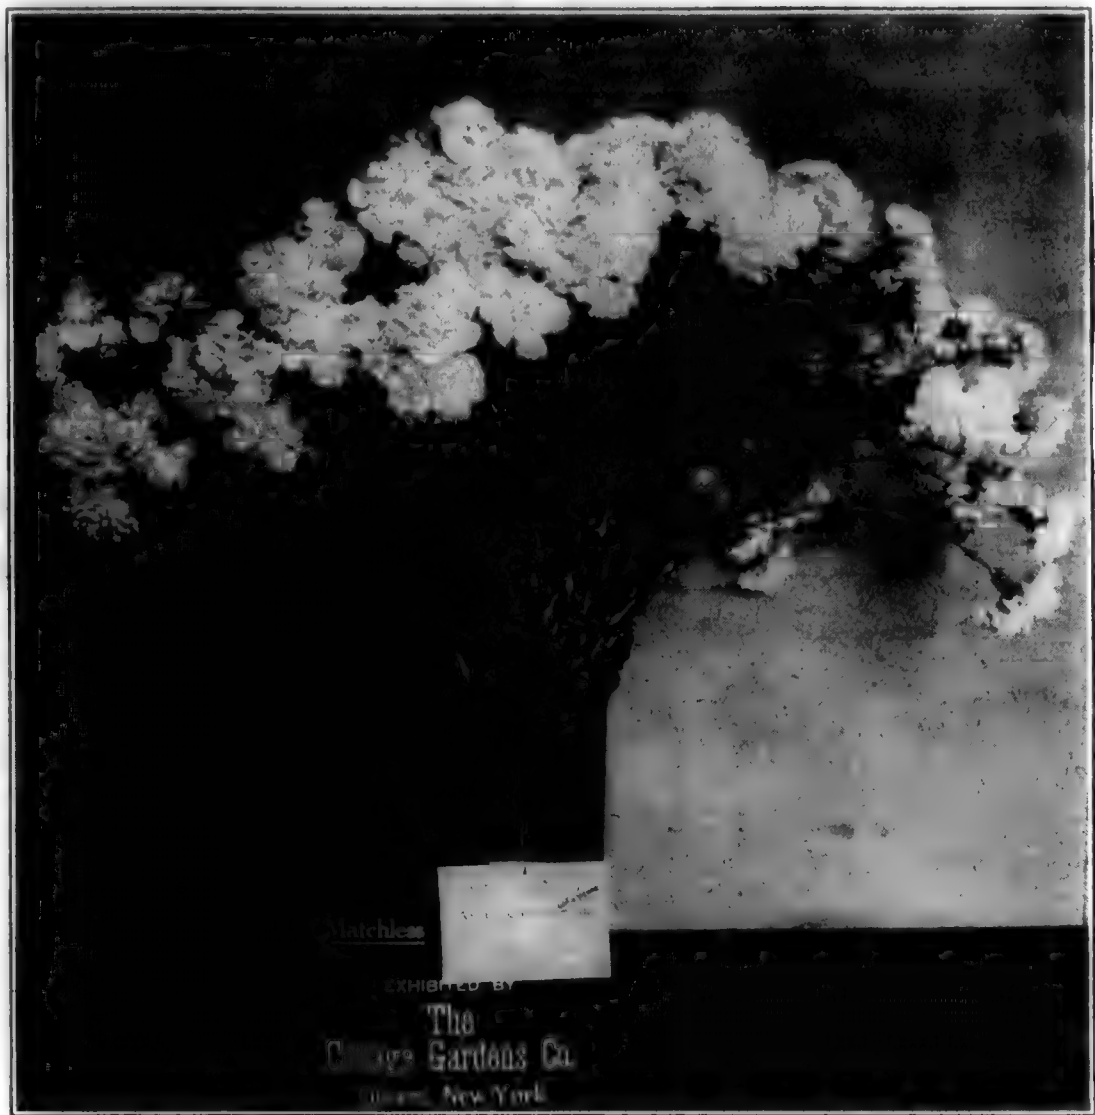

James Wheeler, of Natick, Mass., brought two vases of his light pink snapdragons that showed up excellently.

The international character of the show was helped out in the middle of the week by the arrival of a shipment of odontoglossums and cypripediums from W. A. Manda's branch at St. Albans, England. They filled a large table and made a fine show.

A trade exhibit late in getting into place was that of the Dunham Co., Berea, O., which showed water weight lawn rollers in several sizes.

The Lectures.

The lectures proved one of the popular features of the show. The original program was not carried out, due to the failure of some of the announced speakers to put in an appearance, but there was a lecture each afternoon and evening and it was something of a surprise to many to find that the theater, seating about 300, was well filled each time. Those in the trade did not show much interest and, indeed, the lectures were designed for amateur consumption, but there was quite a little in some of them that was informative to those in the business. E. H. Wilson, of Arnold Arboretum, talked on his explorations in China; J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., described the Arnold Arboretum, Boston; Robert Pyle, of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., discussed roses and decorative plants; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, gave his Japanese lecture; Fred C. W. Brown, with S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, told of the art of flower arrangement; Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., told of the whys and wherefores of tree planting; J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, gave his Rocky mountain lecture; Geo. V. Nash, of the Bronx Botanical Garden, talked on water gardens; Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., discussed gladioli; L. W. C. Tuthill, New York, told of glass structures for amateurs, and Leonard Barron, of the Garden Magazine, spoke of famous gardens. All the lectures were illustrated by colored stereopticon slides.

Jottings.

With things coming so well, and with the additional fact that no hauling through the streets of New York is permitted on Sunday, preventing the dismantling of the show until Monday, it was decided to lengthen the show one day by keeping it open Sunday, April 13. Because some of the stock was at the point where it had to be removed from view, the price of admission was cut in half. It brought a big crowd and added several hundreds of dollars to the net receipts.

Robert Craig says that A. N. Pierson's pyramid of roses, shown in the class calling for a group to occupy not less than 200 square feet, was the most wonderful display of cut roses ever put up anywhere in the world. It was even more notable for the quality than it was for the quantity and variety of stock, and the arrangement, all of which were good.

David Geddes, of St. Louis, arranged the A. N. Pierson exhibit of Killarney Queen that won the cup valued at $200, offered for best display of 200 roses. The stock was simply wonderful, both in stem and flower, and Mr. Geddes staged them so that every bloom showed its individuality. It was one of the notable features of the show.

Question: Should a dealer in artificial flowers be permitted to exhibit his wares at a National Flower Show? Mr. Totty thinks not.

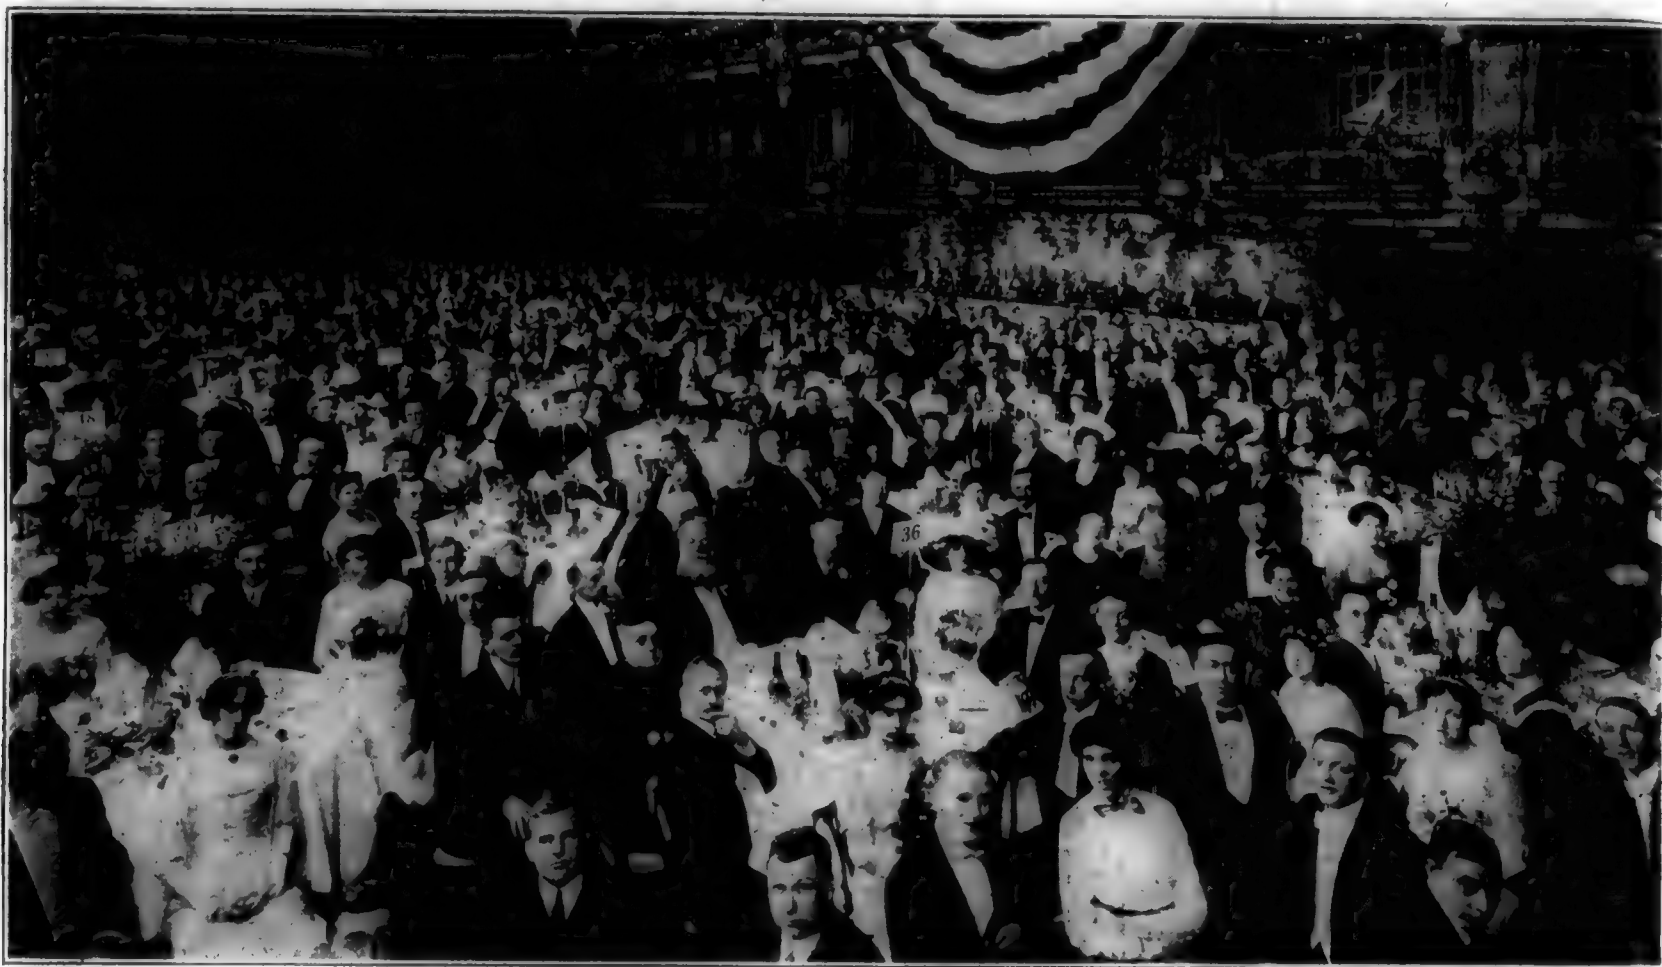

The carnations of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., were flood-bound for twenty-four hours, not arriving until the day following the carnation show. Mr. Hill says he was all the more disappointed because he is sure he could have changed several of the awards had his stock got through on time.

Madison Square Garden could not be had for this show; Barnum & Bailey's circus wanted it. But when the Garden management saw the crowds pouring into the Palace, they concluded they wanted the next flower show and they sent a formal letter, asking that no arrangements be made until the Garden management had been given an opportunity to submit a proposition!

Mrs. Wm. W. Edgar, of Waverley, Mass., entertained several S. A. F. ladies at tea at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel April 10. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy.

AWARDS TO TRADE EXHIBITORS.

The trade exhibits at the National Flower Show were handled in the same way they are at the S. A. F. conventions; that is, judges were appointed to pass on the new things the exhibitors had called to their attention in writing. Where the exhibitor filed no written description of his novelty with the secretary he was not considered by the judges. Their awards were:

Certificates of merit to H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, for Geranium Helen Michell and for hybrid freesias.

Honorable mention to Schloss Bros., New York, for ribbon, chiffon and corsage novelties, bouquet holders, table decorations and figured chiffon.

High commendation to Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, for new pattern boiler.

High commendation to King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., for flat rafter house, for iron eave plate and for arrangement for eave plate and drip pan.

High commendation to Houtsch & Co., Germany, for greenhouse boiler.

Honorable mention to J. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, for device for keeping and showing short-stemmed flowers.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

A meeting of the Society of American Florists was called for April 10, in New York, but no quorum developed. President Farquhar announced, however, that he had taken cognizance of the proposal to establish a national trial ground for roses at Washington by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and that he had appointed W. F. Gude, W. R. Pierson and F. R. Pierson as a committee to represent the S. A. F. in the matter and to do what seems best to further the project, either in the name of the society or in conjunction with such other organizations as may be interested.

THE LADIES ENTERTAINED.

The entertainment of the ladies steadily becomes a more prominent feature of all national florists' gatherings and at New York last week the local committee, headed by Mrs. Frank H. Traendly, saw to it that the many visiting ladies were not permitted to find time hanging on their hands. The ladies were shown about the city, there were numerous luncheons and April 9 a large theater party was given at the matinee at the Hippodrome, to see the circus and "Under Many Flags."

TESTS EXPLOSION THEORY.

I agree with Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., who, in The Florists' Review of April 3, declared that greenhouses and other buildings are not crushed in a wind storm, but that most of them explode. I have tested the correctness of the theory recently. We had a heavy wind March 12 and I noticed that the roof of one of my houses danced up and down a great deal; in fact, so much that the purlins jumped off the pipe supports, being held by split tees. As I have believed in the explosion idea, since I saw buildings in the St. Louis cyclone that had fallen outward, I opened up the vents about three inches, and the dancing of the roof quit at once.

We had a little side show of our own March 23, the night of the Omaha cyclone. The wind was blowing at the rate of forty-eight miles per hour. My brother, who was on duty, opened up the vents three inches or more, and the house in question stood as firm as an oak. Let us hear from others.

SEVEN THIRTY SHARP.

Amid surroundings of exceptional brilliancy and with an attendance that included many of the most widely known men in the trade the country over, the New York Florists' Club sat down to its twenty-sixth annual dinner April 10. Not only was the scene one of exceptional brilliance and animation, but the dinner also was the largest ever held by any florists' organization in America. There were 600 present. The National Flower Show was, of course, responsible for the unusual number of guests, the dinner being the principal feature of the entertainment offered the flower show visitors. There were nearly as many ladies as gentlemen and their presence was one of the most pleasant features of an occasion that was graced by the attendance of the flower of the flower trade.

The Hotel Astor was selected, not for the similarity in sound to the name of one of our principal summer flowers, but because the hotel is in itself an entertainment, one of New York's show places, sometimes referred to as one of the brightest of the glowing lobster palaces, with facilities unexcelled for handling so large an affair.

The cards said "seven thirty sharp" and the guests for once were prompt. The beautiful reception rooms were thronged long before the bugler blew the call to dinner, which was served in the great banquet room on the main floor. Round tables seating ten were used, affording opportunity for good fellows to get together and for many friendly parties. At the speakers' table at the right of W. H. Siebrecht, president of the club, sat J. K. M. L. Farquhar, president of the S. A. F.; W. Wells, our English visitor; E. G. Hill, of Richmond; Theodore Wirth, vice-president of the S. A. F.; W. N. Rudd, of Chicago; Charles H. Totty, chairman of the flower show committee, and W. H. Duckham, manager of the show. At Mr. Siebrecht's left sat Robert Craig, the oldest ex-president of the S. A. F.; W. F. Kasting, treasurer of the S. A. F.; August F. Poehlmann, of Chicago; Mr. Holman, president of the company which owns the Grand Central Palace; Philip Breitmeyer, president of the American Carnation Society, and George Robinson, of Montreal.

After the guests were seated the first thing was the making of the big flash light photograph and in this case the crowd was so large that two cameras were used, in opposite corners of the room, but both pointing toward the speakers' table. The following was the menu:

Grapefruit with Maraschino Cherries
Cream of Fresh Asparagus Aux Fleurons
Olives	Celery Radishes Salted Almonds
Fillets of Striped Bass, Sautes Meuniere
Potatoes En Croquettes
Noisettes of Spring Lamb, Peruvienne
Stuffed Peppers	French Peas
Vol Au Vent of Sweetbreads, Toulousienne
Sorbet Fine Champagne
Roast Royal Squab with Cressess
Salad
Fancy Ices
Assorted Cakes	Fruit
Coffee
Haut Sautes
A la Carte Ruinart Brut	John Begg Old Scotch
Clysmic Water

Between courses Mrs. J. B. Nugent, Jr., who is a light opera prima donna and one of the most popular young women in New York florists' circles, sang most delightfully to orchestral accompaniment.

In starting the postprandial feature Mr. Siebrecht admonished the speakers that if they really had anything important to say they could get "leave to print," as the congressmen do, but that five minutes was the limit for the talks. And he was promptly on his feet to enforce the rule, except in the case of W. Wells, all the way from England.

Mr. Farquhar spoke of his appreciation of the honor of being president of the national organization during New York's show year and congratulated the New York body on the showing made by the exhibition, saying that it contained fifty per cent more material, and of better quality, than the Boston show of two years ago.

Mr. Holman spoke for the Grand Central Palace, saying that the newspaper clippings received that day numbered fifty-seven about the show, some of them from newspapers as far away as Portland, Ore., and New Orleans.

Patrick O'Mara was called from the floor, but declined to sing a solo, declaring that if Joe Manda would come forward they would sing a duet. When Mr. Manda's presence had been obtained Mr. O'Mara proceeded, in a characteristic speech, to present him with a chest of silver as an expression of the club's appreciation of his work as its president in the last year. Mr. Manda said that when the honor of the club's presidency was conferred on him he realized one of his youthful ambitions, but that he found it to be no job for a newly wed; he was glad the gift included spoons.

Mr. Wells told of some of his experiences on his trip and said he had been well repaid for his journey, although he came, in the first place, more to see what he doesn't want than to see what he does want.

W. N. Rudd paid a glowing compliment to the show management, saying that without belittling the work of others the credit for leadership must be given to one man. He wanted to know if the society is going to pay its debt by electing C. H. Totty its president next year.

Robert Craig said that the one trouble with American floriculture is that those engaged in it are too modest; have not claimed enough. He suggested sending Pat O'Mara to congress.

W. F. Kasting told of the progress the S. A. F. is making, saying that there now is $26,000 in the treasury, $19,000 of it having been accumulated in the last six years.

Theodore Wirth told of what is planned for the Minneapolis convention.

C. H. Totty called attention that the motto of the New York Florists' Club is "All One," and said that in show work, as well as in other activities, they had tried to live up to it.

Ex-President Breitmeyer said the show left nothing to be desired except the participation of more of the retailers. He deplored the aloofness of those whose interest in reaching the public is greatest.

E. G. Hill spoke for the ladies, George Robinson for Canada and Wm. Duckham for the show workers, after which Robert Craig told one of his famous stories and everybody joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne." Then the young people, and some of the older ones, danced the latest dances until the early hours.

The dinner committee consisted of John B. Nugent, Jr., Robert Koehne, Walter F. Sheridan, Joseph S. Fenrich and Thomas Boothe de Forest. The floral decorations were by Alex. M. McConnell.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

At an adjourned meeting of the American Carnation Society held at the Hotel Manhattan, New York, Wednesday evening, April 9, H. B. Dorner, for the committee to which had been referred the address of President Breitmeyer and the report of Secretary Baur, reported as follows: The committee recommends that the judges be instructed, in scoring carnations on the exhibition table, to award no points for fragrance unless fragrance be present; the committee recommends that the by-law providing that the annual meeting and exhibition be held the last Wednesday in January be closely adhered to and that the convention be not held in conjunction with the meeting of any other society; the committee recommends that the conventions be alternated, one year in the east, the next in the west; the committee recommends that no admission fee be charged, the public being admitted free under such rules as the executive committee shall adopt; the committee endorses the recommendation that none but members be allowed to compete in the society's exhibitions and that only members of the society and the local florists' organization in the convention city be privileged to attend such functions as may occur; the committee recommends that every member constitute himself a committee of one to secure new members.

The report provoked a long discussion. Eugene Dailedouze challenged the wisdom of the proposed rule on fragrance, saying that most carnations possess more or less fragrance at home but may lose it if shipped any distance; that warmth makes a great deal of difference and that the credit ought not to be arbitrarily cut out in this manner. M. A. Patten and Peter Fisher took the same view. Wm. Nicholson pointed out that Rainbow is selling splendidly in the Boston market "solely on its fragrance" and that the quality is one that should be encouraged. No action was taken.

In the matter of the society going it alone and sticking to its favorite date of meeting, Peter Fisher said that the last two years of trial of other plans have proved conclusively that the society's best interests have not been served, the exhibition having deteriorated and the membership fallen off. Several others spoke to the same effect, E. G. Hill being the only one to voice a mild protest. The recommendation was adopted, as were the recommendations for the free admission of the public, that members only be privileged to compete, that hospitalities be restricted and that everybody get busy and boost the membership.

After considerable discussion the secretary and treasurer were instructed to formulate a plan whereby the list of names can be cut down by the elimination of the names of undisseeded and undescribed varieties.

The only invitation for the 1914 convention, except several from convention bureaus, which could not be considered because not backed by the local florists, was from H. B. Dorner, who asked the society to meet at the University of Illinois if it considers it advisable to go to so small a place as Urbana-Champaign. It was left to the board of directors, but Prof. Dorner was elected vice-president of the society, that office having been left open at the time other officers were elected because of the custom of choosing the vice-president from the city that is to have the next convention.

NEW PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY

R. T. BROWN.

PROMOTION for merit seems to be the regular thing with the new president of the American Carnation Society; he was advanced from the vice-presidency. And Mr. Brown came to the direction of the affairs of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., in just the same way; he entered that concern as assistant to Charles Willis Ward when that gentleman was devoting his personal attention to the florists' business and, when Mr. Ward's other interests claimed his time, Mr. Brown's broad shoulders seemed just fitted for the mantle. Mr. Brown has carried on Mr. Ward's work with the carnation, now even to the point of succeeding him in the presidency of the flower's society, for Mr. Ward was at its head in 1903.

With comparatively little discussion it developed that the members present were a unit in believing that greater importance should be put on substance and the scale of points was revised by taking five from form and putting it on substance, so that the scale now stands:

Color	25
Size	20
Calyx	5
Stem	20
Substance	15
Form	10
Fragrance	5

Total.....100

R. T. Brown, the newly elected president, was introduced and made the usual pledges. Wm. Nicholson, M. A. Patten and E. G. Hill told of the hospitalities received at the hands of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society and its members, and what they saw at their places on the occasion of their trip to England last spring.

For the committee on final resolutions Mr. Hill presented a report expressing the appreciation of the society for the courtesies extended by all connected with the management of the National Flower Show, but especially C. H. Totty, Wm. Duckham and Harry A. Bunyard; also to the New York Florists' club and the men in the trade who individually had contributed to make the meeting one of the most successful and pleasurable in the annals of the society.

THE CARNATION; ITS SOCIETY.

[The address of President Philip Breitmeyer before the American Carnation Society at the New York meeting.]

In reviewing the past year, we find new facts presenting themselves that should lead this assembly into very interesting discussions, which in turn should bring forth suggestions and resolutions of great benefit to all. The general prosperity of the country has left its golden traces among the growers of carnations as well as the retailers of them, and many an up-to-date structure has been added to bring about the biggest development of the carnation. Quality has been produced, and the retailer has had the opportunity of the enormous output at a fairly reasonable price.

In spite of these indisputable facts, a question worthy of your most serious consideration and analysis arises. Is the popularity of the carnation on the increase, or, in other words, has the consumption increased in the same ratio as our population and general advancement of ethics and prosperity? Is the more frequent occurrence of special sales on carnations a sign of the increased popularity of the carnation, or is it a sign of more or less overproduction?

Neglecting the Fragrance.

In the dissemination of varieties, too much stress seems to have been laid on the color and size, the odor in most cases having been lost sight of. In years past, when our population was less and the demand for carnations in proportion was larger, we were blessed with, though smaller blooms, more fragrant varieties. There is no doubt in my mind that the spicy odor in the carnation was a great factor in the sale of these flowers, and with the present advancement in salesmanship the term "fragrant carnation" is almost a thing impossible, and by virtue of this lack of fragrance other flowers have become greater competitors.

Further, it seems necessary to infuse a new strain of blood to overcome the general and quite remarkable decline of their keeping qualities. It has become a serious problem, especially to the retailer. I believe that unless a remedy is found there will be a great difference in the sale of carnations. We can all agree that already other good, lasting flowers have found their way to the flower shop as keen competitors. This may not matter much to the retailer, but it is very important to the carnation grower, and there should be vigilant care and careful scrutiny given to the many new introductions offered each year, not permitting them to be enrolled unless the present defects are eliminated.

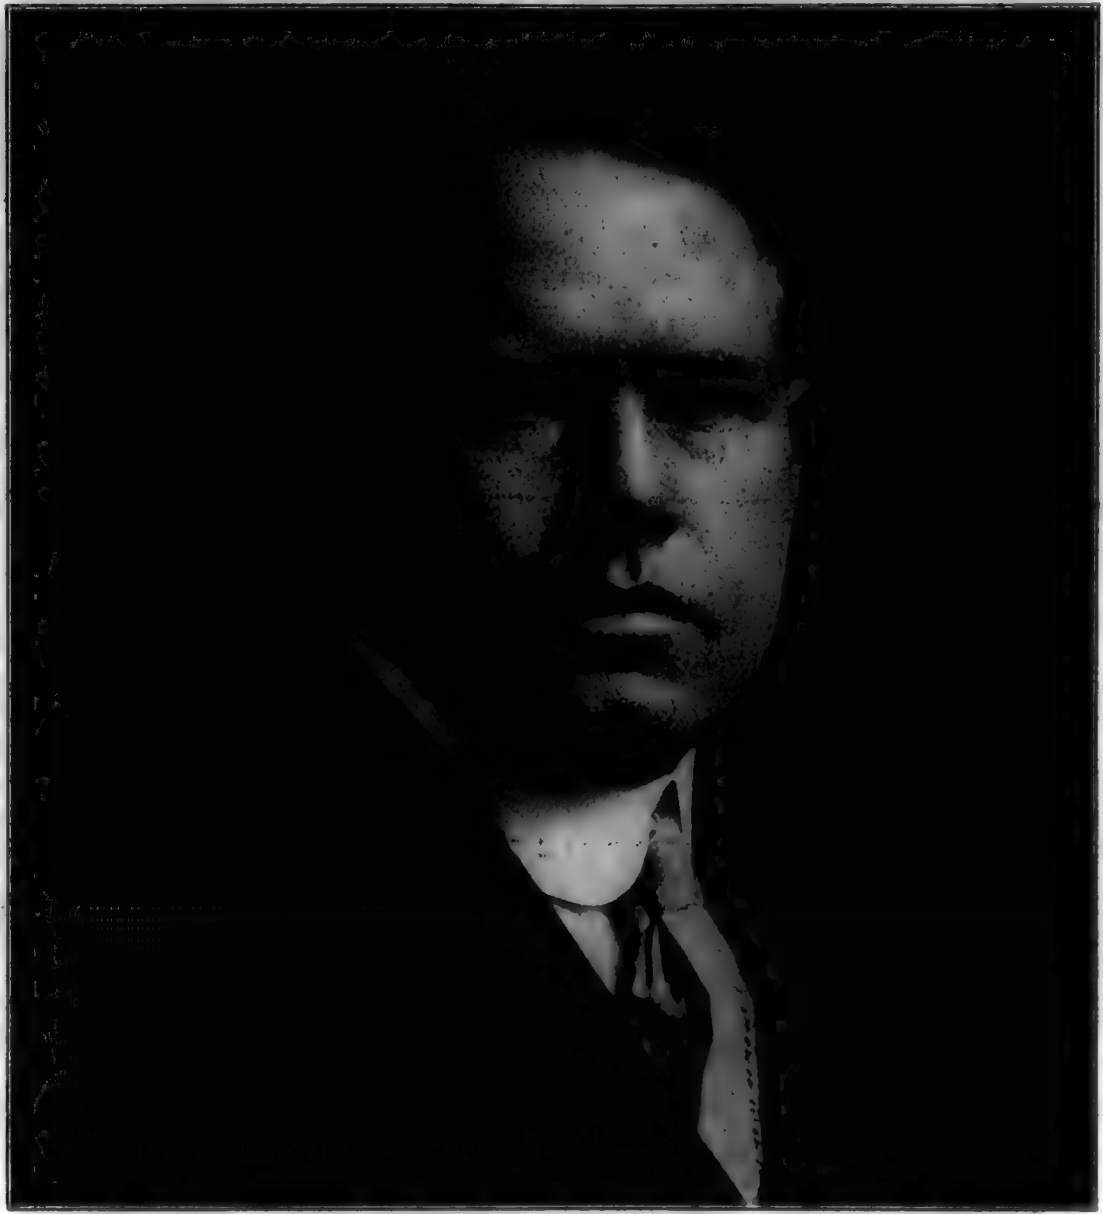

I also wish to call your attention to the well known lack of carnation blooms during the summer months. Owing to the failure of the aster, there seems to be a field not yet covered. It is a fact that the breeders of anemone and pompon chrysanthemums are straining every point to produce summer blooms, and to my notion a carnation would fill the bill as few other flowers will do.

Action on Parcel Post.

We have everlasting complaints concerning the packing for shipment of carnation blooms, and while it may be out of place to bring it up now, it does seem wise to caution many of our best growers that some thought and study should be given to overcome this ever present criticism.

Owing to the newness of the parcel post, the powers that be are in a receptive mood and it seems timely that suggestions be made. As the situation lies, the government maintains as good and better service between cities than express companies. The only difficulty so far is the delay of collections and deliveries in cities. If properly presented, the government no doubt would supply proper schedules for the departure and arrival of mail trains. This should lead to a cheaper and safer transmission of

NEW PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY

WALLACE R. PIERSON.

WHEN the American Rose Society, at its meeting last week in New York, selected Wallace R. Pierson as its president for the ensuing year it did it for its own good, without consulting the recipient of the honor, who at the moment was extremely busy staging exhibits in the National Flower Show. The selection was solely because of the tremendous energy Mr. Pierson is these days putting into everything he undertakes—and the rose men recognize that just now that trade society that can command youth and enthusiasm is indeed fortunate. Mr. Pierson is the active working force in the business of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and is the head of the publicity committee of the S. A. F.

our products than now exists, especially in the plant line.

The past year has been anything but satisfactory in the addition of new members. The root of this trouble should be found and a remedy provided.

It has been said that there is no inducement for those interested to become members of our society, for the reason that they can procure all the information and benefits on the outside; further, that there is practically no barrier for non-members getting all the benefits, and I believe that it is true. This brings to mind the old doctrine, "A society for its members," and perhaps it will be necessary that such a rule be adopted and adhered to. There is no doubt that the society which hews closer to a policy of not spreading its news broadcast is more attractive to a joiner, and I can see reason why a new policy should be well considered and in the end insure the society against disintegration.

Time of Annual Meetings.

The time for holding our meetings, which had been adopted originally as the third week in January, seems yet to be much favored; in fact, the holding of our exhibitions at that time seems to be more favorable and practical. This may not agree with my past argument, which was to the effect of closer relation with the Rose Society and other kindred societies, especially for the purpose of holding joint exhibitions such as we enjoyed in Detroit and are now enjoying in New York. It may be too soon to discuss this question, but my idea is that it is important to hold the meeting of the Carnation Society when the season is most appropriate.

The policy of free exhibitions properly managed and restricted, as was planned originally and met with much success, should not be lost sight of and I hope that a good discussion will be brought about on this subject.

It need not follow that a National Flower Show should interfere with an annual carnation meeting. I am of the opinion that the grower who is interested in the carnation, or any other flowers, will find time and money to attend all such meetings, no matter where they are held.

Work for the Carnation.

In conclusion, I believe that the Carnation Society, as expressed by many of its most active members, should act for the best interests of its aims and purposes, and if the plans now adopted are not practical the matter should be brought up for discussion and deliberation.

It is to be remembered that our interests lie in the carnation, its development, and creating a sale for it and all that can be done to accomplish this end should have attention. The carnation must be grown the year around, and its blooms must rank in quality with the grandest of all flowers, the rose.

gestions or demands they might wish considered relating to tariff legislation, affecting their interests, to Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., chairman of the tariff and legislation committee.

Upon motion, the following were appointed as a local advisory committee in connection with the preparations for the convention in Minneapolis next August: Theo. Wirth, chairman; W. Desmond, Hugh Will, and George Asmus.

Charles Critchell, of Cincinnati, was appointed chairman of the sports committee of the convention.

In regard to the rates for space in the trade exhibition at Minneapolis, it was decided that the rate be 40 cents per square foot, with a minimum price of $20. It was further arranged that the business convention occupy four days and that the trade exhibit should be opened for the same period; and that all articles exhibited must be left in place until the close of the business session of the convention, which would be at 10 p. m. on the fourth day.

A resolution was passed that it was the sense of the board of directors that some action be taken by the society at the next convention whereby exhibits of artificial flowers at the society's trade exhibits and flower shows be prohibited.

The following appropriations were made: Entomologist, $100; pathologist, $100; botanist, $100; convention badges, $100; assistant to secretary at convention, $100; sports committee, $75; president's messenger, $25; school garden committee, $75.

The accommodations at the Hotel Radisson having been found satisfactory, that hotel was appointed headquarters for the convention. Vice-President Wirth was invested with authority to make arrangements for the lease of the Armory.

The salary of the secretary was fixed at $1,000 per year, with an additional allowance of $300 per annum for office rent. It was also decided that in consideration of his additional work as superintendent of the trade exhibition he be paid an additional salary of $500 per annum, with a further allowance of $200 to cover the expense of a thirty-day stay in the convention city which would be required through his duties.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

BALL DIAMOND IN FLOWERS.

One of the tokens of good will from Chicago baseball fans to Manager Evers, of the Cubs, presented April 12, was an elaborate flower design in the shape of a fan, with the main body laid out as a ball diamond. It was originated and executed by H. R. Hughes, of Chicago. The foul lines were of white sweet peas and the base lines of white carnations, with pink down the pathways. Red, white and blue ribbons ran to the outfield positions. The feature was a large keystone of white carnations in the second base position, mounted with a yellow crown of five points, to represent "the keystone king," the name given to Manager Evers, who is regarded without a peer as second baseman.

CHAIN OF FLOWER STORES.

For months there has been talk in the trade of plans being laid by outside parties to establish a chain of flower stores across the country, on the order of the cigar and 5 and 10-cent stores that have apparently proved great successes. It now is reported from New York that "a new company to be known as the Royal Fruit & Flower Co., with a capital of $10,000,000, is being organized by Oscar Bamberger, of Bamberger, Loeb & Co., and Henry Weil, of Bamberger Bros. & Co. A chain of fruit and flower stores will be established in this city."

EXPENSE OF DELIVERY.

I am a retail florist in a country town and I have read with much interest the remarks of R. S. in The Review for March 13 about the inconvenience and cost of delivery. It exactly describes my position, but the only thing I can see for R. S. to do is to smile and charge more. If he can't do it, he might leave it to his lady clerk.

A. E. N.

A NEW YORKER'S PILLOW.

Joseph B. Davis, who established his retail flower store in New York in 1883, was the designer of the pillow shown in the accompanying illustration. His location is 2152 Third avenue, just above One Hundred and Seventeenth street, where he gets a large volume of funeral work. This pillow was made with a solid center of violets wired in small bunches, bordered by valley, with half a dozen fine cattleyas to give a touch of color. In the prevailing state of the violet market it could be made at a moderate price and still yield the necessary margin of profit, while giving the appearance of a failure to consider cost.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

In addition to the work of the S. A. F. directors reported in The Review at the time of the Minneapolis meeting, Secretary Young now supplies the following not heretofore made public:

A design for a life membership badge was submitted by the secretary and was adopted. The secretary was ordered to procure a supply of these badges at a price not to exceed 75 cents each, and to place them at the disposal of life members at the cost price.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the leading florists, or others having trade interests, forward any sug-

NEW PARCEL POST RULES.

Under new regulations issued by the post-office, merchandise packages weighing not over four ounces may hereafter be mailed in letter boxes or at any branch post-office, provided the special parcel post stamps are used and the name and address of the sender are shown on the package.

Beginning July 1, collect on delivery shipments of fourth-class matter may be sent through the mail when sent from and addressed to an office at which money orders are issued, provided the following rules are observed:

1. The amount of C. O. D. must not exceed $100.
2. Ten cents additional to postage must be affixed in parcel post stamps, which will insure against loss up to $50.
3. The C. O. D. tag must be securely attached to the package and must show:
 - (a) the amount due the sender,
 - (b) the money order fee to cover remittance,
 - (c) the total amount to be collected (a plus b).

The instructions do not permit an examination of the contents of a package by the consignee.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

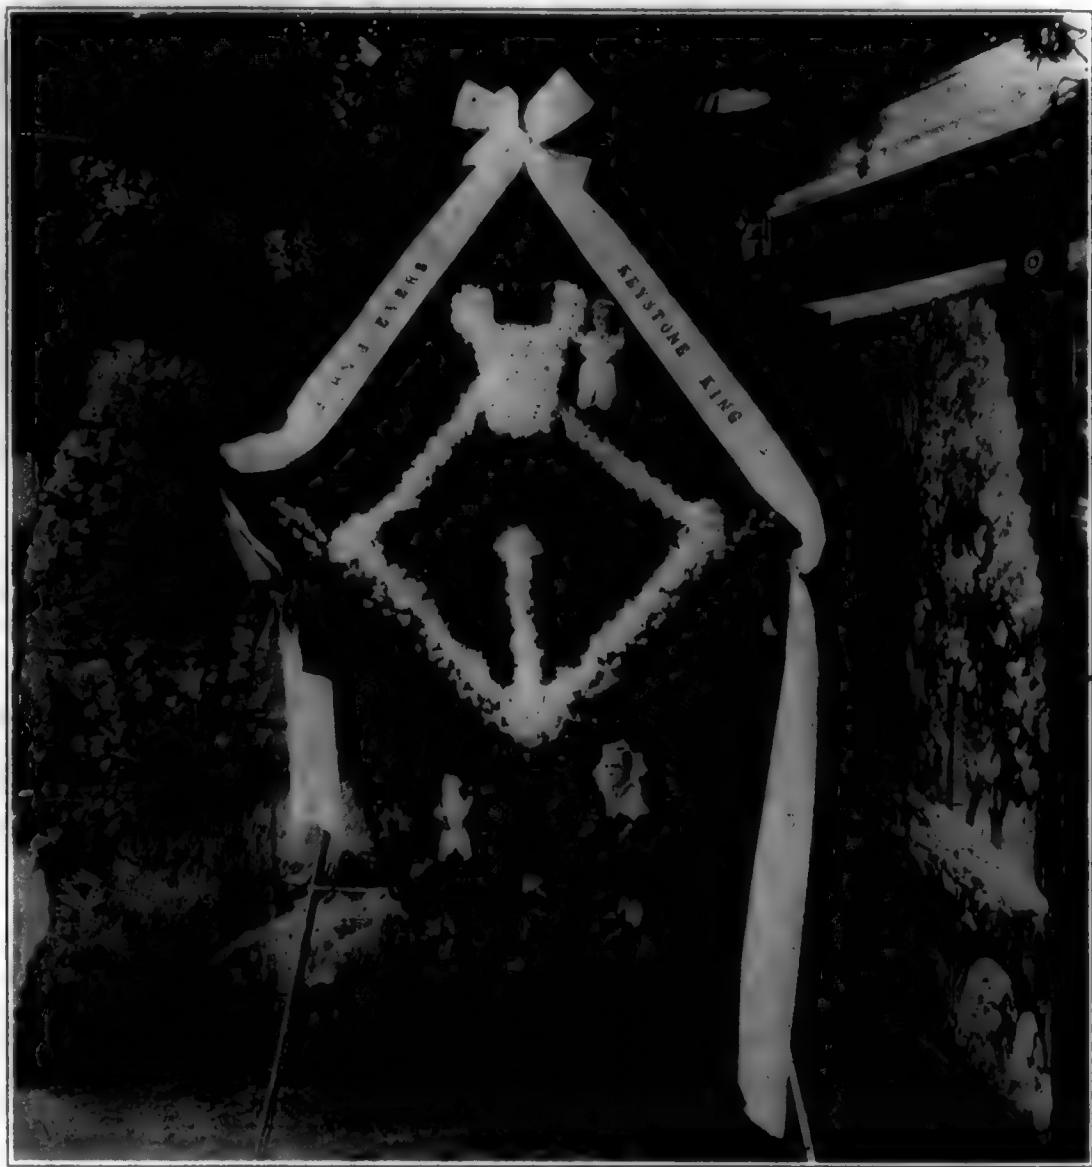

New York, N. Y.—Philip L. Shaeffer, surviving partner of Reisner & Shaeffer, 1247 and 1249 Lexington avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $9,712 and assets $1,189, consisting of stock, $300, fixtures, $700, and accounts, $189. Anna Shaeffer is a creditor for $7,000, money loaned. The business was started in 1895 by Samuel Reisner. Mr. Shaeffer became a partner in June, 1912. Mr. Reisner died January 10, 1913, and Mr. Shaeffer has since carried on the business. The foregoing petition, a voluntary one, was dated April 4. Four days later an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against Mr. Shaeffer by the following creditors: Paul Meconi, $356; Charles Millang, $207, and James K. Allen, $183.

FLOWERING SHRUBS AND VINES.

Please send me a list of hardy flowering shrubs and vines that would come into bloom in succession in this climate, in the western part of New York state.
T. R.

A few of the best vines for your climate are: Ampelopsis Veitchii, Clematis paniculata, Lonicera brachypoda Halliana, Lonicera sempervirens, Wistaria Chinensis and W. multijuga, Akebia quinata, Aristolochia Sipho, and such rambler roses as Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, American Pillar and Hiawatha. In evergreens, Euonymus radicans is good.

A selection of first-class flowering shrubs which will give a long succession of flowers are: Prunus triloba and P. Japonica flore pleno; Philadelphus coronarius and P. Lemoinei in variety; Deutzia Lemoinei, D. crenata Pride of Rochester; Spiraea Thunbergii, S. arguta, S. Van Houttei and S. prunifolia flore pleno; Lonicera Morrowi and L. Tatarica; Forsythia Fortunei; Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora and H. arborescens grandiflora; Azalea Pontica; althæas in variety; Buddleia variabilis and the sub-variety Veitchiana; Cornus Mas; Magnolia stellata; lilacs in variety (in lilacs, a selection to give a succession of flowers would be: Syringa oblata, Marie Legraye, Mme. Lemoine, macrostachya, Charles X, Philemon, white and pink Persian, villosa); Corymbus Japonicus; Clethra alnifolia; Exochorda grandiflora; Rhodotyphus kerrioides; Viburnum plicatum and V. Opulus sterilis; Weigela candida and W. Eva Rathke; in flowering evergreens, rhododendrons, Kalmia latifolia and andromedas.

STRIKE IN BELGIUM.

Cable advices from Belgium state that a general strike went into effect there April 14. The Red Star line, which brings all Belgium plant shipments, will not accept perishable freight, even though the Belgium government-owned railroads could carry the stock from Ghent to Antwerp. This completely ties up plant shipments from Belgium and catches the exporters right at the beginning of the spring shipping season. Only one shipment has left Belgium, mostly bay trees. Further spring shipments will be delayed as long as the strike lasts, which is hoped to be not over two or three weeks.

GREENHOUSE GLASS.

We have it on good authority that the stock of greenhouse glass in the hands of manufacturers is light for this time of the year and, while the demand is perhaps not so good as it was last season, the fact that factories will close down in about six weeks would tend towards stiffening prices; in fact, an advance almost any time is being freely predicted. A manufacturer who does considerable business with greenhouse owners says those who are going to build this season should place their orders without delay, so as not to be disappointed as to delivery of their glass.

CLASSIFICATION DOUBLES RATE

Under the new southern classification railroad rates on plants or flowers completely boxed or crated take a double first-class merchandise rate. I suppose this applies to all southern territory. This rate is excessive. Where I have been paying 23 cents per hundred from Louisville to Shelbyville, Ky., it is now 46 cents per hundred. The express rate is 40 cents per hundred between these two points. Wholesale florists who are shippers of plants or flowers should take this matter up and see that the double first-class rate is not put into effect.

Edw. P. Hall.

Ligonier, Ind.—Otto O. Schrock, whose greenhouses were damaged by a recent storm, has completed the work of making repairs and his business has been carried on without much interruption.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—F. R. Pierson Co., having always done more or less retailing from the greenhouses, is preparing to take full advantage of the fine trade that has grown up here by building a retail store in one of the best locations on the main traveled highway from New York to Albany. The building, which was designed by R. M. Cobb, of Lord & Burnham Co., will not contain one piece of wood. It will cost upwards of $20,000 and will be one of the handsomest flower stores in America.

McHUTCHISON ON

THE NEW TARIFF

DEFECTS IN TARIFF BILL.

McHutchison & Co., the New York importers, have directed the attention of Hon. Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives, to numerous mistakes of classification and definition in the new tariff bill that will create considerable confusion in rating unless rectified before becoming effective. Following is a copy of the letter to Mr. Underwood:

Sections 219 and 220 of Schedule G in the new tariff bill cover horticultural products such as bulbs, plants and trees. In these articles accuracy of classification and definition is of vastly more importance than the rate of duty, because the rate of duty depends altogether upon the definition of the items.

The last tariff contained many mistakes, which involved much expense to the importers in having the board of appraisers pass upon disputed points. Unless some changes are made in the wording of the two paragraphs mentioned above, we shall have the same trouble over again, as the new tariff makes exactly the same mistakes.

In the new tariff the same items carry different rates of duty and items are classified incorrectly. We refer in particular to the following:

Section 219 rates "orchids, palms, azaleas and all other decorative or greenhouse plants, twenty-five per cent ad valorem." Section 220 rates "all fruit or ornamental trees, deciduous and evergreen shrubs and vines, commonly known as nursery or greenhouse stock, fifteen per cent ad valorem." This makes the same items fifteen per cent and twenty-five per cent ad valorem. Greenhouse plants and greenhouse stock are the same.

The word "azaleas" is too vague. Probably Azalea Indica is intended, but it is grown in greenhouses in winter only. All other varieties of azaleas are grown outside in nurseries, and are nursery stock, not greenhouse plants.

The terms "greenhouse stock" and "greenhouse plants" are also too indefinite. Many shrubs and plants which grow in the open air in southern states are known as "nursery stock." Farther north, where the weather is colder, the same stock is grown in greenhouses and is known as "greenhouse stock." These classifications would pass if the duty were the same.

Section 220 rates "seedlings of myrobalan plum, $1 per 1,000." Section 561 rates "myrobalans" free of duty. It should be specifically stated whether Section 561 refers to myrobalan seeds, fruit or seedlings.

Section 220 rates "evergreen shrubs and vines, fifteen per cent." Section 602 rates "evergreen seedlings" free, but places them under the classification of "seeds." The same mistake was made in the last tariff and it took three years and much expense to get a decision from the board of appraisers. If it is your intention to continue evergreen seedlings on the free list, they should not be in section 220, and should not be classified as "seeds." Evergreen seeds and evergreen seedlings are quite different articles.

Section 220 rates "seedlings of briar rose, 3 years old or less, $1 per 1,000," also "rose plants, budded, grafted or own roots, 4 cents each." The principal briar rose in commerce is Rosa rugosa, a shrub, grown from seed and sold as 2 or 3 years old. The last tariff was also indefinite on this point and only after three years and much expense to importers was it decided it is not a rose (see T. D. No. 32926). Your tariff should be specific in including Rosa rugosa as a briar rose and dutiable at $1 per 1,000. It is sold as low as $4 per 1,000.

Section 219 rates "hyacinths" as "clumps" instead of bulbs. The same mistake was made in the last tariff and took years to rectify.

In these items the correct classification is vastly more important than the rate of duty. When the classification is not clear it opens a large avenue for fraud, the result being that the dishonest firm pays only half the duty the honest firm pays. Under present tariff, honest firms are paying twenty-five per cent duty on evergreens grown by grafting or cuttings, while other firms are getting them in free of duty as "evergreen seedlings." The tariff should be specific as to what an evergreen seedling is.

We respectfully request that Sections 219 and 220 be rewritten. We suggest no changes in the proposed rates of duty, but they should be specific and read as follows:

Section 219 should read: "Orchids, palms, Azalea Indica and all other decorative or greenhouse plants and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, twenty-five per cent ad valorem; lily of the valley pips, tulips, narcissus, begonia and gloxinia bulbs, $1 per 1,000; hyacinth bulbs, astilbe, dielytra and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per 1,000; lily and calla bulbs, $5 per 1,000; iris, canna and dahlia roots and amaryllis bulbs, $10 per 1,000; all other bulbs, bulbous roots and corms which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per 1,000."

Section 220 should read: "Stocks, cuttings or seedlings of myrobalan and St. Julian plum, mahaleb and mazzard cherry, pear, apple and quince, Manetti, multiflora, Rosa rugosa and briar rose, 3 years old or less, $1 per 1,000 plants; rose plants, budded, grafted or grown on own roots, 4 cents each; stocks, cuttings and seedlings of all fruit and ornamental trees, shrubs and vines, commonly known as nursery stock, not specifically provided for in this section, fifteen per cent ad valorem."

Section 602 should read: "Evergreen seedlings, 4 years old or less, free"; otherwise there is nothing to prevent large evergreen trees, grown from seed, say six feet high, coming in as "evergreen seedlings," free of duty.

Section 561 should read "myrobalan seeds," "seedlings" or "fruits" or whatever you intend to be free of duty.

The new tariff is fair, equitable and quite acceptable. If you do not see fit to make the above noted corrections, then let us respectfully request that you make the ad valorem duties in Sections 219 and 220 the same, either fifteen per cent or twenty-five per cent, as there is practically no difference in these items as you have them classified.

FORMOSAS FOR EASTER.

Only a small part of the lilies flowered for Easter were Formosas, but all over the country growers tried batches of these, with the idea that, if they made good, larger quantities would be desirable for another early Easter. The principal complaint against the bulbs from Formosa is that the plants are uneven; they are likely to run to great height and do not flower so nearly all at one time as do the longiflorums and giganteums. Growers who had the facilities for shifting the plants into temperatures suitable to their individual needs had fairly good success in flowering the whole batch at the date wanted. Too great height is not desirable, but a few tall plants come in handy; one man reports that he obtained an extra price for a small number of good plants that had run up to an unusual height, these being just what was wanted for the back row of a church decoration. As a rule Formosa bulbs are floriferous; they give a good number of flowers per bulb, and every grower knows that, while the store men like lilies that have from three to five flowers, there is no profit in plants that throw only one or two flowers and that the money is made on those that carry more than the average number—it costs no more to flower a plant that has six buds than it does one with only three. The accompanying illustration shows a Formosa lily flowered at Easter by Joseph Bancroft & Son, Cedar Falls, Ia., that carried seventeen flowers and buds, all perfect. It was a 9 to 11 bulb.

ASPLENIUM BULBIFERUM.

Will you please give me the name of the fern, a frond of which I am enclosing? The plant was brought to my place by a lady who expected to be gone during the winter, and while here it has been admired by several people and they have wanted one like it. Can you tell me where I can get it? Some have called it a Scotch fern and others have spoken of it as a silver fern, but I can not find either of these names applied to any such variety as the one in question.

P. B.

The fern in question is Asplenium bulbiferum, an old species, but one that is not largely grown by the trade. Try some of the large fern specialists who advertise in The Review, and if they do not carry the fern in stock, it is possible that they could tell you where to get it.

SHASTA DAISY ALASKA.

Please give me a description of Shasta Daisy Alaska, with cultural directions.

H. C. B.

Alaska is a decided improvement on the original Shasta daisy. The color is pure white, the flowers are four to five inches across and the stems are ordinarily two feet in length, but in deep, moist soil they may be double this length. Seed sown now may throw a few flowers, but had you sown them outside last July, transplanted into nursery rows and then replanted this spring, you would have had a fine crop of flowers. If you buy plants, set them twenty-four inches apart in the rows and run the rows three feet apart. Let the soil be liberally manured and keep the soil well cultivated right through the growing season.

LILIES IN DIXIE.

The accompanying illustration shows four mule-teams driven by darkies, delivering Easter lilies from the greenhouses of the Idlehour Nurseries, Macon, Ga. In some parts of the north the plantmen were favored with mild weather this Easter, but thousands will envy the grower the ability to haul his plants to market in an open lumber wagon without wrapping. At the right of the picture, in the touring car, is D. C. Horgan, the proprietor of the Idlehour Nurseries, and his foreman, Carling Schatemon, the man behind the gun. They flowered 2,000 pots of lilies this Easter, having practically every plant at its prime when wanted.

WOOD LICE IN PLUMOSUS BEDS.

We are having considerable trouble with wood lice or sow bugs in our asparagus beds. The growth of the asparagus is strong and the plants are healthy, but as soon as the young shoots appear above the surface of the soil they are eaten off by these bugs. We have tried several remedies, but have been unable to prevent these bugs from destroying the crops of asparagus as they come on. What would you suggest that would be a good means of destroying the bugs and at the same time would not be injurious to the plants?

W. J. T. I.

You can catch large quantities of the wood lice by laying hollowed out potatoes or other vegetable roots as traps. Look over these each morning and immerse them in a pail of hot water. A surer method still is to lay some poisoned mash, which they will eat with avidity. Take some fresh shorts, mix some molasses in it, add sufficient water to make it pasty and then sprinkle on enough Paris green to color it. You will find that this will soon clear out these annoying pests.

CREGO ASTERS UNDER GLASS.

I have a lot of Crego aster plants, with two and three true leaves starting. I am potting them up in 2-inch pots. What would be the best way to handle them to get a paying crop of flowers?

I have a greenhouse and hotbeds available, if their use would be an advantage over open ground culture. I am located in southwestern Ohio.

K. W. H.

There is no advantage in potting asters over transplanting them into flats. In fact, the latter is really the better way, as plants can always be taken up with a ball of roots, while in small pots they dry out badly, and are likely to become potbound before they can be planted out. If you have good soil which has been liberally manured, you will get as good results outdoors as under glass, perhaps better. If, however, you want flowers a little earlier, it would be a good idea to plant one bench of them inside. Use such compost as you would use for roses or mums and place the plants ten inches apart each way. For fancy flowers do some disbudding, but as a rule the medium flowers pay better.

LEAVES ON BAY TREES DYING.

I am enclosing some bay leaves taken from a tree kept in a nice, warm, light storeroom. Will you please tell me what is the matter with the trees?

H. F. P.

The most probable cause of the leaves dying is dryness at the root. Bay trees should have a winter temperature of not over 40 to 42 degrees at night, but must never be allowed to approach dryness at the roots. In a warm room it would be especially necessary to give them an adequate water supply.

Alvin, Tex.—E. J. Sheffield reports a good crop of cape jasmines, which will come on just about right for Decoration day.

Croswell, Mich.—R. H. Murdaugh is making improvements in his store, which he expects to be a model when everything is complete. He has just received and installed a neat refrigerator from Buchbinder Bros., Chicago, which affords excellent display of his cut flower stock and is an added attraction on account of its original design.

BOSTON HAS MARKET SHOW

CO-OPERATIVE TRADE EXHIBIT.

Eclipses all Predecessors.

The committee in charge of the flower show, held April 12, at the Boston Co-operative Flower Market, 2 Park street, might well be pleased with its labors, as it gave Boston by long odds the finest market exhibition it has ever had. It was too bad that exhibits had to be so crowded. Horticultural hall was needed to properly display them. Not only were exhibits numerous, but their quality was superb, carnations especially being ahead of most of those shown at the New York exhibition. Most of the premiums were silver cups, cut glass, watches, etc., only a limited number being in cash.

Roses never were shown here of grander quality. For twenty-five Killarney McAlpine Bros., of the New England Rose Co., were easily in the lead and annexed the silver cup offered by Wax Bros. For Richmond the Exeter Rose Conservatories led. For White Killarney the New England Rose Co. led, with flowers on 6-foot stems, which made some of the old-timers gasp, as also on American Beauties and Lady Hillingdons, all of superb quality. W. H. Elliott led for Mrs. Aaron Ward, and Waban Rose Conservatories for Dark Pink Killarney.

Duplicate classes were allotted for the growers with less than 35,000 feet of glass, who made a fine showing. W. R. Morris led for Killarney and White Killarney. For Richmond N. E. Boyle was first and Robert Montgomery and W. R. Morris equal seconds. Mr. Montgomery had the finest Hillingdon and Aaron Ward. For the best new rose Waban Conservatories led with its new scarlet rose and also took the sweepstakes prize, the Penn silver cup, for the finest vase of roses, with Mrs. Charles Russell.

Fine Carnation Exhibits.

Carnations were shown in great abundance and the quality was grand. For fifty white L. E. Small led with White Wonder; A. M. Eaton, second, with White Enchantress; J. W. Foote, third, with White Wonder. There were eight entries in this class. C. S. Strout was first for fifty scarlet, with Beacon. All the other entries were of this variety. Pink Delight from C. S. Strout captured first for light pink; second, Arthur Griffin, with the same variety. There were ten entries. For fifty dark pink Arthur Griffin was first, followed by Harvey F. Whittemore and Halifax Garden Co. For variegated James Wheeler was first with splendid Benora; second, L. E. Small. For fifty flowers of a seedling not disseminated Patten & Co. won, with magnificent flowers of Princess Dagmar.

In the seedling classes there were good entries. A. Roper took first for white, with seedling No. 24, also for red, with No. 312, and dark pink, with No. 1000. Leach's Pink Supreme was invincible in the light pink class, and John Barr's Mrs. B. P. Cheney for variegated. The Robert Montgomery cup for 100 carnations went to Patten & Co., for Dagmar. They were also first for 100 flowers in six varieties, C. S. Strout being second. Patten's Mrs. C. W. Barron was shown in splendid shape and there were quite a few other good seedlings.

F. L. Sly had the best 100 Campbell violets. For 100 marguerites there was keen competition, J. W. Simpson winning with superb flowers. There was the finest display of snapdragons I have ever seen at any exhibition. For fifty spikes James Wheeler had a superlative vase of his light pink, beating ten other competitors. Fletcher's Melrose showed up well here, also Paul Richwagen's Augusta. F. E. Palmer won for twenty-five red, and James Wheeler for yellow, pink and variegated, competition being strong in each class.

Geraniums a Feature.

For commercial group of foliage and flowering plants William T. Walke won, with a first-class arrangement. His standard geraniums were a feature. A. M. Davenport's group containing Tausendschon roses, hydrangeas and foliage plants also was fine.

W. C. Ward had the best 100 pansies. W. H. Elliott won for twenty-five sprays Asparagus Sprengeri, and Mrs. J. F. Flood for A. plumosus. Edward Bingham led for 100 English primroses, and Lively & Bond for display of bulbous flowers. N. F. Comley was first and second for wallflowers. For 100 lily of the valley J. H. Leach & Son won with a splendid vase; second, J. T. Butterworth. R. T. McGorum had the best mignonette and Edward Wood the best novelty exhibit, a grand vase of Roman anemones. Bachelors were fine: first, L. E. Small; second, N. F. Comley.

Sweet peas were remarkably fine. For four varieties, 100 flowers of each, William Sim won, with White Spencer, new Pink Spencer, Countess Spencer and Christmas Pink Spencer, the last named being grand. Mr. Sim took first for 100 white, with Winter Cheer, also for pink with Christmas Pink, lavender with Wallacea and for vase of 200 assorted flowers. For any other color J. K. Chandler & Son led with Pink Beauty. William Sim showed a superb vase of Greenbrook. Mrs. J. F. Flood had the best vase of callas.

Retailers to the Front.

The retailers put up many notable designs. According to the visitors to the New York show, the work eclipsed that seen at the Grand Central Palace. Zinn, Comley, Hazelton, Penn, Wax Bros., Hoffman and other prominent retailers were represented. For floral wreath F. H. Hazelton won, with a charming arrangement of pansies. Hoffman had the best table centerpiece, with a pretty arrangement of pink sweet peas, Taft and Dorothy Perkins roses. Zinn had the winning shower bouquet, using white sweet peas, also the best basket, in which Rosy Morn snapdragon, catleyas, Taft roses and yellow violas with Cocos, Weddelliana and Farleyense fern made a pretty arrangement. For basket of yellow marguerites arranged with blue bachelor's buttons, Mann Bros. were first. N. F. Comley also had a fine basket.

A few of the miscellaneous exhibits noted were: E. K. Farr, Stoneham, table of show pelargoniums; J. D. Twombly, beautiful basket and window boxes filled with ivy geraniums; James Delay & Sons, nephrolepis; A. F. Coolidge, collection of bedding geraniums; A. E. E. Koch, Marguerite Mrs. Sander.

Judges of the Show.

The judges were: Roses—Eber Holmes, Wm. Malloy, A. Cartwright. Carnations—Peter Fisher, M. A. Patten, A. A. Pembroke. Miscellaneous—Robert Cameron, W. N. Craig, Wm. Sim, Wm. Nicholson. Floral Designs—F. E. Palmer, J. L. Miller, C. A. Hathaway.

The general committee on the show consisted of W. H. Elliott, chairman; F. L. Wheeler, secretary; J. McFarland, R. Montgomery, L. E. Small, Edw. Wood, J. M. Cohen, Geo. Barr, A. E. Batley, D. J. Lamey, B. A. McGinty, A. F. Capers, D. Carmichael, W. W. Tailby, N. F. Comley, Jas. Wheeler, H. T. Capers, Alex. J. Montgomery, W. R. Holden, E. W. Hutchinson, W. E. Sanderson and A. R. Hutson. The show attracted a large attendance.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The semi-stagnation into which the flower market had fallen has given place to greater activity and conditions this week show a decided improvement. Carnations are, if anything, in the best position and values on them have improved. We have had considerable dark, rainy weather and this has tended to reduce the output. The favorites continue to be Gloriosa, Rosette and Pink Delight. Roses are now of fine quality, but do not sell as well as carnations. American Beauties, while not abundant, are more plentiful than they were and sell well. All the yellow varieties, such as Ward, Hillingdon and Sunburst, are in good demand; so is Prince de Bulgarie. Killarney Queen is now seen of superb quality, while Richmond is splendid.

Violets are done, except for a limited number of doubles. Pansies are quite popular and large numbers of these are coming in from some of the specialists. Dutch bulbous stock from indoors still holds out well, and if hot weather holds off a supply of these will be had for a couple of weeks longer. The Darwin and other late tulips are popular. Quite a few Spanish iris and some gladioli are arriving. There has been a fairly good call for both lilies and callas. Snapdragons are seen in large numbers. Pink shades sell the best; next to these, white and yellow. Yellow marguerites and blue cornflowers are favorites. Each of these are seen with, in some cases, 24-inch stems. Sweet peas are fine and in demand. Some of the Spencer type are now arriving. For valley the call has been quite good the last few days. The supply of both cattleyas and gardenias has shortened up materially. A fair demand exists for both ferns and asparagus.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in Horticultural hall, April 15, there was an attendance of 125. Seven new members were elected. F. E. Palmer gave an interesting account of how he grew a remarkable crop of potatoes, dynamiting of the soil playing a prominent part. W. A. Carswell, Bar Harbor, Me., read a paper on melon culture, which gave rise to a good discussion. Some of those present who had attended the New York show related their experiences. All voted the show a grand one, but none doubted Boston's ability to put up a better when the next national show is held here.

William Sim received a report of highest merit for a magnificent collection of sweet peas, and special awards were made to the varieties Flora Roland, Mrs. Shack, Mrs. W. Sim Spencer, Lavender Unwin and five varieties under number, all Zvolanek's seedlings of the Spencer type. Special mention was made of Gaillardia Lady Rolliston, shown by the Breck-Robinson Co., and Rose Bessie Brown, shown by T. N. Cook. A cultural report of merit was given W. N. Craig for Miltonia vexillaria.

The club's calendar includes a field day at Elliott's in May, a ladies' night in June and the club picnic in July.

Various Notes.

The retail florists have formed a new association, named the Boston Retail Florists' Club, to improve the conditions of retailers in the city. These officers were chosen at the initial meeting: President, Henry Penn; vice-president, H. R. Comley; treasurer, Julius A. Zinn; secretary, B. H. Green. A committee was chosen to draw up by-laws, etc., consisting of N. W. Silverman, H. R. Comley, B. H. Green, Martin Wax and William Penn. There were some thirty-five charter members enrolled.

Carbone had the decorations for the Sears-Warren wedding at Arlington church, April 8. They were quite elaborate and arranged most artistically.

The bowling team of Wm. W. Edgar Co. defeated the Peirce Bros. team in a challenge match at the Hanover street alleys April 9, by a score of 3 to 0.

Edward Winkler, of Wakefield, is marketing some of the earliest Countess Spencer sweet peas I have seen. J. K. Chandler & Son's Pink Beauty sweet peas are also noteworthy.

Mann Bros. are still strong on Dutch bulbous flowers. They have a splendid lot of such Darwin tulips as Farncombe Sanders, Rev. Ewbank, Gretchen and Clara Butt.

Galvin had the decorations for the great masquerade ball at the Copley Plaza hotel April 8, one of the most elaborate functions ever held in Boston.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. expect to have their new quarters ready for occupancy, below the Boston Flower Exchange, by May 1. They made an attractive exhibit of sundries at the Park street market flower show, April 12.

A. A. Pembroke won eleven prizes at the New York show, including seven firsts.

I regret to report the serious illness of Jackson Dawson, the able craftsman at the Arnold Arboretum. His advanced age gives cause for considerable concern to his family and friends.

C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., has been spending a few days between New York and Boston. His carnations won three firsts and a second in New York, and two firsts and second at the Boston Market show.

W. N. Craig.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Now that "the greatest show on earth" is over, the market has become normal and the good effects of the ten days of educational work may reasonably be expected. The week ended with a fairly good clean-up of everything salable. An unusual demand for orchids because of the funeral of J. Pierpont Morgan raised the price for the selected stock as high as $1 each. April 14 values again retrograded to the quotations of a week ago. Mosses and Trianae are most in demand. A slight advance in the price of Schrøderae is noted.

Roses are abundant and prices have not advanced. There are plenty of American Beauties and of all the new varieties that so greatly added to the attractiveness of the big show. The demand for the novelties in the wholesale market is constantly increasing. The quality of all tea roses now arriving is excellent, but the demand from the majority of the retailers is light, and the clean-up to the large buyers is ridiculously low. The same is true of carnations, the top price even for novelties seldom going above $2, and thousands are disposed of under $1 per hundred, at times as low as $5 per thousand. Gardenias are at their lowest plane for the season, owing to excess in supply, even the best of them not selling at over $2 per dozen. Valley held firm all last week at $3 per hundred for the choice stock, a large quantity having been used by the exhibitors of retail work at the show. Lilies of all kinds are in light demand and prices are lower, especially for callas. Violets are somewhat better in quality, but prices remain at the late quotations, 25 cents per hundred for the selected. There is no scarcity of sweet peas, tulips and daffodils, while the supply of mignonette, pansies, daisies, lilac and spring flowers of all kinds is more than sufficient for all possible demand.

J. Pierpont Morgan's funeral April 14 absorbed more orchids, valley, American Beauty and Richmond roses than the obsequies of all the millionaires of a generation. Most of the prominent retail florists were interested in the enormous supply of flowers and designs. One of them said the display at the flower show was many times exceeded in quantity. The wholesale market was entirely depleted of orchids and Richmond roses.

Club Meeting.

The club's meeting April 14 was well attended. The majority of those present were weary but enthusiastic, having been "in" at the close of the National Flower Show Sunday evening. It will surprise no one to know there is every prospect of the show's repetition next year.

President Siebrecht was in the chair. Reports were made by C. B. Weathered for the entertainment committee, by J. B. Nugent for the dinner committee, by H. A. Bunyard for the transportation committee on the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis and by Phil Kessler for the outing committee, who announced July 1 as the date of the annual festivity and Wetzel's Grove, as usual, the chosen locality.

John Donaldson read the resolutions on the death of Philip Einsman, and A. G. Guttman those on the death of Alexander Moltz. Charles Schwake, James Bell, F. C. Doener, J. M. Newman, Charles Abrams and W. Spiwak were elected to membership and applications were received from Vivian Outerbridge, Charles Huber, Herman Grauch, Louis Enne, A. M. Freishner, C. Mendicott, George Earl, Frank Gumbach, Ernest Ulbrich, John E. Sefton, Joseph Levy and H. F. Marquardt.

W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., gave interesting details concerning the proposed city flower market at Union Square. Cooperation with the plant growers' and market growers' associations was advocated and a committee appointed to work together with the authorities for the early consummation of the enterprise. Charles Lenker spoke earnestly in behalf of the project and its permanency. The president appointed as the club's committee Messrs. Miller, Boehler and Birnie.

C. B. Weathered submitted a handsome badge in enamel and gold for adoption by the club, and a committee of three was appointed to consider, select and report at the club's next meeting.

Messrs. Lenker and Beaulieu addressed the members on the National Flower Show. Many were disappointed in not hearing from Messrs. Totty, Duckham, Bunyard and Young, but the president decided on the early closing movement and "rest for the weary" and a prompt adjournment was made to the refreshment room, with all lights out at ten.

Thomas W. Head, of the Bergenfield Nurseries, exhibited two seedling carnations, crimson and pink, and a new variety of lobelia, for which the thanks of the club were given.

Brooklyn.

P. McGovern rebuilt three of his Brooklyn greenhouses and a conservatory this winter, giving increased facilities. The conservatory, which faces Ninth avenue at Nineteenth street, is of steel and glass, with a lofty arch. The foundations are of Dutch brick and the front is relieved by lines of stained glass. The propagating house is 15 x 125 and two other houses are 24 x 125 feet. The benches are made of cypress, resting on iron frames, giving the maximum amount of room beneath the benches. The heating facilities, like the houses, are of the latest and most approved model. The whole plant was installed by Hitchings & Co.

Branch No. 3 of Condon's Greenhouses occupies nearly five acres at Gravesend and Fort Hamilton avenues, Brooklyn, and is used principally for growing bedding plants and bulbs and roses for cut flowers. W. E. Aherne, the superintendent of the branch, makes a liberal use of hotbeds and has a big lot of geranium stock in the beds. He has 140,000 alternantheras, 45,000 geraniums and 90,000 pansies in good shape for spring bedding. Mr. Aherne keeps his geraniums at a low temperature, 40 to 45 degrees at night, thus getting a steady growth. He lost some pansies last fall through worms from manure, which worked about the roots of the plants and let them dry out. One somewhat unusual feature of this plant is a house with ridge-pole ventilation. This method of ventilation is preferred by Mr. Aherne for the following reasons: The sash is easier to lift, as the weight is thrown on the rafters of the house, where the sash is hinged, instead of on the arms of the ventilator; all trouble from the formation of ice while the sash is open, which is a frequent cause of trouble with the ordinary style of ventilators, is done away with, and the ventilation is quicker and more complete, since the warm air rises to the highest point, the ridge-pole. The only objection is the sifting in of rain in the fall, when the benches are filled with chrysanthemums. This, however, is not a serious matter. Just now Mr. Condon is cutting from 100,000 Dutch bulbs in his No. 3 branch and Mr. Aherne has seeded down some 15,000 annuals. Having charge of much outdoor work in Prospect park, south, and in Greenwood, Mr. Condon has a direct outlet for all the stock he can grow.

Albert Smith, who conducts a shop adjoining the Gates avenue police court in Brooklyn, and within 200 yards of a police station, was assaulted on the morning of April 10 by a burglar whom he surprised at work on his safe combination. Mr. Smith, who is a cripple, had the drop on the intruder with a revolver, but unfortunately his wife had removed the cartridges and when the burglar attacked him the weapon was of no avail. Following a prolonged struggle, in which the florist put up a hard fight, Mr. Smith received a blow that rendered him unconscious and the assailant escaped, notwithstanding the police surrounded the block.

Various Notes.

Hundreds of out-of-town florists visited the wholesale cut flower section during the show and were cordially welcomed. There was no limit to the cordiality of the New York florists in every department of the business. The only regret expressed was that there were not a larger number to entertain.

John S. Nicholas opens his beautiful flower and fruit store in the Grand Central terminal April 18. It is said to be the most complete and attractive store of its kind in America and many members of the trade are visiting it daily to note its up-to-date appointments.

David Clarke's Sons have been busy lately with wedding and dinner decorations.

Max Schling and Alfred T. Bunyard were much in evidence at the International and covered themselves with glory and prize money, every dollar of which was well deserved.

Alfred Kottmiller was proud of securing first place and prize at the show for his shower wedding bouquet of valley and white orchids. Theo. Lang's bouquet, and, in fact, all in competition for this prize, were artistic and beautiful.

Herman Weiss and Miss Marguerite Alexander were married Tuesday evening, April 15, at the residence of the bride, 1128 Seventh avenue. The trade generally joins in good wishes and congratulations.

E. L. Lang has opened a retail store at 974 Lexington avenue, corner of Seventy-first street.

John Wilk is now representing Kennedy & Hunter.

Frank D. Hunter, who has charge of the New York branch of J. F. Noll & Co., in the Hudson Terminal building, reports a great success there.

Henry Gunther, long connected with Gunther Bros., has opened a retail store at Fifty-first street and Eighth avenue.

Downtown in New York, which means from Fourteenth street to the Battery, the seedsmen are having the season of their lives. The auction houses, too, are in full blast and a large attendance is seen every Wednesday and Friday. J. Austin Shaw.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

There has been considerable change in the market during the last few days, not only as regards the quantity and quality of the stock that is being offered but also as regards prices. Business is dull, good stock is scarce and prices are about three times what they were two weeks ago, and the end is not yet, for they will continue to rise during the week. American Beauties, for which there is a fair demand, are not up to the mark, either as to quality or quantity. The asking price ranges between $2 and $4 per dozen.

Carnations were not to be had in sufficient quantities to fill all demands. Prices on these ranged from $1 to $2 per hundred, with $3 the asking price for the picked stock, as against prices of from 25 cents to $1.25 late last month.

Valley is moving well at $4. There are lots of calla lilies on the market, averaging $8 per hundred.

Sweet peas are not so plentiful as they have been, but the demand for those coming in is good. Some excellent snapdragon is to be had at about $1.50 per dozen. With the supply of wild smilax practically at an end, the stores are also experiencing some difficulty in getting string smilax. Gardenias are plentiful.

Various Notes.

J. H. Small & Sons did the decorating for the Gridiron Club on the occasion of its annual spring dinner at Hotel Willard April 12. It was remarked that never were the decorations better. President Wilson and his cabinet were among the many guests.

Among the visitors who were in town last week were J. A. Peterson and wife, of Cincinnati, O., and C. T. Eldridge, of Danville, Va.

The number of Washingtonians attending the New York flower show greatly exceeded all expectations and all those seen by The Review correspondent were loud in its praise. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kramer, George H. Cooke, William F. Gude, Adolph Gude, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McKissick, George C. Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. William Marche, O. A. C. Oehmler, Henry Pfister, John Henry Small, Jr., David Grillbortzer, Otto Bauer, M. J. McCabe, Harry McCabe, Mrs. Beatrice Moss, Charles Scarborough and R. S. Jenkins. C. L. L.

Ashland, Ore.—Wm. G. Sander has succeeded Sander Bros.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

The Market.

Weather conditions during the latter part of the week had a somewhat bad effect on trade, but, in spite of the fact, business has been fairly good. Violets and roses have been in heavy demand. Very little is doing in flowering plants.

Various Notes.

Thomas Pattison, of Campbell avenue, is busy getting his bedding plants in shape. He has recently potted up his carnations and still keeps cutting choice flowers from his house of callas. He reports heavy funeral work during the last week.

S. H. Moore and J. McQuiggan, of Mr. Moore's firm, took in the National Flower Show. Funeral work and decorations have kept them busy all week.

James Bruce is cutting exceptionally fine Killarneys. He visited the New York show, as did also G. Amrhy, superintendent of parks.

Mr. Cromie, superintendent of trees, has a large staff of men engaged in planting elm trees on the green to take the place of the old trees which were cut down recently. He also has planted 300 Norway maples throughout the city for shade trees.

John Champion also took in the show at New York. His company reports business exceptionally good this week. They executed two large wedding decorations, one in Derby, Conn., and the other in Ansonia, Conn., and filled an order April 13 for a large wreath for the late J. P. Morgan, from the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co.

The Elm City Nursery Co. filled an order April 15 for a carload of maples for Toronto, Can. It reports spring orders as being exceptionally heavy.

Alfred Nyrens is busy replanting one of his rose houses to pink and white Killarney and a few Mrs. George Sawyer. His other houses are in full crop now. He has commenced shipping geraniums and is sending in choice sweet peas.

In Chas. Munro's windows were displayed fine plants of the new French hydrangea, Mme. Mouillere, which attracted a good deal of attention. He, also, was a visitor to the show in New York.

Alfred Osterman has had a big demand for his pansies put up in baskets of twelve. They sell readily for 35 cents per basket. M. B. F.

Vicksburg, Mich.—Ross N. Giem, who recently moved here from Kalamazoo, plans to do landscape work and grow flowers for the trade.

Mankato, Kan.—“The Kramer Greenhouse now has a covering of hail screen, the best possible insurance against a repetition of last year's smash-up,” says A. J. Kramer, the proprietor.

Jackson, Miss.—F. C. Pellegrinhy has been appointed to the position of landscape gardener in the city parks, a position that has just been created by the new commissioners. Mr. Pellegrinhy is an Englishman, with a long and thorough experience in his profession. Since coming to America he has been connected with the park departments of Birmingham and New Orleans, and of late he has been on a farm in Rankin county, Mississippi.

BOWLING

AT NEW YORK.

The bowling tournament of the National Association of Gardeners, held at Thumm's alleys, New York, April 9, brought together a large gathering of gardeners and florists. Messrs. Donaldson, Miesem and Iquey carried off the honors for the Astoria team, which won in the team tournament. Seybold won in the sweepstake contest. The scores follow:

...NEWS NOTES...

Lisbon, O.—J. W. Scott has added a new greenhouse to his range.

Elkhart, Ind.—Mrs. G. W. Pettit has discontinued her retail business.

Fennville, Mich.—Abner Miller reports good spring business in plants and seeds. The recent storm missed his plant by a half mile.

Denver, Colo.—The park board has authorized the erection of a greenhouse at the city park, to cost $25,000. Plans are in preparation now.

Columbia, Pa.—Jacob Doerrer has made preparations for the erection of another section, 50x105 feet, at his greenhouses on Cedar street, near North Third street.

Lewistown, Mont.—Luther L. Warden, proprietor of the Lewistown Greenhouses, has placed an order with a Chicago firm for the material for a new greenhouse, 100 feet long.

Mason City, Ia.—Kemble & Goodman are considering the advisability, it is said, of starting a branch store and greenhouse at Fort Dodge, Ia. The firm already has establishments in Waterloo, Boone, Centerville, Marshalltown and Oskaloosa, as well as in this city.

Mansfield, O.—E. M. and L. C. Berno, conducting the Berno Floral Co., have sold their greenhouses to E. M. Lintolt, of Muncie, Ind., and Paul Kopanka, of Columbia City, Ind., who have taken possession. The name of the plant has been changed to the Mansfield Floral Co. E. M. Berno, who has been in the business eighteen years, will retire to his summer home at Woodville Gardens. L. C. Berno will continue to operate the Berno retail shop.

FLOOD NOTES

Paulding, O.—Fred Hawkins lost one greenhouse, which was blown to the ground.

Middletown, O.—N. O. Selby's flood loss reached $2,000, confined principally to his store.

Beardstown, Ill.—Frank Bros. suffered some damage in their greenhouses after the flood as a result of the cold. Stock outdoors was a complete loss.

Sanborn, N. Y.—C. F. Treichler has about 1,500 first-class White Perfection rooted cuttings, which he offers to trade sufferers in the flood district, preferably some one who lost all of his stock.

Ironton, O.—The furniture of numerous families, several horses, wagons, the city ambulance and some of the property of the fire department were deposited by the flood on the range of Weber Bros.

Chillicothe, O.—The greenhouses of Louis Elsass were in the worst of the flood and suffered considerable damage. What the water did not completely wreck was ruined by mud from three inches to a foot deep.

Augusta, Ky.—Victor H. Thomas & Bro. suffered loss to the extent of $1,000, having two acres of sweet peas covered by from two to four feet of driftwood, their hotbed plants destroyed and their carnation house flooded.

Marietta, O.—The Marietta Floral Co., which lost the contents of its store, the water rising to six feet above the second floor, had recently equipped the place with new fixtures throughout. While a portion of its plant was under water, its loss there was not great, as the location is on a hillside. Norval Kiger's store was under water above the second floor, stock and fixtures being ruined. The greenhouses are 200 feet above the flood level.

OBITUARY.

C. W. Gurney.

C. W. Gurney, president of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., of Yankton, S. D., died March 25. He was well known in the eastern part of the state as an active figure in politics as well as a nurseryman.

REMEDY FOR PRIMULA POISON.

I recently noted, in reading the Dayton correspondence in The Review, that one of the florists of that city was having trouble with obconica poisoning. Several years ago, before I knew the plant was poisonous, I had a serious time with what our family physician thought was poison, but as it was winter, I was doubtful as to the correctness of the physician's opinion. Just then, however, I read an item in The Review about obconica poisoning. I told the physician, but none of his remedies did any good. Then a neighbor told me she used common copperas water as a remedy. I tried it and found it entirely effective. I have never seen any reference to this remedy in The Review, so I am telling my experience in the hope that it may be of benefit to some one in the trade.

WHAT city is anxious to tackle the job of going New York one better in the matter of the Fourth National Flower Show? Don't all speak at once, please!

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

SIR TREVOR LAWRENCE has retired from the presidency of the Royal Horticultural Society, London, after twenty-eight years in the chair. He has reached the age of 82. Few men have done more for horticulture.

WASHINGTON retail florists are getting their Hudson river violets by parcel post, packed in eleven-pound boxes. With a special delivery stamp affixed, the service is said to be much better than that given by the express companies.

W. F. GUDE, who is the accredited minister plenipotentiary of the S. A. F. at Washington, spent considerable time at the National Flower Show trying to find out what the trade wants in the present tariff revision. Nothing doing. For every man who had any definite ideas and wants a certain thing there was a man who wants the exact opposite.

EVERY little while The Review receives a letter from some florist who finds himself compelled to compete with a wealthy resident of the town who is selling the surplus product of his private conservatories, and without much regard to market value. Frequently the florist pays
 The Review the compliment of asking it to put an end to such unfair competition.
 Unfortunately, The Review is without influence among millionaires, except with the few millionaire florists. Some day someone may devise a means by which rich amateurs may be prevented from competing with none too wealthy florists, but it is a pure waste of breath to talk on the subject; millionaires are proverbially deaf except when money talks.

ANOTHER RECORD.

Week after week The Review is breaking records with its classified plant ads. The business carried in this department this season is far exceeding the best records of other years. In this issue the Classified ads fill fifteen solid pages and run far onto the sixteenth page. It beats last week's record by over a page and last year's best record by over two pages.

It should be borne in mind that in The Review Classified department there are no free reproductions of display advertisements—every ad is charged for at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line each insertion.

Also, these little Classified liners can not, in the nature of things, be individually solicited—they come in of the advertisers' own accord, because they have been found to pay, and pay big.

WORK THAT COUNTS.

It is results that count; no matter how hard a man, or a newspaper, may try, it is what is accomplished that establishes value. Like this:

We are more than pleased with what The Review has done for us; we have no words strong enough to use in praising the one paper for our trade.—Charles Werner & Son, Shelbyville, Ind.,
 April 7, 1913.

Werner & Son have used Classified ads. The strength of these busy little liners is shown by the fact that the nearly sixteen pages of them that are appearing each issue are sent in practically without solicitation; they come in from people who have used them before with satisfaction.

FLOOD SUFFERERS' RELIEF.

The Chicago Florists' Club will be glad to receive any information regarding fellow florists who have lost from the recent floods and storms.

The club has a committee in the field investigating the needs of such cases and will arrange to help all in their power. The reporting of the cases will lead to prompt investigation and such help as is possible being extended.

All florists have some surplus stock, or perhaps some building material, and this, with a little cash, will no doubt help many a man who has lost all he had to regain his feet. Any information concerning those in need of help should be sent to Edward C. Toepel, secretary, Chicago Florists' Club, at Morton Grove, Ill. Guy W. French, President.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A decided change came over the local market last week, stock becoming scarcely plentiful enough to supply the demand, a complete reversal of the preceding week, when dealers were at their wits' ends to find an outlet.
 The change came so suddenly that most buyers, as well as the wholesalers, were caught unawares. Weather conditions probably had more to do with the change than anything else. After a number of dark, cold days stock began to shorten up April 10. Within twenty-four hours there was not enough stock to go around. There was hardly anything that was not affected and roses as well as carnations, sweet peas, etc., were short of the demand. Prices naturally stiffened sharply. The situation would not have been so bad had it come a week before, when shipping was tied up, but hardly had the express companies reported that all points were open before the shortage set in.

Beauties had an especially strong run and, though plentiful earlier in the week, there were not enough to fill the orders that swamped the market April 11, 12 and 13. Quality was likewise affected by the change of weather and the buds were of poor color. Other roses also were scarce and only Killarnies could be had in any quantity.
 Carnations were even more scarce than the roses, inasmuch as they are in light crop for the present. Brighter weather April 14 and 15, however, gave the wholesalers hope for an easier market and stock was not so scarce as the preceding days. Sweet peas are not arriving in so large numbers as formerly and, although there have been enough good ones to go around, they

PRIZE-WINNING STOCK

WE ARE NOTED FOR THE HIGH QUALITY OF ALL OUR FLOWERS

WE have built our business on three factors: 1st, the square deal, giving everybody his due; 2d, the quality of our stock, knowing that it is not what you pay but what you receive that determines value; 3d, maintaining the best facilities skill, experience and money can provide for the satisfactory handling of stock and orders. It has paid us because it has paid our customers to deal with us.

SNAPDRAGON

These are extra fancy, Killarney Pink, and we can supply in quantity. Try some and you will find they are ready sellers and that you can use them at a good profit to yourself.

FANCY ROSES

It is a fact you easily can prove that, length for length, our Roses carry larger and finer heads than any others on this market. We have a full line—can fill your orders for the popular new yellow roses in quantity.

SWEET PEAS

This is the time of year when you can do a fine corsage business with our fancy, long-stemmed sweet peas. We have long-stemmed sweet peas in very large quantity—can fill orders for thousands. The longest stemmed, brightest colored, special fancy Blanche Ferry and the new winter-blooming Spencer. You can't get Spencers anywhere else. We are the only source of supply in this market, so why not order direct?

CARNATIONS

This is prize-winning stock. The buyers have found that it pays, at this season, especially, to order the best. We give value. The more you think about it the more certain you are to order Carnations of us.

EASTER LILIES

You can get here all the Lilies you need, for work and for decorations. We have arranged for a large crop, the first of which is just coming in. A steady supply.

brought better prices than heretofore. The pink peas far outnumbered all other colors combined. Spanish iris has made its appearance and some excellent stock is being shipped in, but as yet the supply is irregular and what comes in is readily sold to the city buyers, who are always on the lookout for novelties. The usual spring demand for valley has taken care of all the stock that local growers can furnish and the prices obtained are consistent with the spirited market. Stocks are in good supply, while the first shipment of gladioli has been reported by one wholesale house. Violets are about done for this season and bulbous stock is not in large supply.

Greens have not changed, except that ferns are irregular, but there is more wild smilax on the market than for the last fortnight, due to the fact that the southern shippers are again able to get their shipments through.

In Englewood.

This season's building operations in Englewood will cause the removal of two of the old-time florists of that suburb. The store occupied by William W. Weil, at the corner of Sixty-third street and Harvard avenue, will soon be torn down, along with some neighboring buildings, to make room for the erection of a large business block. Mr. Weil, therefore, has secured a five-year lease on an attractive brick store at 421 West Sixty-third street, a little less than two blocks west of his present location, and will move there about May 1. During his seven years in business at the Harvard avenue corner he has established a large trade among a desirable class of patrons, nearly all of whom undoubtedly will follow him to his new place.

George Walther's store, at Sixty-third street and Eggleston avenue, must also be vacated early in the summer, to permit rebuilding, but Mr. Walther has not yet decided whether to rent another store permanently or to find a temporary shelter and return to the old stand after a few months, when the rebuilding is completed. He has greenhouses at the family homestead, on Lowe avenue.

Club Meeting.

The attendance at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club April 10 was small, made up largely of those who were intent on putting through the selection of a certain railroad as the club's official route to the Minneapolis convention. Because of the indifference of the members it usually has been possible to lead the horse to water, but of late years it has become increasingly difficult to make him drink. This time the leading also was difficult, the St. Paul first receiving the greatest number of votes, but a second ballot resulted in the endorsement of the committee's selection, the C. & G. W. President French was for the standard route, but after the meeting sent out the following: "The transportation committee made a report recommending that the Great Western be selected as the official route to the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis next August. The recommendation was adopted by a vote of the club. The transportation commit-at the experiment station at the University of Illinois, gave an interesting talk about fertilizers and answered numerous questions. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Muncie, who promised to give another lecture at some early date.

Vaughan's Seed Store showed Canna Fire Bird, bright red, and Carl Lutz, pure yellow.

At a meeting this week the trustees decided to act in the matter of helping flood sufferers. Their official call is on another page of this issue.

Various Notes.

Chicago's representation at the National Flower Show in New York last week consisted of A. Henderson, Peter Ousem, Fred Lautenschlager, W. N. Rudd and wife, August Poehlmann, Adolph Poehlmann, Albert F. Amling and wife, and H. B. Howard. Mr. Lautenschlager was confined to his hotel for a couple of days by an attack of grip; he will remain in the east another fortnight. Mr. and Mrs. Rudd went to Boston after the show, thence to Norfolk by boat and are in Washington this week.

Charles A. Samuelson is a member of the grand jury which is investigating the alleged million-dollar voting machine fraud. Carl Cropp and Lewis H. Winterson also were drawn on the same jury, but were excused.

Tim Matchen says Peter Reinberg resumed New Orleans and Memphis shipments April 14, after two weeks' interruption by flood.

C. W. McKellar thinks the highest prices for fancy hardy cut ferns are past for this season and that Memorial day will not see the flurry of some other years.

Otto W. Frese, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., says telegraph service again is normal but that both mail and express service still are a little uncertain.

A. T. Pyfer, of the Chicago Carnation Co., notes an unusual call for red carnations.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says a short supply and stiff prices are not at all to his liking; he finds the best total sales come when there is plenty of stock, even if prices are lower..

The death is reported, April 8, of Mrs. Roden, mother of Mrs. H. Wittbold and of Miss Clara Roden, who is a member of Mr. Wittbold's store staff. Miss Roden also is ill with rheumatism.

The Tribune April 13 had a scare head story about how the aristocrats of Hinsdale are driving Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses out of the town because of the odors and hauling. It was an interesting story, but the fact is that the people of Hinsdale look upon the greenhouses as one of the show places of the town and removal to Gregg's Station is only for business reasons.

The Market.

The railroads have made arrangements to handle the express matter and as a result stock is coming in again on schedule time. The shipping business, too, is improving each day, and before long should be back close to where it was before the rains of March 24. Business in this city and neighboring towns is brisk. It comprises orders for everything from funeral work to decorations.

The carnation supply is somewhat off, where, for the last three weeks, it has been really the mainstay of the market. All good blooms coming in are selling well. The call is strongest for white and Enchantress.

The rose supply is again normal. The offerings include some good Richmonds, Beauties and Killarneys.

Rising Eastern Market.

The cool, cloudy weather, coming when many of the eastern crops were going off, has put the market into fair shape. The disappearance of southern daffodils, not yet followed by any outdoor local stock worth mentioning, has further helped the sale of greenhouse-grown flowers. There has been an excellent shipping demand, fostered by moderate prices, realizing better average returns than at any time since Easter. The rose crop is heavy. The low grade flowers have been marketed through special quantity prices, enabling the retailers to have sales. By this term is meant newspaper or window offers of attractive prices on certain days. Carnations have slightly fallen off in quantity, the market cleaning up well, particularly on the better grades. Valley has been in good demand for the weddings. Sweet peas are eagerly sought when well done. Curiously enough, the dark weather has apparently had little effect on the cut. Cattleyas have been fine and are selling well. There is no special demand for snapdragon, although much of it is used. Easter lilies hardly can be called plentiful. Emperor from the greenhouses is quite as fine as any daffodils that have been offered this season. Fine greens, like Adiantum Farleyense, are proving quite salable.

At E. F. Hoehl's Range.

Ernest F. Hoehl's place, Sixtieth and Gibson streets, has about 20,000 square feet of glass devoted to the growing of a variety, of which mums, sweet peas and mignonette are the main crops. The Mignonette grown is a strain originated by Mr. Hoehl, which required quite a lot of his time and careful selection of the seeds to get the stock perfect. Hoehl's Giant Flowering is the name given to it. Bouvardia is also grown in the three colors, pink, white and red, and proves itself to be a good short-paying crop. Daisies in both colors look their part and show what can be done if one is careful, in selecting the wood for cutting, to take nothing but the best, as they are fine in size, color and stem. Mums, which are one of the main crops, consist of the following varieties in the newer kinds: Chrysolora, Unaka, Smith's Advance, Charles Razer and William Turner, all of which did well last season. The older varieties, such as Pacific Supreme, Chadwick, white and yellow, Major Bonaffon and Halliday, are still among the best sorts and were especially good last season. Sweet peas, which are sown in pots in the fall and are planted in the benches after the mums are done, are in fine condition. Christmas Pink is the best for early forcing. Wallacea, a fine new lavender, with fine flowers on good long stems, and Florence Denzer, for white, seem to be the best for early forcing. There has been a heavy cut from these all winter. Some bulbous stock is grown for a short crop, such as narcissi and a few of the better varieties of tulips. There is also one house of plumosus. Mr. Hoehl believes the cause of so many giganteum lilies coming short this season is due to trying to force them too quickly, as most of the short plants produce good flowers, which shows that it is not the fault of the bulb but is due to the growing.

The Market.

The market was rather crowded last week, especially with carnations, which are fine and as good stock as any on the market this season. It seems everybody has plenty of them. Several large firms had sales of both roses and carnations, supplied by home producers. One objection to these department store sales is that the public expects the retail florists to sell at the same prices and deliver. Several retailers complain about the sales, because of the extra telephone calls that bring no results. Business is all that could be expected in the cut flower line, although the weather had some effect on the trade last week, when it was cloudy and drizzling at times. The florists who are handling bedding stock have commenced to get busy, as calls are coming in fast, especially for porch boxes. The wholesalers are finding out that a glut in cut flowers is on, as every grower is cutting plenty, but the cloudy weather last week will help to hold back some of the stock.

Various Notes.

Edward Ellsworth reports that business with him has been exceptionally good, and he is more than pleased with the amount of sales for last week, the demand being general.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a great deal of funeral work last week, and made up four fine blankets that helped out.

Samuel Murray had a pretty window display of Dutch hyacinths and yellow calla lilies.

James Biggam is busy with decorations and he has plenty of orders on hand, principally basket work for table ornamentation.

The Peterson Floral Co. reports that business is picking up in the cut flower was busy last week, having a large run on out-of-town work.

Henry Kusik & Co. shipped out a lot of stock the last two weeks. The call for florists' supplies is increasing every month with this firm.

Geo. M. Kellogg-Flower & Plant Co., Inc., reports a shortage on cut flowers on account of the cloudy weather and funeral work.

The Alpha Floral Co. received a consignment of ten cases of boxwood and bay trees. It reports sales on rose bushes not as brisk as expected.

Business across the state line is only fair, and is mostly funeral work.

The Market.

The business conditions since Easter are gratifying to wholesalers as well as retailers, and owing to the dry weather those florists having stands at the public markets and the landscape gardeners in general report a marked increase in their regular sales. Weddings and funerals help to clean up the out-of-town as well as the home grown stock of cut flowers. Lilies, spiræas and Iris Hispanica are still in bloom, valley and orchids are fine, and soon the general cutting of outdoor grown Creole lilies and gladioli will take place. Outdoor roses, especially long and medium stemmed, are scarce and those in bloom have to be wired to be used in bunches. As a rule they are only fit for design work. Owing to the warm weather we enjoyed during the latter part of March, the growers started to put the more hardy kinds of greenhouse plants outside, some of them in the open air and others under latticed sheds, but the more tender plants are still kept inside on account of the extremely cool nights we have had this month.

One of the most remarkable facts brought to my notice while in New York was this: There is no valley marketed there that can compare with the valley grown in Brampton. One would think that the taste of the flower-loving public would easily call for superior valley, but fifty different stores failed to convince one that superior valley is even a known quantity so far as they are concerned.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Southwestern Market.

A week of almost sunless weather did not seem to affect the big crop of flowers that came to this market. Besides, there was a general complaint as to business in retail circles; the bad weather all the week put a damper on the transient trade. The weather also had a bad effect on the plantmen, as no work could be done outside. In keeping watch over the market last week, we saw a great glut in carnations, which our wholesalers had some trouble to dispose of at anything like a price they should bring, the quality of which was extra fine in all the Enchantress varieties. Roses were in about the same condition all week as to quantities, quality and prices. Extra fancy grades in these, though, are always in demand at the top price. Sweet peas were selling cheaply and in large lots; still there were plenty left over daily that could not be disposed of, but the latter part of the week the supply dropped off considerably and the price went up on small lots. Violets are becoming small and pale. The only thing that kept them up was the cold weather of late. A week of warm weather will put an end to them. Easter lilies and callas, too, have been in abundance. The lilies sell well, but callas are slow. A good many were dumped. Valley, daisies, candytuft, Dutch hyacinths and Von Sions are slow in demand. The demand for all kinds of greens was good all week long.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held a pleasant meeting April 10, in Odd Fellows' building. Twenty-five members were present. When the meeting opened, as neither the president nor vice-president put in an appearance, E. W. Guy, formerly president of the club, took the chair. The trustees made their report on the proposed steamer excursion. After a discussion, it was decided that a river excursion would not be advisable and that an old-fashioned picnic would be better.

Chairman R. J. Windler, of the publicity committee, made a report on the work for Easter, and added that the committee was busy with publicity for Mothers' day and Decoration day. C. B. Mundt, of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., was admitted to membership.

A vote of thanks was extended to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., and to all the exhibitors of cut flowers at the carnation meeting held last month. The secretary was instructed to write to each the vote of thanks.

Jacob Schramm, acting director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, invited the members to hold their May meeting at the garden. It was decided, in view of the light attendance at May meetings, that the club would hold its June meeting at the garden. Frank X. Gorly gave a few pointed remarks as to the good features of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, which were well received by the members. After a discussion of queries from the question box, the meeting adjourned to meet again May 8.

Various Notes.

The following suburban florists spent April 10 in the city, attending the Florists' Club meeting in the afternoon: Edwin Denker, W. E. Ogle, E. W. Guy, Geo. Madsen, F. W. Ude, Jr., Frank Vennemann and John M. Cannon.

The publicity committee of the Florists' Club and the Retail Florists' Association met Thursday, April 10, at the store of the Metropolitan Floral Co., and discussed plans for publicity for Mothers' day and Decoration day. All members were present.

Ostertag Bros. had the floral decorations at the city hall, April 12, for the installation ceremonies of the new mayor. The plants were furnished by the park department. Henry Ostertag said nearly 1,000 Beauties were used for the occasion.

F. W. Ude, Jr., is now one of the school directors at Kirkwood. A better selection could not have been made. Mr. Ude has one of the largest greenhouse plants in Kirkwood and is well liked by all his neighboring florists.

C. C. Sanders, of Sanders' Nurseries, says he is afraid this will be a bad season for nurserymen, as the weather has been against them all season. No work could be done last week, owing to the bad weather.

August Hummert, vice-president of the St. Louis Seed Co., says his firm was never as busy as it is this spring. A visit to the store found it packed with buyers and the big force busy.

Grimm & Gorly are snugly settled in their new quarters at 706 Washington avenue, just two doors west of the old store. The new store is in keeping with the rest of the big retail establishments along Washington avenue. Attractive show windows and richly furnished interior make it an attraction along this busy thoroughfare.

The Ladies' Home Circle met at the home of Mrs. J. J. Beneke, April 9, and enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. There were present besides the hostess: Mesdames Miller, Weber, Jr., Weber, Sr., Meyer, Jr., Schray, Windler, O. G. Koenig and J. L. Koenig. The next meeting takes place at the home of Mrs. A. Meyer, Jr., next month.

Prompt Attention Given to Out-of-town Orders

W. S. Wells, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, gave a talk at the club and in it urged the greenhouse men to grow orchids, as the demand for them is increasing in St. Louis every year.

Henry Berning, who is in San Antonio, Tex., with Mrs. Berning, who is sick, writes that the patient has shown little improvement since their arrival there.

Charles Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., is acting in his father's place owing to the illness of Mr. Young, who is head of the company. They had a big week in plants and seeds at the branch store on Waterman avenue. Wm. C. Young says they have been rushed to the limit all week.

Dr. William Trelease, former head director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has been appointed professor of botany in the University of Illinois. Mr. Trelease has been traveling in Europe on botanical work since leaving the garden. He succeeds T. J. Burrill. The professor is a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club.

Dr. George Moore, head director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, attended the National Flower Show in New York. Jacob Schramm was acting director in his absence.

Hugo Gross, of Kirkwood, says he received a letter from Anton Zvolanek, who was in New York last week, saying that he would be here the latter part of this week. Mr. Zvolanek will be entertained by the Kirkwood florists. The arrangements are in the hands of Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-first annual convention at Cleveland, June 24 to 26, 1913.

C. W. GURNEY, president of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., died March 25, at Yankton, S. D.

J. OLIVER JOHNSON, Chicago, rapidly is becoming a factor in the grass seed trade through his ability to get business.

W. ATLEE BURPEE has donated a 4-acre tract of land to the school board of Doylestown, Pa., for a children's playground.

THE Holland growers say a full crop of hyacinth bulbs this season is an impossibility, following the severe frosts that came after considerable growth had been made.

THE proposed changes in the rates of duty on seeds, as printed on page 90 of last week's issue of The Review, appear to meet with the general approval of those who import seeds, but are not in the interest of those who are growing in this country the varieties on which the rates are reduced.

THE trade will be interested in the letter on the tariff sent to the democratic manager by James McHutchison & Co.,
New York, which appears on another page of this issue. The full text of the proposed law as it affects seeds and bulbs appeared on page 90 of last week's issue of The Review, while the paragraphs concerning nursery stock were on page 86, accompanied by comparisons with the present law.

IN the new tariff bill now before Congress the old phraseology is followed, leaving hyacinth bulbs among those not specially provided for, on which the rate is 50 cents per thousand. This amounts to not much over five per cent and many seedsmen who are large importers are still of the opinion that it merely was a slip of the pen that made the rate possible. However, it seems to be to everyone's advantage to keep the rate low, except the government's, so why should we worry?

ALARM IN CALIFORNIA.

Conditions in the central California seed growing district are serious. This has been the driest season in many years and the long hoped for late rains, that usually follow a dry winter, have so far proved to be light showers of little real value. It is now so late that even should there be a good rain the damage already done could not be fully repaired.

The rainfall in the Santa Clara valley has been about five inches, which is only one-third of the average. Those growers who have water available are irrigating, and these may obtain fair crops, but the bulk of the acreage must depend upon rain alone.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that the rainfall of the preceding winter was also much below the average and there is little reserve water in the ground. It is reported that a seed grower who rented a large acreage from the Stanford estate at Palo Alto has abandoned his lease after having gone to the expense of plowing and seeding.

In some places sweet peas are coming into flower prematurely, before having made even normal growth for this date.

In the Hollister section the rainfall has been about six inches, which is less than half the average. The soil is moist to a depth of only five or six inches and this can hardly be made to carry the crops to maturity, even with the best tillage.

Hope of further rain has not been entirely abandoned, but it is now so late in the season that the chances of having a soaking rain, such as is needed, are slim indeed.

INTERSTATE SEED BILL AGAIN.

The bill to prohibit the interstate shipment of impure seeds has been re-introduced in the senate by Senator Gronna, of North Dakota. It is the same bill that failed of passage last session and provides that the shipment for seeding purposes from one state, territory or district of the United States into another state, territory or district, of seeds of alfalfa, barley, Canadian blue grass, Kentucky blue grass, awnless brome grass, buckwheat, clover, field corn, Kafir corn, meadow fescue, flax, oats, millet, orchard grass, rape, redtop, rye, sorghum, timothy, wheat, or any other cereal or grass seeds, or any vegetable seeds or flower seeds, or mixtures of seeds containing any of such seeds as one of the principal component parts, which are adulterated or unfit for seeding purposes under the provisions of this act, is to be prohibited. The Secretary of Agriculture shall make such rules and regulations as will prevent the shipment of such seed from one state, territory or district into another state, territory or district. This act shall not operate to prohibit the shipment of seeds for the purpose of cleaning them before offering them for sale, but such shipments shall be made in accordance with and be subject to such regulations as the Secretary of Agriculture may deem necessary to prevent the misuse of this privilege; and the secretary may, if he considers it advisable, demand of the owner or consignee a bond that such seed, before it is offered for sale, will be cleaned to the standard of purity specified in this act or such standard as may subsequently be established by the Secretary of Agriculture under the provisions of this act; and such bonded seed shall not be released until the screenings and other refuse shall have been disposed of in a manner prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Sec. 2. Seed shall be considered adulterated within the meaning of this act—

ALL MEN ARE DIFFERENT.

Take two men and a stream of water. One will fish in it, while the other will make it turn a saw mill. The first is simply a lazy man.

A lazy man isn't any worse than a dead man—but he takes up more room.

The other fellow is the worker, and the successful man. When he locates himself he makes the best of his circumstances. He works the stream for all it's worth and gets more real joy out of it than the fellow who fishes for suckers.

The florist who works Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs will get the same joy as the fellow with the saw mill. He must work—not merely plant the bulbs and let inexperienced help take care of them—he must watch them himself, or have a reliable man do it for him. Horseshoe Brand Giganteum and Formosum will satisfy the demands of any grower for 1913 deliveries. Send for the Book of Bulbology—just out.

DISEASED RADISH LEAVES.

I am sending you a sample of radish leaves, which show the marks of some disease. In growing radishes here, in northeastern Illinois, I am greatly troubled with this disease. Please tell me what I can use as a remedy. W. K.

The disease of the radish leaves is due to a fungus commonly called downy mildew, Peronospora parasitica. Practically all cultivated cruciferæ are more or less subject to it, and at times it becomes quite destructive to radishes and other crucifers in the greenhouse.
Generally this fungus is associated with another known as white rust, Cystopus candidus.

The fungus appears as white, downy patches on the under side of the leaf; these patches increase in size until in a few days the entire surface of the leaf is covered. The disease spreads rapidly when once introduced into the greenhouse and, unless preventive measures are promptly applied, the crop suf-stroyed.

Repeated spraying with Bordeaux mixture, 5-5-50, will hold the disease in check. A solution of potassium sulphide, three ounces to ten gallons of water, is also to be recommended. It is important that all diseased plants should be burned; otherwise the resting spores, escaping, will endanger other crops.

HIAWATHA. The flowers are single, and are of a deep, intense crimson shade with the petals shading to a pure white base. Flowers very freely. Extra strong, 2-year, field-grown, flowering plants. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $18.00.

LADY GAY. A seedling from the popular Crimson Rambler, which it resembles in habit and general effect. The flowers are of a delicate cherry-pink color, which fades to soft white. Strong plants, field grown, 5 to 6 feet, 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

WEDDING BELLS. A seedling from the Crimson Rambler. The most beautiful Rose yet produced. The flowers are white with the upper half of the petals soft pink. Fine for forcing. Extra hardy. Extra strong, field-grown, flowering plants, 3-4 ft., 10, $1.50; 100, $25.00.

Flower of Fairfield

The Everblooming Crimson Rose

This variety is a sport from the beautiful Crimson Rambler, is similar to it, more brilliant and lasting than any other. Flower of Fairfield is a favorite grower and free bloomer. It begins to bloom early in the spring and continues until late in the autumn, rightly termed "perpetual bloomer." Bundle of 5, $1.50; 100, $25.00.

VEILCHENBLAU (Violet-Blue). Blue flowers of this new rose are in large clusters, are semi-double, medium size and keep in bloom a long time; 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

Rambler, Etc. Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses

Everblooming Bush, or Baby Rambler Roses

WINE SEIMETH. A white Baby Rose, larger and better flowers than the type. An important fact is that it has the true rose perfume in a degree; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

DOROTHY. The same in habit as Rambler, but the color of the flowers is similar to Dorothy Perkins. Dorothy, when planted out, is perpetually from spring until fall. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

M. H. CUTBUSH. A grand addition to the Baby Rambler class. Intense crimson and exceptionally free flowering; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

ROBERT LEVAVASSEUR (The Baby Rambler). A dwarf-growing everblooming Crimson Rambler. Blooms when a small plant and clusters of flowers as large as a Crimson Rambler; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses

Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses are more popular every year; while they are the perpetuals, with slight rest in winter they carry over in shape and give a wealth of flowers through the summer months and in the fall till frost checks them.

Our new flowering collection is the latest in this beautiful and increasing class and are two-year-old field-grown.

AN BEAUTY. Almost too well known for description, but as popular as twenty years ago. Rosy carmine shaded salmon; flowers large and very floriferous. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

BROWN. Creamy white. Each, 75 cts.; bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50. Coppery yellow, overspread with rose. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

ETESTOUT. Bright satin rose, lighter center, large, full and free. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

Originated by the raiser of Etolles. Perpetual flowering. Vigorous grower. The blooms are very full with broad petals, full and globular form; shrimp pink at the ends of petals, center coral red or salmon shaded with chrome yellow. Very free. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

LIBERTY. Very free flowering, bright crimson scarlet, of an even shade throughout; floriferous. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

DEAN HOLE. Large, full flowers; perfectly formed; large petals, silvery carmine shaded salmon; very distinct and free flowering and a beautiful rose for all purposes. Awarded Gold Medal, N. R. S. of England. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

GRUSS AN TEPLITZ. No rose in commerce can compare with this as a bedder. It is a perfect sheet of richest crimson scarlet all summer. A strong, vigorous grower. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

HARRY KIRK. New Irish, yellow Tea Rose. The blooms are large, full, with large, smooth petals of great substance; the form is perfect, the buds long and elegant. Color deep sulphur yellow, passing to a lighter shade at the edges of the petals. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

JULIET (Novelty.) This, perhaps, is the most distinct rose ever introduced for color, which is unique. It is of the same type as Soleil d'Or, Rayon d'Or and other Austrian Briers and their hybrids. It was introduced by Wm. Paul & Son in 1910. These types require very little pruning; simply remove dead and useless wood. The following is the raiser's description: "Outside of petals old gold, interior rich rosy red, changing to deep rose as the flowers expand. A very distinct and attractive novelty, blooming both in summer and autumn. Large and full, of powerful and delicious fragrance; most beautiful." Each, 80 cts.; 5, $2.25; 100, $40.00.

KAISERIN AUGUSTA VICTORIA. An almost pure white rose. Shaded a beautiful primrose. Fine for indoor or outdoor summer blooming. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

KILLARNEY. This is a grand rose for either indoor or outdoor cultivation; is a strong grower, and the blooms, which are of a beautiful pink, are borne in great profusion. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

WHITE KILLARNEY. This white queen of the Irish roses excels any other of its class. The color is pure white. White Killarney, like its prototype, is unusually hardy and without protection has stood severe winters as far north as Boston. Bundle of 5, $1.25; 100, $20.00.

LADY HILLINGDON. Deep orange yellow; medium size; long and pointed bud. A beautiful rose for all purposes, also a good forcer. Bundle of 5, $1.75; 100, $30.00.

MADAME ABEL CHATENAY. Carmine rose, shaded salmon pink. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MAMAN COCHET. The best of all roses for summer flowering and cutting.

MAMAN COCHET (Pink). Color a clear, rich pink, changing to silvery rose; very double and fragrant. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MAMAN COCHET (White). A sport from the above, with all its characteristics; color a beautiful snow white, at times tinted with the faintest suggestion of blush, the same as is often found in the Bride. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MILDRED GRANT. Cream, with a faint blush of pale rose. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MME. JULES GROLEZ. A beautiful satiny china-rose color, very bright and attractive. A distinct and pretty rose, which should be planted extensively. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MME. RAVARY. Buds golden yellow, open flowers nankeen yellow. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MOLLY SHARMAN-CRAWFORD. Large, full flower; color delicate eau-de-Nil, which, as the flower expands, becomes dazzling white. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MRS. AARON WARD. Indian yellow, occasionally washed salmon rose; very large, full elongated flowers; very free. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

PRESIDENT CARNOT. Almost pure white rose, shading to soft pink, very distinct and excellent for indoor or outdoor summer growing. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE. Large and quite full; outer petals superb rosy flesh, with the reflex petals of a slightly lighter tint. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

RAYON D'OR (Novelty). One of Pernet-Ducher's greatest hybrids. Cadmium-yellow as the bloom begins to open, toning to sunflower-yellow when fully expanded. Fine, bronze-green foliage, glossy and absolutely immune from the attacks of mildew. Flowers large, full, of fine, globular form; superb. Each, 75 cts.; 5, $3.25; 100, $60.00.

RICHMOND. The well-known red rose of commerce. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

ROSE, ETOILE DE FRANCE. Superb crimson-red velvet, the center of the bloom vivid cerise red. The queen of the everblooming red roses. The most free-blooming and vigorous red rose ever introduced. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

BRITTLE-STEMMED AND SLEEPY.

I have some acres of outside carnations for cutting. I am much troubled by brittleness of the stems and the flowers fade unusually early; yet the plants grow vigorously and splendidly. Here, in the vicinity of Los Angeles, Cal., there are ocean breezes day after day and my place is generally free from frost throughout the year. The soil is a heavy sand-loam. Please tell me what is the cause of my trouble.

S. M.

The most probable cause of the brittleness of the stems and the sleepy condition of the flowers soon after opening is overfeeding. Try an application of gypsum or land plaster and cut down a little on the fertilizer. H. R. R.

PASADENA, CAL.

Spring Flower Show.

The eighth annual spring flower show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society opened April 10 in the big tent on the Maryland hotel grounds. Mayor William Thum and Rev. Chas. H. Scott were the speakers of the occasion. The weather, although rather warm, was perfect, everything contributing to make the event a delightful one. The attendance on the opening afternoon was quite satisfactory in spite of the warmth. The cut flowers, however, did not fare so well and by evening many wilted blooms were apparent.

As usual, prizes were only for schools, private growers and amateurs. Nevertheless, the exhibits of commercial growers were decidedly creditable, and without them the show would have looked scant indeed.

Commercial Exhibits.

Certificates of merit were awarded the following commercial displays:

Howard & Smith, for wonderful showing of flowering and foliage plants, occupying the entire east side of the tent and including the new red Cherokee rose, Ramona, which received special mention.

The Orchid, for display of carnations, pink, red, white and variegated.

Campbell Seed Store, 148 West Colorado street, for exhibit of seeds, bulbs and garden utensils. Planting tables, telling when and what to plant, which were given to all interested inquirers, proved popular.

George F. Nilsson, 425 West Colorado street, for display of cyclamens. A number of varieties were shown, each blooming profusely.

J. Dietrich, for display of roses.

Germain Seed Co., for sweet peas, iris, tulips, narcissi and various other cut flowers. This display also included packages of seeds of all kinds.

Theodore Payne, for native plants.

Los Angeles Flower Market, for table of tulips. These were all of one variety and formed a bright spot of red that attracted many an eye.

Mrs. W. S. Laurie, 280 West Montana street, for bulbous cut flowers.

Mrs. Laurie was caught rather between seasons and considering the consequent scarcity of stock, decorated a most attractive booth.

The Clemence Nurseries, 544 North Catalina avenue, for bedding plants and ferns. This display occupied a large space along the north wall. All plants were in pots, but so arranged as to give a correct imitation of the beds as they would appear if planted out.

Robert Pegg, of the Mentor Nursery, 25 South Mentor avenue, for large general display of foliage and flowering plants in great variety.

John H. Teekamp, 191 South Vernon avenue, for potted tulips interspersed with potted hyacinths.

The Nippon Nursery, East Orange Grove and Hill avenues, for decorative pot plants, both foliage and flowering. Several rare specimens of Japanese extraction were included in this exhibit.

Various Notes.

A large vase of Ulrich Brunner roses from Miller's Rose Nursery, 329 North Mentor avenue, attracted much attention and Beauties, with stems averaging over sixty inches, excited the admiration of all.

Miss Sadie A. Thomas, who specializes in chrysanthemums, was represented by a tastefully decorated basket of California poppies and other wild flowers.

The school displays went a long way toward making the show a success. In fact, if it had not been for these, much trouble would have been experienced in filling the space. Undoubtedly much of the seeming scarcity was caused by the fact that spring flowers occupy but little space compared with fall flowers. This resulted in a more open appearance than was seen at the show in the autumn, although the number of exhibitors was about the same.

As usual, the exhibit of H. E. Huntington occupied the center of the hall. It consisted of immense specimen palms and a few beautifully grown pots of adiantum.

Worthy of mention was a beautiful display of flowering plants grouped near the entrance and staged by Mrs. S. W. Allerton from her private collection.

Two tables of cacti in dozens of different forms attracted much interest and elicited considerable comment from the curious. A. C. B.

The Market.

The feature of the week was the sudden disappearance of daffodils from the market. These have been arriving in large quantities and they disappeared so rapidly that retailers were taken by surprise. The check given the early varieties by the recent cold snap brought the two sections together, Emperor and Golden Spur being on the market at practically the same time. In other lines of bulbous stock there is plenty so far, freesias, tulips, ixias and iris filling the bill. Roses and carnations are fine now, with plenty of each to go around. Orchids are scarce on some days, on other days plentiful, but the demand is also erratic. A few begonias, gloxinias and other similar stock help out with the plants, while there are numbers of Easter lilies and spiræas still to be had.

Various Notes.

One of the later additions to the list of cut flower growers for this market is J. Bridgford, of Eagle Rock, who handles a lot of good bulbous and other stock. At the time of my visit there was a fine show of Emperor daffodils and several good tulips. But the thing that appealed to a bulb lover most, perhaps, was a grand lot of Lilium rubrum in the second year. These were throwing up immense, strong growths, many of them just flattening out for flower, showing that the rich Eagle Rock soil suits this lily well. Besides the most popular roses for cutting, Mr. Bridgford is trying out most of the novelties and his rose grounds will soon be a mass of bloom. He has one rose, said to be an especially good red, which he has named The Angelus, and I hope to see and report on this later. It is surely a magnificent grower. An unusual sight in southern California is a good breadth of herbaceous peonies and this is one of the plants Mr. Bridgford is experimenting with. The plants are healthy and some of them will be in bloom by the time these notes appear. Two favorites here are Jules Elie and Festiva Maxima. A new greenhouse and lath house are being erected, but the recent heavy wind got in its work on the latter and blew part of it out of shape. In a little over two years Mr. Bridgford has made a fine showing and he will soon be a power to be reckoned with.

J. Mieuli, of C. C. Navlet Co., San Jose, was married March 30 and has been making a honeymoon trip, visiting this city, among others. He reports business good.

C. E. Morton and several others in the trade took a round trip to Long Beach and Wilmington, calling on Charles Brazee at the latter place and on Herbert Morton at Long Beach. Mr. Morton reports business good for the season, though falling off a little as the tourists leave. At Mr. Brazee's the tulips were grand, the many fine varieties being now at their best. The trip, taken in Mr. Morton's new Buick, was exceedingly enjoyable.

Trade is brisk with Morris Golden-son and he has lots of fine stock. The orders for the funeral of one well known business man in the town totaled seventy-three pieces, many of them of an elaborate character.

Business keeps up well at the Los Angeles flower market. The number of daffodils handled here this season totaled around 750,000.

The H. N. Gage Co. is receiving fine stock now from the Montebello ranch in considerable variety. The stocks and ranunculus are especially good.

Polder & Groen are cutting heavily on good snapdragons. Their forget-me-nots in pots are also pretty and sell well. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The spring avalanche of flowers has arrived. Lilac, both purple and white, is now at its best and is a good selling article. Spanish iris, in a host of colors, many of them new to this coast, is also in big demand. Late flowering outside-grown tulips are making a much bigger showing than the earlier inside-grown stock. Fruit blossoms, sweet peas and late flowering daffodils help to swell the showing, which, owing to the favorable weather conditions, is the best ever seen in San Francisco. Most of the hyacinths are over and the violets are getting fewer daily. Inside roses have gotten over the setback of last month and the spring crop is well under way. Carnations could not be improved upon and the prices are low throughout. Maidenhair ferns and asparagus are feeling the effects of the warmer weather and the growers are beginning to be more prodigal with the sizes of the bunches sent to the retailers. Business, however, is not as flourishing as we should like to see it and with the exception of funeral work there is little doing.

Various Notes.

The California Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting April 7, at Native Sons' hall. There was a large attendance and a pleasant time for everyone.

The planting of trees and various shrubs at the Panama Pacific Exposition site is going on at a lively rate under the supervision of John McLaren and assistants.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The fine spring weather seems to have stimulated business, for trade in all lines is good and sales above the average. Carnations are of fine quality, and, though some misguided individuals endeavor to increase their output by advertising cut prices, the majority of the best stores are selling at 75 cents per dozen and handling just as many flowers as usual. Daffodils are plentiful, but still good blooms bring good prices. Roses are moving satisfactorily and some fine stock is offered. The small flowered gladioli make a pleasing variety and are being used up for decorations. Callas are more plentiful than usual and are selling well. Pot plants are not much in evidence, but some roses, well grown and flowered, are attractive.

Various Notes.

The Seattle Florists' Club gave a dance April 2 for the benefit of the flood sufferers. The committee in charge of the benefit included Felix Rosaia, Joseph Stuber, Frank Bell, Carl Melby, T. B. Pritchard and Thomas Wylie.

H. B. Slauson has a house of Bruners coming into crop and it is a fine sight. The second year of these plants in solid benches evidently is profitable.

Mrs. Holze now has an assistant in the store of the Queen City Floral Co. The retail department of the business has improved since the completion of the new building.

The florists' bowling team in the city league has completed its series, with one victory to its credit.

Lambert E. Pedersen, of the East Seattle Floral Co., has been confined with a serious attack of lumbago.

The Market.

The weather in the last few days has undergone a sudden change, which has brought the stock out wonderfully. Carnations are showing the effects plainly. Enchantress carnations, especially, are soft and prove to be poor keepers; the other varieties are not affected to that degree. The roses are producing a heavy cut. Maids, Brides, Richmonds, Carnots and Killarneys are the heaviest producers. The local demand has held up well, and the out-of-town wholesale trade is constantly demanding choice stock. There is not much demand for carnations among the wholesalers, however, as there seems to be a good local supply at the different towns. Violets are on their last legs; the single ones are extremely scarce, but double varieties are more plentiful. Sweet peas are rapidly replacing them and are of unusually fine types, with long stems. There is a general scarcity of blooming plants, with hydrangeas and rambles as the principal stock. The florists' windows are showing a variety of cherry and apple blossoms, with a fine effect.

WHITE LORRAINE BEGONIA.

Is there a white Gloire de Lorraine begonia on the market? Last fall we sent for some 2½-inch Lorraine begonias and in the lot there happened to be a white one. It grows a great deal like the pink, but we believe it has more leaves than the pink, which we do not think is a bad fault. If you can give us any hints on propagating we shall appreciate your help, as we do not seem to have any success with Lorraines. M. S.

There is a white Lorraine begonia, not so much in demand as the pink one, but an equally good grower. There is no great difficulty in the propagation of Lorraines if you have a good bottom heat of 75 to 80 degrees, if the sand is well drained, allowing the water to pass through freely, and if you keep the cuttings or leaves shaded. Leaf cuttings can be put in any time from the beginning of December until the end of March. Cut off a piece of the leaf stalk with each leaf. After the end of March and until June, plants which have been rested a little and pruned back will give plenty of nice cuttings, which should root without trouble in a warm propagating bench. You should try Begonia Glory of Cincinnati another season; it is superior to Lorraine, and the leaves are more easily propagated. Always use well matured leaves for propagating. If not hard they are sure to rot off. C. W.

TO ERADICATE WILD OXALIS.

Do you know of anything that will kill the plant of wild oxalis as well as the bulb? We find considerable trouble in getting rid of it. It grows in abundance under the greenhouse benches. L. H.

Plants under the benches can be destroyed by watering with boiling water, or water containing one of the weed killers. Water containing potash or salt will also eradicate them. In pots they are troublesome and here the aforementioned remedies can not, of course, be tried. I do not know of anything but hand weeding which will be of avail in such cases. C. W.

SCALE ON BAY TREES.

What is the best way to clean off scale from my bay trees? W. H. D.

Lay the bay trees on the floor and syringe them vigorously and thoroughly with a solution of Sulpho-tobacco soap, the solution being composed of one ounce of the soap to one gallon of water. Give this treatment once a week for several weeks, and unless it is an unusually obstinate case the plants should soon show improvement. In preparing the soap solution, it is best to use hot water to dissolve the soap, but of course the solution must not be applied to the plants until it is cool. W. H. T.

Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THERE is complaint that the new classification largely increases freight rates in southern territory on plants completely crated or boxed.

L. C. STARK, vice-president of Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., was in Chicago last week in conference with the Taylor-Critchfield Co., which handles the Stark advertising.

A LARGE importer suggests that admission free of duty be limited to "forest tree coniferous seedlings" and that it be further limited to those 3 years old or less, or those eighteen inches high or less.

TIMOTHY J. MANEY, of Geneva, N. Y., has been engaged by the Iowa Experiment Station as horticultural expert to conduct experiments with a view to determining and demonstrating the best orchard methods. He will have his headquarters at Council Bluffs.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the fourth section application of M. P. Washburn, railroad agent, to cancel the present commodity rates on trees and shrubs from Chase and Huntsville, Ala., to eastern cities and to permit the application of the lower class rates now in effect.

It develops that the customs authorities are holding up for investigation a number of entries as evergreen seedlings, which are free of duty, where the merchandise appears to be such conifers as the trade ordinarily propagates by other means to insure the stock coming true to type.

THE trade will be interested in the letter on the tariff sent to the democratic manager by James McHutchison & Co., New York, which appears on another page of this issue. The full text of the proposed law as it affects seeds and bulbs appeared on page 90 of last week's issue of The Review, while the paragraphs concerning nursery stock were on page 86, accompanied by comparisons with the present law.

E. W. KIRKPATRICK, of McKinney, Tex., an ex-president of the American Association of Nurserymen, was at Chicago last week to attend the first national conference on marketing and farm credits. He was appointed a member of a committee to confer with the government in the matter of establishing a bureau of effective marketing, under which the producer and consumer will deal directly with one another.

DANSVILLE slowly is drying out after the flood that swept the valley. Following the cloudburst the dam went out and the usually peaceful little creek cut an entirely new channel for itself, directly through the properties of several nurserymen. Large quantities of stock were washed out and the rush of waters down the hillsides cut great gullies through the fertile fields. The land is just getting back to a point where one can get on it and it will require a great deal of work to put things back as they were.

THERE appears to be a decided difference of opinion as to the necessity or even desirability of keeping the duty on imported rose plants at 4 cents each in the new tariff law. It amounts to a full 100 per cent on some of the varieties that are imported in considerable quantity. The tariff committee of the A. A. N. claimed at Washington that the protection is needed, but some of the seed houses that handle European grown roses assert that the rate is not justified.

PARCEL POST INSPECTION.

Representative Baker, of California, has introduced in the House a bill to provide for the inspection of any parcel sent by mail which contains fruits, plants, trees, shrubs, nursery stock, grafts, scions, peach pits, cotton seed equipped for such inspection and requests, through the regularly appointed fruit inspectors, that the postal officers apprise said fruit inspectors of the presence of such parcels. It shall also be unlawful for any postmaster or postal clerk to deliver such parcel until it is released by such regularly appointed fruit inspector, who certifies that it is free from injurious insects or injurious fungi. In case there is no inspector at the place of delivery, then such parcel must be sent by the postmaster or postal clerk to the county seat to be inspected. In this case, immediately after inspection, the parcel shall be carefully rewrapped and remailed to the consignee.

NURSEYRMYEN WIN SUIT.

A suit instituted by Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., against the Erie Railroad Co., to secure the payment of damages for the loss of a shipment of trees, has been decided in favor of the nurserymen. After listening all day to the evidence in the case, the jury required only about five minutes to reach a decision, and returned a verdict of $1,800.50 in favor of the plaintiffs.

In April, 1908, Bobbink & Atkins had several carloads of shade trees shipped from Hoboken to East Rutherford, via the Erie railroad. It appears that the railroad company, instead of utilizing box cars for making the shipment, according to the usual method, used open gondola cars, and as the trees were wrapped in burlaps, sparks from a passing locomotive set fire to the inflammable material while the cars were on a siding at East Rutherford, and the trees were destroyed. The claim was for $1,361.50 for the loss of the trees, besides interest from the date of the occurrence. The interest is included in the verdict of the jury.

PLANT QUARANTINE DECISION.

The Federal horticultural board recommended that regulation 5 of the rules and regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act, published in Circular No. 41, revised, office of the secretary, be amended by the addition of the following:

Permits for the entry of nursery stock or other plants and plant products of any grower or exporter may be refused, and existing permits may be canceled, on proof that such grower or exporter has knowingly shipped into the United States any nursery stock, or other plants and plant products, the importation of which is forbidden by the Secretary of Agriculture under the authority conferred by section 7 of this act.

Regulation 5, as amended, became effective April 15.

"Get them at Dreer's"

All Seasonable Plants—Seeds—Bulbs and Sundries

HARDY PERENNIALS.

The most complete collection of varieties and the largest stock in the country. Our Perennial plants have a national reputation. We spare no expense to have them in the best possible shape for the planter. Such varieties as move better when pot-grown are prepared in this shape. This does not mean little seedlings, but in the majority of cases the plants were field-grown, were dug and potted during the fall and winter months, and are just the right size to give immediate results. They are not to be compared with so-called field clumps. Try them and be convinced. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

HYBRID-TEA ROSE
KILLARNEY

ROSES FOR OUTDOOR PLANTING TO GIVE IMMEDIATE RESULTS.

We have three hundred thousand 5 and 6-inch pots, the usual Dreer stock, and the style of plants your retail customers are looking for. These are all two-year field-grown plants which have been potted during the winter months, and which were stored in cold houses and frames, and which are now in prime condition for outdoor planting. The collection is the most up-to-date, including many new varieties not offered by anyone in the trade.

Hybrid Teas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Tea and Ever-blooming, Ramblers, Baby Ramblers, Moss Roses, Hybrid Sweet Briars, Austrian Briars, Wichuraiana, etc., etc. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

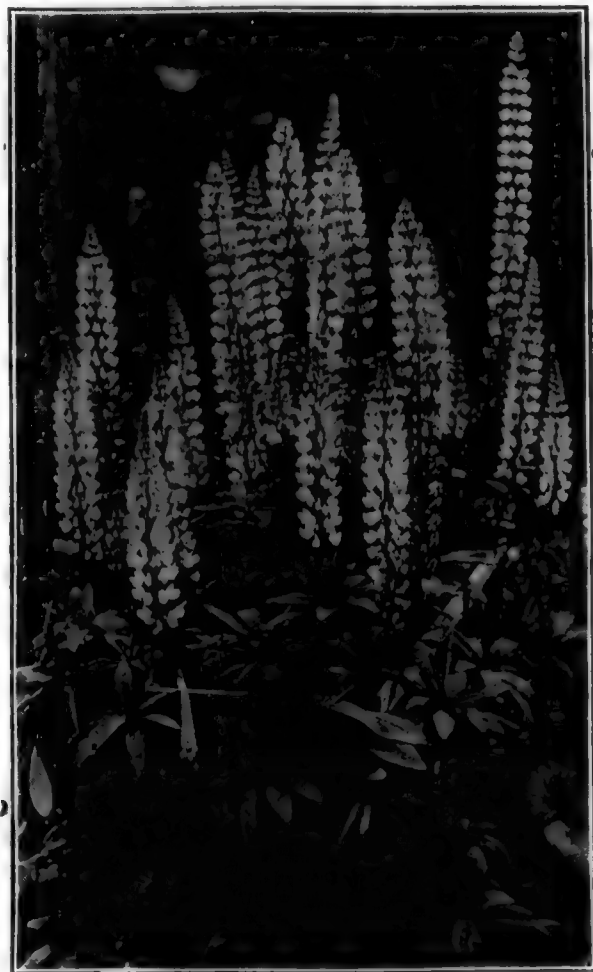

OUR CURRENT WHOLESALE LIST

also describes the following, all of which are handled as Specialties:

Decorative Plants, Palms, Ferns, Pandanus, Bay Trees, Box-woods, Dracaenas, etc., etc.

Hardy Shrubs, Hardy Vines, Hardy Climbers, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, etc., etc.

BULBS—Dahlias, Tuberous Rooted Begonias, Gladiolus, Gloxinias, Fancy Leaved Caladiums, Cannas, etc., etc.

LUPINUS POLYPHYLLUS

AQUATIC PLANTS—Water Lilies, Nelumbiums, Victorias.

Tender and Hardy Aquatics have been a special feature with us for nearly a quarter of a century, over eight acres of artificial ponds are devoted to their culture. If we can assist you in making plans or selecting varieties, the services of our expert are at your disposal for the asking.

ITHACA, N. Y.

A vegetable gardening train was run over the New York Central lines last week. Although farm trains have been run by various railroads in different states, this is the first train ever sent out for the vegetable gardening interests alone. It consisted of two cars, one containing an exhibit of vegetables, greenhouse material and models, seeds, model hotbed, potted plants, implements, cultivators, seed drills, charts, photographs, publications, etc.

The train was in charge of F. S. Welch, agricultural representative of the railroad, and Prof. A. C. Beal, of the department of horticulture. Stops were made at Newburgh, Kingston, Catskill, Coxsackie, Albany, Schenectady and Troy. The stops were usually for one day, but Catskill and Coxsackie were visited in one day. Lectures were given on greenhouse construction, planting home grounds and school gardens, by Professor Beal; on growing early plants, planting and transplanting vegetables, planning gardens and home gardens, by A. E. Wilkinson; on intensive vegetable growing, irrigation, harvesting, packing and marketing, market gardening and growers' organizations by Paul Work.

There was a large attendance, and great interest was manifested in the exhibits and the discussions.

Rockville Center, N. Y.—The George T. Schuneman Co., formerly at Baldwin, N. Y., is now in business here. Mr. Schuneman makes a specialty of the growing of violets and has won many prizes for his exhibits of these flowers.

NEW CARNATION BENORA

$6.00 per 100
$50.00 per 1000

This variegated carnation, sent out by Mr. Peter Fisher last season, is the finest variegated variety, and one of the very best carnations of any color, ever sent out.

It has immediately attained a commanding position among the very choicest sorts, and will add to Mr. Fisher's already enviable list of introductions. It is indispensable.

It is a very early and free bloomer, matures quickly, making very perfect flowers of the largest size on long stems; does not split the calyx.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Business for the last two weeks was not rushing, though stock up to the middle of last week was coming in just the same; consequently the prices dropped a notch or two. But, with a whole week of absolutely no sunshine, receipts began to shorten considerably and on Friday business took a sudden jump and cleaned up almost everything. Roses and sweet peas were equal to the occasion, while more good carnations would have come in handy. Beauties are a rather scarce article these days. Violets are deteriorating in quality, thus pointing to their end for this season.

Various Notes.

On Sunday, April 13, about fourteen Milwaukee bowlers—at least they think they are—took their annual trip to Chicago to roll the return game that was promised the boys when up here a short time ago. Well, it did not take long to have them put it all over us and then some. But we forgot all about the defeat after they took us in tow and saw to it that none of us, while their guests, suffered any neglect.

The Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. has only words of praise when talking about the new delivery car. The expense thus far has been small and the car has covered more than 6,000 miles to date.

Nohos & Co., on Grand avenue, report transient trade as excellent toward the end of last week.

H. V. Hunkel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., returned from the National Flower Show April 11 and pronounces it a grand affair. Wm. B. Currie, who also attended the show, will not return for another two weeks.

The Currie Bros. Co. reported an exceedingly busy week, both in the flower and seed line.

G. Rusch, of G. Rusch & Co., went to Chicago a couple of days ahead of the bowlers, to transact business and observe market conditions.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports last week's trade as fair, with a good supply of carnations coming in daily.

Visitors: R. Latham, Minneapolis; W. Desmond, of the L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis; Mrs. Paul Cummings, Baraboo, Wis. E. O.

Bowling Green, Mo.—Fred A. Hal-lows has built a greenhouse here and has stocked it principally with bedding plants. He is also growing some stock for the cut flower market. His establishment is named Vine Hill Farm.

HYBRID ROSES

THE WAY WE HANDLE HYBRID ROSES FOR SPRING PLANTING.

All Our Roses Are 3-Year-Old, Strong, Field-Grown.

After two or three hard freezings, they are lifted, potted and plunged in cold frames for the winter. They make good root action all winter and are ready to do business in the spring.

They should be shipped in pots. They should carry safely by freight. We bring in quite a lot for Decoration Day.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been quite heavy on funeral work lately, especially after recovery of the bodies from the flood. Stock has been quite plentiful, especially carnations, which have been coming in heavily and have been used up closely at all times. Roses have been in fair supply and have been about enough to go the rounds. Beauties have been in fair supply, with demands about equal to the supply. Sweet peas have been rather scarce. There is still some bulbous stock to be had, such as Murillo tulips, daffodils, jonquils and a few Paper Whites. Violets are dwindling, with demand also falling off. Lilies have been more plentiful, both in callas and Harrisii. Pot plants are selling well and there is still a good selection to be had.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens has been badly crippled since the flood, as telephones and street car service are still out of commission, but he hopes soon to see the city again.

Robert Buehler, who lost nearly all his household goods and whose garden plot is nothing but a gravel bar, said he was glad he got out alive.

Charles Buehler has decided to give up his business, as his houses, stock and all household goods are gone. He has not yet decided on his future plans.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports heavy funeral trade.

The Livingston Seed Co. is quite busy in all lines at the present time.

At Wm. Graff's it is said business is heavy.

The writer made a trip to Chillicothe and found things in bad shape. There were heavy trade losses, on stock mostly, as the houses did not suffer great damage.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The last week has been about the duller in the florists' line that we have experienced in a long time. Trade of all kinds has been practically at a standstill since the flood. The weather has been rainy and cloudy for the last week, adding to the gloom which covered the city.

With the exception of carnations, stock has not been overplentiful. Carnations have been a glut on the market, bringing as low as $2.50 per thousand. The cloudy weather has put a damper on the rose supply. Sweet peas probably suffered more, as most of the buds damped off and they can not be secured in any quantity. Home-grown violets are a thing of the past. Owing to the absence of funeral work there has been little call for Easter and calla lilies. Bulbous stock is still to be had in quantities. Orchids and valley have been having a better call since the violets are gone.

Various Notes.

Adolph Baur, George Wiegand, Irwin Bertermann and Raymond Kester have returned from the New York show and all express themselves as being well repaid for their trip. George Wiegand stopped off at Cleveland, and Adolph Baur at Erie, on the return trip. Adolph Baur stated that the west was not as well represented at the show as it should have been.

Myer Heller, formerly of the Hill-Heller Co., is advertising extensively in the daily papers for the delivery of the famous Newcastle American Beauties to the Indianapolis retail market via parcel post.

Frank Hasselman, of the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., states that he has an unusually fine lot of bedding plants coming on for the spring trade.

Carl Sonnenschmidt is contemplating the purchase of a new six-cylinder Premier.
H. L. W.

The Hill-Heller Co. has petitioned the Marion circuit court to permit a change of name to the E. G. Hill Floral Co. Myer Heller, of Newcastle, Ind., is the only stockholder of the old company who is not identified with the new one and he asked that his name not be used. The E. G. Hill Co. has its greenhouses at Richmond, Ind. It has another retail store in Cincinnati and expects to establish stores in other cities.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Since the high water receded, business has been resuming normal conditions. The flood was the greatest we ever had. As the railroads were nearly all out of commission, few trains were leaving here and the express companies would not handle flowers or any perishable commodities. But business is fairly satisfactory now, and, with plenty of flowers of all kinds, the florists are filling all orders with dispatch.

Various Notes.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are doing their usual good business, with plenty of flowers to fill their orders.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. always has a tasteful window display of seasonable plants and flowers. Business is good.

Ben Kramer is well satisfied with his trade. He is using lots of carnations.

Karl Zeidler is cutting some fine carnations. He has built a house for roses and already has it partly planted.

Henry Seymour has lots of fine carnations in pink, white and red.

Miss Nellie Goodge is attending to business regularly again, as her health seems much improved.

J. C. Elsperrmann has been exceedingly busy lately and has had considerable funeral work. At the time of writing, April 14, his force of help are making a goodly number of large designs for four different funerals.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2 1/2-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

The making of gardens and all landscape work have been set back because of the cold, wet weather we are having; therefore the sale of seeds and bedding plants has not really begun in earnest. Shrubs, trees and other hardy stock are selling now, however. Pansies are in fine shape and are finding ready sale. Cut pansies are also in demand and are of good quality. Carnations are falling off in supply somewhat, and Perfection, Pink Delight and Wards are the best as far as quality goes. Snapdragons, yellow marguerites and freesias are finding favor as spring flowers, a little out of the usual run. Bulbous stock is overabundant and cheap. Box trees are selling now.

Various Notes.

The Montgomery Rose Co., of Hadley, Mass., is shipping some good roses to this city.

Ernest Short spent a few days in New York city last week. He also attended the flower show.

M. Aitken did the decoration for the Metropolitan Life triennial banquet at Hotel Kimball, April 11. Carnations were placed for each of the 350 guests.

George Carty visited Hadley Falls last week.

L. D. Robinson and wife visited the National Flower Show in New York.

A jardiniere sale is on at M. Aitken's place.

The florists of this city are rejoicing over the fact that the clergymen of the various churches are trying to put an end to Sunday funerals. This, of course, would lighten Sunday work for the florists a great deal.

L. H. Butts has a fine lot of English daisies at the greenhouses of Nelson F. Higgins, ready for the spring trade.

John Donaldson is back at work again.

H. F. Palmer, of West Hartford, is producing better peas now and they find a ready sale here. The white varieties and the pinks, such as Blanche Ferry and Painted Lady, are very scarce.

We are receiving excellent snapdragons, pansies and yellow marguerites from J. M. Cohen, of Boston.

The State street florists are vying with each other each week with sales of all kinds of cut flowers.

For the last few weeks trade has been dull. During the week and on Saturdays there is a rush of funeral work, plants and cut flowers. We are glad there are busy Saturdays, but we wish there were more busy days during the week.

E. C. A.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2 1/4 inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2 1/2-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

BEGONIAS.

BEGONIA EVANSIANA. This beautiful hardy begonia is the wonder of the century, perfectly hardy; 20 below zero will not hurt it. Plant in shady or partially shady situations, where other plants will not thrive, and it will come up year after year like a peony or hardy lily. Beautiful bronze green foliage, plant literally covered with great clusters of shell pink bloom during its season.

We are headquarters for this begonia. Strong plants from pots, ready May 10, $2.00 doz., $6.00 per 50; $10.00 per 100. Cash with order.
WINGERT & ULERY, SPRINGFIELD, O.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection.
It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow short and stocky with extra good roots. Ready to bud and bloom; good stock to transplant and sell last half of May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order.
L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

Pansies, 100,000 strong, bushy, fall transplanted, in bud and bloom. Giant Masterpiece, Cassier, Bugnot, Odier, 5 spotted white Cassier, 5 spotted golden yellow Trimardeau, Mme. Per-ret, Lord Beaconsfield, Snowflake, Meteor, orchid (cattleys)—flowering; these are field-grown plants, $1.25 per 100; $10.00 per 1000. Cash.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as the plebian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales 1913. Send for both of the booklets.

In a late number of the Market Growers' Journal, in a symposium on tomato growing, five of the six writers commended BONNY BEST. One calls it a "top-notch," another says his patrons would take no other if Bonny Best was on the wagon. The qualities mentioned are earliness, almost the first; most desirable in size, smoothness, velvety red, thriftiness of plant, long bearing season, great productiveness, excellent for early or main crops. We have thousands of plants of this variety, transplanted, tough, stocky, well rooted, extra fine strain, sure to please, $1.00 per 100. Ready now.

Geneseo, Ill.—George J. Neal, who for the last sixteen years has been manager of the Beckwith Greenhouses, at Mount Pleasant, Ia., has acquired possession of the business of the Hill Floral Co., in this city. The property thus transferred includes the four-acre tract of land, just west of town, on which are the greenhouses and dwelling, and also the stock in the State street store. Mr. Neal will take charge here as soon as he can make arrangements to leave Mount Pleasant. As a part of the deal, the Hill Floral Co. secures a farm of 180 acres, near Keosauqua, Ia. However, the members of the company, who are H. L. and L. B. Hill and Miss Blanche E. Hill, have no intention of residing on the farm, but will probably embark again in the florists' trade in some other locality.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

SIZES OF ANTHRACITE COAL.

The standards for anthracite coal sizes as recommended by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and printed in the society's journal, November, 1912, are as follows:

Name	Screen or Opening (Circular) Through or Over Which Coal Will Pass, Inches
	Through	Over
Pea	7/8	9/16
No. 1 buckwheat.....	9/16	5/16
No. 2 buckwheat.....	5/16	3/16

SIZE OF STEAM PIPES.

Kindly let your heating expert pass on the following question: We have a new greenhouse, 25x100 feet, to be heated by steam. Our engineer claims that by putting in larger pipes, better results would be secured than with small ones. He also claims that this is the latest thing in heating. I do not agree with him. The piping in the new greenhouse is as follows: One 4-inch supply and one 2-inch return on each side. Now, the question is: Would it be possible to keep the temperature up to the requirements of palms and roses in winter, with zero weather, on ten pounds of steam? Our engineer claims it would. As we have a new boiler and intend to put new heating pipes in the rest of the houses, I want to be sure before we start. The boiler capacity is quite large, but we are not permitted to carry more than ten pounds of steam. We are located in Pennsylvania.

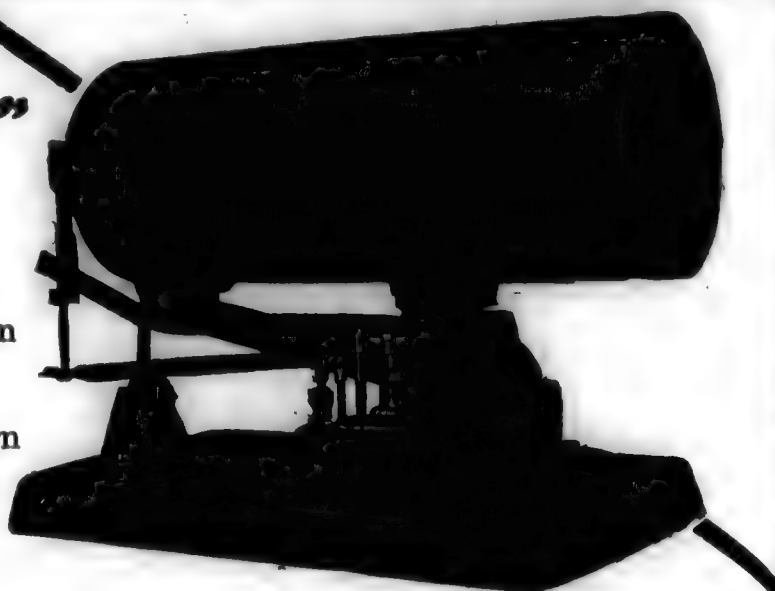

C. B.

There is no reason for having the supply pipe as large as 4-inch, as a 2½-inch supply would be ample and a 2-inch pipe would answer to carry the steam needed for a greenhouse 25x100, to be heated to 60 degrees, if ten pounds of steam can be maintained. While 2-inch pipe might be used for the returns, it will be more satisfactory if 1¼-inch pipe is used. However, the proposed amount of radiation would be found woefully deficient. We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

This house will be on the east side and will be sheltered by the other house. The wall on the east side will be of brick and cement, thirty inches high, with fifty-six inches of glass above. pipe to carry the returns from a house 21x50 feet, and the question is asked whether it is large enough to carry the return water from another house of the same size. Neither the letter nor the blue print indicates whether steam or hot water is used, except that from the size of the return pipe it is probably hot water. In either case the return is sufficient for both houses.

To heat the new greenhouse to 60 degrees, run a 2½-inch flow pipe on each of the plates, and place eight 2-inch pipes under the east bench and six on the west wall posts.

If the south end is much exposed, it might be well to run a third flow under the ridge, and with it feed four 2-inch pipes, two of which can be carried in either direction around to the north end of the house. In addition to these returns, there should be five on the east and three on the west side.

A PENNSYLVANIA ADDITION.

I intend to build one house, 22x150, this summer, building it at the north side of my present houses and taking out the present side wall. Please tell me how much 1¼-inch pipe will be required to carry a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather and what size of supply pipe would be suitable

U. G. H.

One of the simplest methods of piping a house such as described is to run a 2½-inch flow pipe two feet below the ridge and use nine 1¼-inch returns. A part of the returns can be under the benches, or in the walks if solid beds are used, but most of them should be on the walls. In case the end of the house is much exposed, it will be well to start the wall coils at the middle of the farther end of the house and carry them along the walls back to the end of the house nearest the boiler.

Stowell, a well-to-do contractor of Rockford, Ill., who has moved here and will be actively identified with the new firm of Briscoe & Stowell. A new greenhouse, 27x120 feet, will be erected at once, and other additions to the plant will be made.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years

"We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount."

I first had a new cast iron boiler which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us."

MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.,

Cast Iron Cannot be Compared with Kroeschell

"We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water."

HALL & ROBINSON,
 Montreal, Canada.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron

"I bought a No. 6 Boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 3300 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill."

M. C. WARD, Quincy, Mass.

"I bought a No. 4 Boiler in 1902. Has 7000 sq. ft. of glass; could add 2000 more. It is perfectly satisfactory. Would keep only Kroeschell Boiler. Would not have a cast iron boiler for a gift."

Cost of Heating One-Half Less Than With Cast Iron Boilers

"I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and a sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of the heating with your boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 Boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its capacity."

WM. GEENEN, Kimberly, Wis.

Has enlarged place and installed another No. 6 Kroeschell.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron

"I have one of your new 1910 model Kroeschell Boilers, and same has proven very satisfactory. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We fire once or twice during the day, and once at night, and have had the best satisfaction I have ever experienced in a boiler. Formerly I had two cast iron boilers; one cracked and I took both of these boilers out. My coal bill with the cast iron boilers ran from $195 to $207 per season during the past seven years. This year, with your boiler and soft coal, my coal bill was only $103, and I still have some coal left. Your boiler is the best and cheapest on the market, not alone for the price, but also in fuel saving. I am very glad that you are so well known in Buffalo, N. Y. I have never heard anything but praise, in which I join heartily. Wishing you every success, I remain,

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

Does This Solve Your Problem?

Have your Conifers, Hardy Shrubs or Hedges the appearance of being stunted?
Have you learned what ails them?

Is it not an attack from red spider which has done so much havoc to the Evergreens the past few seasons?

If so, you can overcome it by using SCALINE, which will rid your plants of this pest and will promote a healthy growth.

SCALINE is an effective material that can be used in the growing season for aphids, thrips, red spider, mealy bug, soft scale and all sap sucking insects. It can be safely applied to all hardy plants.

As a winter spray for San Jose and all hard scale it has no equal.

SCALINE is composed of a high grade of petroleum and contains the properties of the well known fungicide, FUNGINE, also making it an excellent preventative against various blights affecting trees and shrubs.

It is readily soluble in water, contains no sediment and can be applied through the finest spray nozzle; being more economical than the old-fashioned Kerosene Emulsion and Fish Oil Soaps and much more effective.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The regular monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Doran's hall, April 11, with President Robert Williamson in the chair. Considering the inclement weather, a large number of members were present to hear the lecture given by Professor Jarvis, of Storrs College, on the "Diseases of Fruit Trees," which proved to be practical and instructive. A large number of pictures were shown, to illustrate the methods of pruning, planting, etc., recommended for the reclaiming of old orchards, so long neglected in this state. Professor Jarvis answered in an able manner the many questions put to him. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded him for his address, which proved to be one of the best of the season.

On account of the International Show in New York, where a large number of the members were exhibiting, the exhibits at the meeting were not so much in evidence as usual. The awards were as follows:

Thomas Ryan, cultural certificate for splendid lot of sweet peas.

James Forster, cultural certificate for fine specimen marguerite.

A. Wynne, cultural certificate for Schizanthus Wisetonensis.

Thomas Ryan, honorable mention for Hydrangea Hortensia.

P. W. Popp, honorable mention for Chrysanthemum Seven Oaks. This chrysanthemum, which has previously been recognized by the society, is a golden yellow and a continuous bloomer and should be of great commercial value.

Several new members were elected.
O. A. H.

Massillon, O.—The N. E. Beck Floral Co. has purchased a new farm of sixty-one acres, with fine buildings, directly opposite its old farm. It is adding two greenhouses to its range, which will be the last to be built there. It will start a range on the new farm for growing cut flowers and plants, and will then use the old place for growing vegetables. The company reports good business. It escaped the flood entirely.

Fort Madison, Ia.—Henry Bendlege, a vegetable grower at the corner of Eighth and Lincoln streets, suffered a heavy loss in a recent storm of wind and rain. The damage to his greenhouses amounted to about $1,000, aside from the injury to his stock. Half of one house was torn away and thrown violently against a house a few yards distant. It is estimated that 3,500 square feet of glass were destroyed. Karl Boll also lost about seventy-five panes of glass.

If You Want to Plow Your House, Our New Cantilever Construction Has Great Advantages

TO plow in a house filled with columns is almost impossible. At least, it is so difficult that after one attempt, with the whiffletree continually catching in the columns, preventing plowing closely, you give it up in disgust.

For vegetable or sweet pea and violet growing, it is a great saving to plow.

This new cantilever construction reduces the number of columns 25% and in some widths 50%.

Another thing about it is, you can locate the columns practically where you want them to meet your ideas about walk locations.

It's the least arbitrary of all the constructions.

Fewer rafters and fewer purlins are used.

It has no tension trussing.

In spite of all its many advantages, it costs no more than the regular standard flat rafter construction.

It's worth looking into carefully.

The growers are taking hold of it better even than we anticipated.

Reading, Pa.—Moyer Bros. have opened a flower store at 245 South Tenth street, with greenhouse in connection. The members of the firm are Frank E. and Leon R. Moyer.

"AND DEPONENT SAITH FURTHER, AS FOLLOWS:"

Out of a great mass of testimonials in support of the excellent character of Cypress for greenhouse construction, we have singled these few for your consideration:

Arthur Cowee, Gladiolus Specialist, proprietor of "Meadowvale Farm," Berlin, N. Y., writes: "My houses are now ten years old and I have not yet been obliged to spend one dollar in repairing any wood-work, with the exception of some of the posts. My only regret has been that I have not used CYPRESS for the benches, which I think would have been cheaper for me in the end than using hemlock, which, of course, with us is very much cheaper per thousand."

That's the point, CYPRESS literally CHEAPER in the end. Mr. Cowee names the proper system,—

John C. Moninger Co., Greenhouse Builders, Chicago, say: "We first began using CYPRESS exclusively for greenhouse construction in 1885, using it previous to that time in conjunction with pine. The greenhouses built with clear CYPRESS, free of sap, 21 YEARS AGO, are being used today by their owners and the wood is found perfectly preserved and free of any decay or rot." Ask this prominent concern about the "cheaper" substitutes, and why they won't use them nor attempt to dump inferior values onto their customers.

The Dingee & Conard Co., Rose Growers, West Grove, Pa., say: "We have used CYPRESS lumber for greenhouse building for many years, and we find that there is no lumber we can secure so satisfactory for that purpose." Nothing in that about a "cheaper substitute," is there?

Bobbink & Atkins, Importers, Nurserymen and Florists, Rutherford, N. J., are not backward in coming forward: "We would say that CYPRESS lasts with us from two to three years longer than any other wood for table purposes, and ITS LIFE SEEMS TO BE ENDLESS WHEN USED IN ORDINARY GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. We use CYPRESS solely in our plant tub department."

Wagner Park Conservatories, Sidney, Ohio, rise to remark: "We use NOTHING BUT CYPRESS in the construction of our greenhouses, as we find it the most economical, on account of it outlasting other kinds of wood." No comfort there for the "substitute" lumber.

Bassett & Washburn, Growers and Wholesale Dealers in Cut Flowers, Chicago, testify: "We formerly used hemlock and pine, but found that 2-inch stock lasted only about four years, while so far, we have had no 'Pecky' CYPRESS rot out in 10 or 12 years. We use clear CYPRESS for all our roof work, ventilators, etc., and it is very satisfactory. We think it is the only kind of lumber for the purpose." Not bad, is it?

"'PECKY' CYPRESS FOR THE BENCHES—NOTHING BUT!"

Draw freely on our Cypress Pocket Library—they are free. Vol. 3, "The Only Greenhouse Wood;" Vol. 22, "Cypress for Silos and Tanks," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for All Trellises and Arbors." Write for what you need, or hope to need, or ought to need.

Here is Proof Positive of the Worth of the Electric

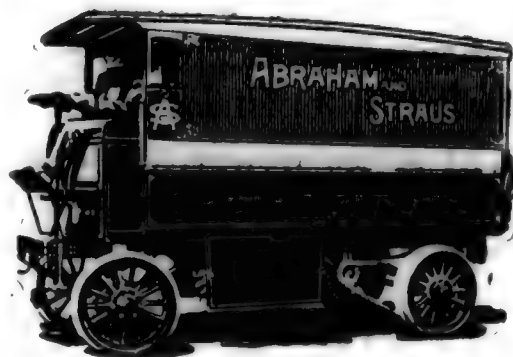

CARSON, PIRIE, SCOTT & CO., one of Chicago's greatest mercantile institutions, operate 64 motor delivery vehicles. Fifty-two of them are Electrics.

Gimbel Brothers of New York have an all-motor delivery system of 127 machines—of which eighty-nine are Electrics.

Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn's greatest department store, use 25 motor vehicles in making deliveries—of which twenty-three are Electrics.

Electric Vehicles will give Florists the same efficient, economical, dependable service. Besides those considerations, an Electric is a distinctive, impressive means of advertising a Florist's business. You should investigate now by sending for interesting literature today.

Public interest and private advantage

Larger plants.....$2.50, $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00 each

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's or private person's collection. They are much superior to many of the older Crotons and the types are from the narrow to the very large leaf varieties.

4-inch pots, strong plants.....$3.00 each, $30.00 per doz.; $200.00 per 100
 Larger plants.....$2.50, $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00 each

FICUS CHAUVIERI

This is an old variety, taken up again by us. We believe we have the only stock of this variety in the country. It is in a class with the old Elastica, being very hardy and doing equally well for both inside and outside decoration. This plant has already given great satisfaction.

6-inch pots, 18 inches high.....$12.00 per doz.
 Large plants.....$1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 each

PANDANUS VEITCHII

Well colored plants.

 4 -inch pots, very strong, well colored.....$50.00 per 100
 5 -inch pots, very strong, well colored.....$75.00 per 100

DRACAENA MANDAIANA

Large leaf, beautifully colored bright red.
 6-inch pots.....$15.00 and $18.00 per doz.

DRACAENA DE SMETIANA

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties; a strong, vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena De Smetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $5.00 and $6.00 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI

7-inch pots.....$1.50 and $2.00 each

MOTHERS' DAY

AND THE FLORISTS

A "day" the Trade has made, and a "day" the Trade must push along

ASK THE average florist and he will tell you, if he can remember the name, that we owe the success of Mothers' day to Miss Anna Jarvis—but the florist is wrong. Just take your head in your hands and think hard for a minute; it will dawn on you that we are indebted to Miss Jarvis for an idea, nothing more; for the success of the "day" we are to credit ourselves, us, we, the members of the trade who know a good thing when they see it and who are sufficiently progressive to push it along—Mothers' day is ours; we made it; we made it practically unaided and alone—The Review and its readers—but it will go back on us unless we keep our shoulders to the wheel.

Mothers' day is the second Sunday in May. In 1913 it falls early, May 11, so it is time to get busy. Perhaps it is worth retelling here, briefly, how Mothers' day came to be.

Story of Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day broke out sporadically all over the United States in 1908. It took the florists by surprise, as they had not heard of it. Many wrote The Review for information, the first letter coming from Chapin Bros., Lincoln, Neb. In the last issue of April, 1909, The Review brought Mothers' day conspicuously to the attention of the whole trade, with suggestions for exploiting it—and you know the rest; it has put thousands upon thousands of dollars into the pockets of the trade.

That first year, when The Review undertook to trace the origin of Mothers' day, it proved no easy task. The women's organizations all disclaimed responsibility but said, "It's a fine idea; we shall help it along." Finally, the search led, through the exchange editor of a Chicago daily, who had run a paragraph about it, to Miss Jarvis in Philadelphia, who confessed to having conceived the idea in the desire to commemorate the anniversary of her mother's death. In laying some flowers on her mother's grave it occurred to her that it would be a beautiful tribute to all mothers, the living as well as the dead, if their children, on a given day, would unite in the simple wearing of white flowers. She wrote a letter about it to a Philadelphia newspaper early in 1908.

That was what caused Mothers' day to break out in spots all over the country.

The Date.

It was just a lucky happenstance that the day Miss Jarvis suggested, the second Sunday in May, is at a time flowers always are plentiful; she scarcely could have hit a time when assistance to the markets would be more welcome, al-strong for the supply of white carnations—there were not enough to go around—and The Review suggested "white flowers for mother's memory; bright flowers for mothers living." This did not meet with the approval of Miss Jarvis, who does not like to have her ideas tinkered with, but it was the only way that the development of Mothers' day could be continued.

To limit its observance by the supply of white carnations would be the height of folly. So the trade unanimously adopted the wording suggested by The Review—in practically every Mothers' day advertisement used by the retailers last year The Review's "white flowers, bright flowers" lines were used. It worked. Almost as many colored as white flowers were sold.

Let's Reverse It.

Mothers' day, based on a sentiment that made an instantaneous popular appeal, has grown because the florists have exploited it. There has been scarcely any help. Such outside help as has come has been because of what the florists did; we made the day the national affair it has become; it is our day; we must not pause; we must push it harder than ever.

In this year's advertising let us put the bright flowers first:

Bright flowers for Mothers living.
White flowers for Mother's memory.

Advertising, and nothing but advertising, has made Mothers' day. Advertising will turn the demand to colored flowers and relieve the pressure that pushes up the price of white carnations.

How Florists Help.

Every florist can, and should, help push along the Mothers' day observance. It can be done in many ways:

As a beginning, take space in your best local paper for a Mothers' day advertisement. Advertise strongly; it's planting good seed on well prepared ground. Or get the florists in your town to pool their funds in the way that has been so successful in Cleveland, Washington, Columbus, Minneapolis and other cities.

Enlist the aid of the editors; they will help you push the work along.

Talk Mothers' day to your customers.

Then, too, you can go as far as you like with the Woman's Club, the churches, the Y. M. C. A. and the fraternal societies. The idea appeals to all classes.

Perhaps you can get the mayor, or even the governor, to issue a Mothers' day proclamation; others have, and the motherless daughters of some officials have written letters to the newspapers. Get busy—think up something to help the day along. Don't let the people in your locality overlook the approach of a day that has had more gratuitous advertising than any other flower day ever had; dozens of big publications have lately printed articles that we can now turn into cash.

In this issue are letters from a few of the florists who exploited Mothers' day last year. These are selected from the large number that reached The Review, as fair examples of the lot, each one affording an idea that can be amplified or modified to meet the needs of individual cases elsewhere. The ideas presented in The Review are to use—use them—don't hesitate at appropriating anything useful you see.

CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING.

Where the Trade Pools Its Funds.

Coöperative advertising, where all the florists in a community put their money into a common fund for general publicity purposes, seems to work splendidly. It has been tried a number of times as the result of suggestions printed in The Review and it seems always to work well. If most of the florists in a town go into it, $5 or $10 from each usually suffices for a fairly good showing and the results are out of proportion to the small cost. In a recent issue The Review described the success that had attended the co-operative advertising for St. Valentine's day by the florists of Columbus. They said they surely would repeat for Mothers' day.

Last year the publicity committee of

*White Flowers for Mother's Memory.
Bright Flowers for Mothers Living.*

This most beautiful idea and sentiment originated with Miss Annie Jarvis, of Philadelphia. The happy thought occurred to her that all mothers, whether living or dead, should be especially honored some one day each year, and the second Sunday in May was set aside as "Mother's Day."

The florists of Washington and throughout the country are making every preparation to supply their customers and the public in general with flowers appropriate for the day.

The purpose of this announcement is to properly bring "Mother's Day" to the attention of the public and to increase the popularity of this beautiful idea.

This advertisement is paid for by the several florists as a tribute to the general welfare of the floral art.

the Minneapolis Florists' Club spent $130 in advertising Mothers' day. The results were so good C. N. Ruedlinger says they will repeat.

The Detroit florists raised a sum of money through voluntary contributions and for Mothers' day ran the advertisement shown at the top of this page in every paper in Detroit. The results were excellent.

How It Worked in Cleveland.

The Cleveland florists have used the coöperative advertising plan for two successive Mothers' days. It worked so well in 1911 that it was repeated in 1912. But let F. R. Williams, manager of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., tell the story:

"I have read with interest the different articles in the last edition of The Review regarding the business created for Mothers' day from the florists' point of view, and thought I would give you an outline of the way the Cleveland florists went after the business. As your Cleveland correspondent wrote, it was the best and most profitable clean-up on all lines ever known. If the volume of business done here was less than at Easter it was because there were fewer flowers and plants to be had; the demand was better and livelier in every way. A year ago, at a meeting of the Flower Club held just before Mothers' day, many of the florists subscribed to a fund which amounted to $211, which was spent for banners to be placed on wagons, or show cards for the windows, and the balance was spent for newspaper advertisements reading like the show cards for the windows. No names were mentioned, leaving each florist to get, as he thought best, his share of the trade created. This year the florists subscribed $250 for the same purpose, and it was money well spent. We got a great deal of free advertising; the newspapers printed columns about Mothers' day and the churches held special services. What we did can be done in any city anywhere in this country if the florists will work together."

Good Ideas in Washington.

After reading The Review's Mothers' day article last year, several Washington, D. C., florists got together and printed in the Herald the four-column advertisement shown much reduced on this page. Their experience developed some excellent ideas. Writing the morning after Mothers' day, Z. D. Blackstone said:

"This ad, explaining the origin and purpose of Mothers' day, as you will notice came out Saturday morning and was paid for jointly by five retail florists and one wholesale firm. The original intention was to have a much larger ad than this appear earlier in the week. However, when it came to the final question of paying for it we found only a few florists who were willing to support it. I have consulted all of those who contributed toward this ad and everyone has expressed himself as gratified with the result. They report an increase over last year's business from 100 per cent to 300 per cent. No doubt the inserting of this ad played an important part in this result.

"It is apparent to me now, while the matter is fresh in my mind, that the florists by combining and properly advertising can popularize this day and educate the people so that the demand for colored flowers will be as great as the demand for white. After explaining the distinction between the purpose of the white and the bright flowers, I find that the public likes this idea better than all white flowers. It is only a question of getting them to understand that the bright flower is the appropriate flower for the living mother. Then the demand for these for bouquets and boxes will be equal to the demand for white, which are worn in memory.

"The advertising for this day should be carefully planned and the field could be well covered by inserting three large ads, one on the second Thursday before Mothers' day, another on the Sunday next to Mothers' day and the third on the Thursday preceding Mothers' day. The ad we used, putting a little more emphasis on the colored flowers, would fill the bill.

"I also think there should be an understanding and a limitation as to the price of flowers, both wholesale and retail. In some instances I know where the price was increased to three times the usual price. From observation, I am confident that this was a big mistake."

Commenting on the same point, W. F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., said: "In reference to our joint ad in the Washington Herald for Mothers' day, we beg to advise that we believe this was one of the best things ever done by the Washington florists. It not only benefited the few who put up the money for the advertisement, but every florist, large or small, in the national capital was directly benefited by it. We believe it demonstrated, as The Review has pointed out, that Mothers' day can be worked up to be a most profitable one, both to the grower and to the retailer, also the commission man.

"But from our point of view one thing is to be deplored, and that is the abnormal raising of prices by some florists, particularly in taking orders at one price and then telling the customer that the order cannot be filled unless they pay two or three times the amount that the flowers were promised for in advance. Our firm disposed of, at wholesale and retail, some 30,000 carnations, about one-third of them white. The stock was extra fine. On the colored ones we did not raise the price, and the price on the whites was fixed a week in advance, retail and wholesale. We filled all orders up to 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday for whites and then we had to stop selling, but did not advance the price, either retail or wholesale. On Sunday morning there was an enormous demand from every quarter for white carnations. We were fortunate to be able to pick enough carnations Sunday morning to supply all callers, including those of the florists who wanted them at the same price we fixed a week in advance. One case came to our notice of an order being placed fifteen days in advance of Mothers' day for a Sunday school and church, at a fixed price. On Saturday at noon the customer was told by the florist who had the order that the order could not be filled unless the customer paid twice as much as the carnations were sold for. This to our mind is most unbusinesslike. The parties came to us in despair late Saturday evening and were willing to take colored carnations, but we had some extra fine white sweet peas and we fixed them up with these. They were much pleased and they cost them a good bit less than the carnations would have cost.

"To our mind the slogan should be, not a carnation, but just a flower, in line with The Review's lines copied into our ad:

White flowers for Mother's memory.
Bright flowers for Mothers living.

"We believe the public is willing; why should not the florists be?"

Results from Review Suggestions.

After Mothers' day, which was May 12, last year, The Review received a large number of letters telling what the writers had done in the way of boosting the day, and of the results obtained. It is impossible to print them all, or many of them in full. But here are extracts that carry hints good for 1913:

we sold absolutely everything we had in stock; think we could have sold twice as much had we prepared for the demand we had created. — Eugene Woerz, Enid, Okla.

Made Them Open Up.

Mothers' day was the biggest yet; we got out a handbill that embodied the publicity suggestions of The Review and got good results. I think the time will soon come when Mothers' day will be as big a day as Memorial day, if not bigger, for the sentiment back of it makes even a tough old sinner open up his heart and go down in his pocket. Push the good work along next year; you are doing something worth celebrating.—Chas. B. Simons, Mgr. Hill City Greenhouses, Forest City, Ia.

No Crepe at Weddings.

I took your "bright flowers" idea and put a reading notice in our local papers: "Mothers' Day. Make a distinction. A white flower if mother is dead; bright flowers for mothers living. One does not wear crepe at a wedding." Some thought it a little rough, but there was no name signed to it, so the public did not know who did it. And it certainly made a hit in a business way. I sold more colored flowers than white and cleaned up on all the carnations I had.—D. H. Zbinden, Greenville, Ill.

A Simple Expedient.

We worked a simple plan and did a nice business. A circular was neatly Mother." Below this was our firm name and address and the words, "Mothers' day this year falls on Sunday, —," the blank being to fill in the date. We had a supply printed to last several years. Any florist can devise ways of getting the card into the hands of the people.—W. H. Culp, Wichita, Kan.

Got the Churches Started.

After reading The Review we suggested to our pastor a special Mothers' day service. He did not know anything about the day, but we gave him the facts as well as we could. He said that if we would decorate the church he would prepare the sermon. He sent a notice to the papers, announcing the special service, and we did our part. The church was packed and we disposed of about 400 carnations, impressing the idea of

A white flower for Mother's memory.
A bright flower for Mothers living.

Another year it will grow with leaps and bounds, as the five other churches are sure to take it up. We value The Review not only for this suggestion but for the lots of good, solid, profitable information we get out of it.—Cleek Floral Co., Council Grove, Kan.

She Is Waking Up.

Great interest was taken in Mothers' day; in 1912 it was almost equal to Memorial day. There were so many calls I really could not supply all. I had to take some pink carnations, but I easily sold these to people who have living mothers. I wish we could get all the people to understand that colored flowers are for the living and white to be worn for the departed; some insist on white anyway. I think next year I will just put a piece in our local paper: "Wear colored flowers for the living and white for departed mothers." Mary F. Lindsey, Hebron, Neb.

ILLUSTRATING THE ADS.

Early in its work of exploiting Mothers' day The Review prepared a simple advertisement that was offered as a suggestion for use in local newspapers anywhere. It is reproduced again in the lower right-hand corner of page 13, as hundreds have written of the good results it brought. As a matter of fact, it has been printed for the last two years in newspapers from Maine to Washington, and from Georgia to California. The advertisement is not so good as it would be with the use of an illustration, but any newspaper can set it up on a few minutes' notice.

In its use a number of florists have greatly improved on The Review's suggestion. Most of them have followed the wording more or less closely, the principal improvement being in the display; appropriate cuts help immensely. What The Review considers the best Mothers' day advertisement yet published was that of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, shown on this page. It embodies The Review's suggestion with a particularly attractive illustration. The only possible betterment would be the inclusion of a specific offer of stock appropriate to the occasion, quoting prices. General publicity advertisements are good, but more direct returns come from advertising that includes a direct offer.

In the larger cities the newspapers will draw suitable illustrations for ad-

Official Mother's Day Next Sunday May 14, or Second Sunday in May

THIS most beautiful idea and sentiment originated with Miss Annie Jarvis, of Philadelphia. The happy thought occurred to her that all mothers, whether living or dead, should be honored some day, and the second Sunday in May was set aside as Mother's Day.

A POEM FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

An apt and timely song or poem has often worked wonders in arousing enthusiasm in favor of some reform or other public movement. And it is such enthusiasm, reinforced by reason, that keeps the world in motion, figuratively speaking, and causes great things to be accomplished. Would it not be a good idea, then, for retail florists to induce their local newspaper publishers to print the following verses and thus aid in creating sentiment in behalf of Mothers' day? One of the chief reasons for the popularity of Mothers' day is the fact that it appeals strongly to a universal and natural sentiment. The sentiment is surely a wholesome one, too, as well as being profitable to the florists. So florists can act with a clear conscience in fostering the sentiment as much as possible.

MOTHERS' DAY.

The Second Sunday in May.

White flowers for Mother's memory.
Bright flowers for Mothers living.

One brave little woman in our broad land,
In a quiet, gentle way,
Picked out a date and set it down
As being "Mothers' day."

There always are some scoffers round
Who dearly love to jeer;
They'll say, "Why one day set aside?
We've mothers all the year."

Yes, so we have; they are quite right,
And that's the very reason
We need a gentle waking up—
For May is Mothers' season!

In story, song and epic poem,
We hear the praises rung
Of heroes of great deeds and small,
In each and every tongue.

And do we not regret oftentimes,
Those heroes cannot know
We hold them in such reverence,
Admire and love them so?

Are not our mothers oft as great
In life's heroic birth?
Can we do less than show them, then,
We realize their worth?

This is a whirling, busy world,
But take this one small part
And show your mother, on that day,
The love within your heart.

For can you honestly believe
'Twill answer up above,
To say, "I was so busy, I—Why, I forgot to love"?

So just remember May 11;
'Tis your mother's day.
White flowers soften graves grown hard;
Bright flowers cheer life's way.

WATCH THE TRADE GROW.

Retailing Now the Problem.

For a good many years the problem in the florists' business in the United States was one of production—the keenest minds were occupied with the search for means to produce stock of the quality and in the quantity demanded by the public. Of late, however, at least in some of the larger centers, production has caught up with demand, or outstripped it. There is a feeling that the so-called leading retail florists, meaning those who have won reputations for the high character of their work, have not kept up with the progress of the times and that the quality stores can no longer be depended on to consume the quantity of stock which must now find an outlet. The result is that quantity retailing is coming in for study.

Wreath of Carnations, Romans and Lancifolium Lilies.

Two tendencies are apparent, one toward growers becoming retailers of their own output and another toward the chain of stores idea. Here are two notes from last week's issue of The Review that show the drift:

The Drift in Selling.

This is from Long Island City, N. Y.: "Articles of incorporation have been filed for the United Growers' Flower Shops, Inc., of Manhattan, organized to deal in plants, flowers, seeds and bulbs. The capital stock is $25,000 and the headquarters are at 447 Eleventh avenue, in this city. The incorporators are John Schreyer, Louis Wendel, Jr., and Frank Doerhoer."

And here is a note from New York: "A new company to be known as the Royal Fruit & Flower Co., with a capital of $10,000,000, is being organized by Oscar Bamberger, of Bamberger, Loeb & Co., and Henry Weil, of Bamberger Bros. & Co. A chain of fruit and flower stores will be established in this city."

A PERDIKAS WREATH.

The accompanying illustration shows a wreath recently made by George Perdikas, a florist who has several retail stores in Chicago. It will be noted that the wreath was first filled solidly with carnations, the hard edge of the design being relieved by a border of Mexican ivy. The bunch was of Roman hyacinths and lancifolium lilies. The lettering, "Chicago Friends," indicates that the design was made for shipment out of the city. Retail florists do not as a rule send designs any distance, because it has been found far more satisfactory to turn the order over to some other retailer at the point where delivery is to be made, but since the parcel post has come into use retailers are shipping in that manner a great many designs to nearby points. A fairly good sized piece comes within the size limits of the parcel post regulations and well within the weight limit. The corrugated fiberboard boxes are excellent for these shipments, the designs being tied to the boxes so that they travel safely. Parcels may now be sent through the mail in this manner by special delivery and get the same service as is given on special delivery letters, and at a charge of only 10 cents. Retailers with small orders for delivery at a nearby postoffice find the parcel post almost as quick as a messenger boy and just as accurate and safe.

Geraniums

DISEASED GERANIUM FOLIAGE.

I am sending you, under separate cover, a sample of diseased geraniums. Can you tell me what the disease is and how to treat it. J. M. D.

The disease on your geranium foliage is not at all uncommon. I do not know any special name for it, however. The probable causes are too rich soil, producing a soft, sappy growth; insufficient ventilation, spraying over the foliage and not keeping the plants spaced apart and picked over regularly.

Give the plants the fullest sunshine. Do not feed them with rank, liquid manures. If they need any stimulating, give them a surfacing of fine bone. Do not hose the foliage over. Keep the plants spaced apart so that they are not crowded. Pick off any dead and decaying leaves and remove any weeds. The night temperature of the house should be 45 to 50 degrees, and should not exceed the latter figure. The atmosphere should be dry. Keep up this treatment and your plants should soon show an improvement. C. W.

POOR GROWTH OF GERANIUMS.

We are having trouble with our geraniums. Part of the soil we are using was taken out of a mum bench. We used about one-half of this soil and one-half new sod soil, with the right proportion of sand. These geraniums were potted into 4-inch pots. Some of the leaves are turning reddish brown, some of the plants seem to be drying up at the ends of the leaves and a good many have lost quite a number of leaves toward the bottom of the plants. Do you suppose the soil is not rich enough, or what ails them? They do not seem to make growth as they should. F. & F.

You do not say whether you added any fine bone or well decayed manure to the geranium compost. Sand was not needed. The plants are undoubtedly suffering from starvation at the root. Exhausted mum soil mixed with fresh loam and sand does not contain the plant food required by a geranium or, for that matter, by any other soft-wooded plant. If you had added one-fourth well decayed cow manure or old hotbed manure, or even a 3-inch pot of fine bone to each bushel of soil, your plants would now be in better shape.

To improve them, apply liquid cow or sheep manure once in four days. A weak dose of nitrate of soda water will soon improve them, but do not keep on applying it, or it will make the plants soft and they will not flower. A top-dressing of fine bone, lightly scratching the soil after applying it, or an application of Clay's fertilizer, will soon change the appearance of the plants, but do not make the mistake of giving too strong doses. Better make the applications light and more frequent. C. W.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DYING.

About a month ago I found the leaves on my geraniums turning brown and spotted. This was something I had never seen before, and I want to ask you about it. Under separate cover I send the leaves showing the trouble. My worst plants are Poitevine. I have kept them a little on the dry side, in full sun, and in watering I have been careful not to wet the foliage. The soil was made last year, being mostly cow manure and good loam, and in potting I used two-thirds loam to one-third compost and a little bone meal. I use lake water, which is cold, and the water company puts chlorine in it, which sometimes is exceedingly strong. Would that have this effect on the plants? The draught in the chimney is poor and when a fire is started it smokes and fills the house, but the plants in other parts of the house are not affected. These plants stand on about an inch of gravel, while my other benches are filled with soil. Would that make any difference? L. C. P.

The geranium leaves are certainly badly affected. This is quite unlike the leaf-spot and other geranium diseases with which I am acquainted. The plants standing on gravel would naturally dry out more than those on the loam; the latter would root through and have greater vigor. Possibly you are keeping them too dry at this season. Pick off the bad leaves, water more freely and if potbound give a little shift. If you do not care to repot them, give a watering with nitrate of soda water to inject a little life into them. Do not use over a pound to fifty gallons of water, however.

Poitevine is naturally a vigorous geranium and it is strange that it should go off in this way. Possibly the smoke and fumes are partly responsible for the condition they are in. Try the effect of using loam below them and also of watering more freely, in some other part of the house. If they improve there and not at their present stand, the trouble is probably partly due to the fumes. Do not use too rich soil for your plants. Let any manure be well decayed. One-fourth old hotbed manure or the same proportion of old cow manure is sufficiently strong. The manure they relish is one which readily crumbles in the hand. C. W.

Where Some

Growers Stumble

A COMMISSION MAN'S VIEW.

[A paper read by Samuel S. Pennock before the Lancaster Florists' Club, Lancaster, Pa., April 17.]

When your president wrote and asked me to read a paper before your club, I felt considerable hesitancy in accepting the invitation, as it is rather a delicate thing to do—to point out the faults of the other man's way of conducting his business. It is human nature to criticize; in fact, it is an easy habit to fall into and if one is not careful it soon becomes chronic.

But you have asked me to tell you of your faults as we see them, of the things that help to make or mar the sales of your stock, and I am going to pay you the compliment of believing that you want what you have asked for; so I will try to give you my honest criticisms, and hope you will accept them as well meant advice and not as though they were given in a spirit of finding fault with your own individual ideas and methods.

To begin with, I do not think that we try to help one another enough with a word of encouragement here and there, as we go along the path of life, which is of infinitely more benefit than a word of condemnation, not only to the one who may justly deserve it, but to the one giving it as well. We are all glad to be praised when we do something which we think is good. How often do we hear from a grower when we are able to make him good returns? But when his returns are not satisfactory, we hear from him quickly and there is not much time wasted in telling us about it. It is an easy matter to kick, sometimes too easy; in fact, we get far more kicks than we should and not enough praise when lots of times we really deserve it. By this I do not mean to say that the growers are the only ones who do not give praise when praise is due. The retailers and the wholesalers are just as negligent in this respect as anyone; probably they do not really consider the other fellow as much as the grower does.

For Better Understanding.

On a dull market, oftentimes the returns are so low that we are disgusted with them and hate to send them out, but we have no alternative. We have no wish to send out low returns any more than our growers care to receive them, and it is through no wish of ours that the stock brings low prices, as it is certainly to our advantage to get all we possibly can out of the stock and get as high prices as possible for every flower that comes in to us. It is certainly as hard on us as on the growers to have to sell stock at low prices, especially as we are selling them on a commission basis. And we assure you that when the letters of commendation or praise do come to us they are certainly appreciated, and they stimulate us to even greater efforts on behalf of our growers and we know that they make for a better feeling and understanding between us.

The mutual good feeling among the florists, particularly among the growers, is improving each year—hardly a grower but who is willing to live and learn, to profit by his neighbor's successes and mistakes—and meetings such as these, where you get in closer touch with each other, are of splendid value and benefit, for there is always something to learn.

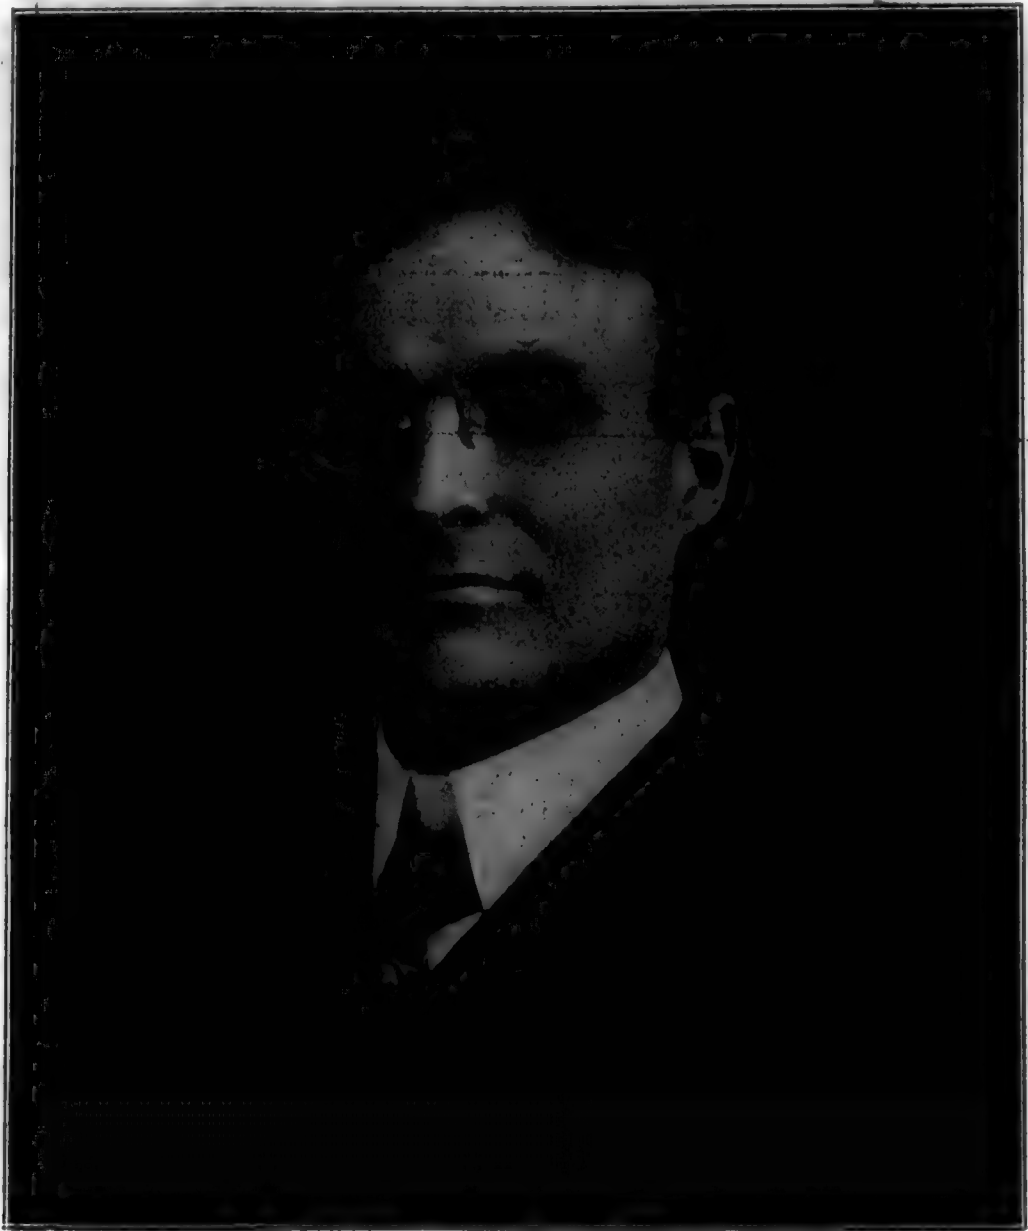

Then there are our shows—what schools of learning they are!—particularly such shows as the National Flower Show which has just taken place in New York. I know that every florist who attended this show went home feeling that it was time and money well spent, and I was pleased to see Lancaster so well represented. It shows progressiveness. Not only was it of advantage to see the exhibits, how stock could be grown, the newer flowers and plants (many of them novelties never before seen), but the greatest advantage of all was the opportunity the little men had to get in touch with the big men of the trade on an equal footing, conversing with them, getting their ideas and helpful suggestions, and going back home with the knowledge of how to do bigger and better things, knowledge that they could not acquire in years of hard grinding.

Stay-at-Homes Profit Little.

Not only are these shows valuable to the growers, retailers and wholesalers in the way of being a source of knowledge and information, but they are one of the greatest advertising mediums we have for the flower business. The publicity committees that are working in the different cities are doing all they can, and mighty good work, too, to bring the flower business before the public. But the flower shows are infinitely more lasting and far-reaching in their effects than ordinary advertising. By this I do not wish to convey the idea that I do not think advertising pays, as I am a firm believer in advertising. But for that reason, if no other, these shows should have your firm and hearty support, and your individual attendance whenever it is at all possible.

This may be digressing from the subject somewhat, but I hardly think so, as these are points every florist, whether he is a grower, retailer or middleman, should consider. Do not be afraid to leave home now and then to see what the other fellow is doing. Many a grower finds at the end of his year that he has come out with little or no profit, owing sometimes to his staying at home entirely too much and not understanding how to properly market his stock or to get it into the best possible shape for marketing.

Then, too, often a grower does not know just where he is making or losing money, owing to the fact of his not keeping accurate records as to production per plant or per square foot. Then, sometimes a greenhouse is run in connection with another enterprise and not kept separate, only in a superficial way, a way that is more harmful than helpful. Accurate accounting, even if it does take a little more time and expense, is bound to pay in the end.

Careful Grading and Packing.

Every year the competition in the flower business becomes keener and the supply larger, which makes it necessary to grow the stock and market it in the best possible manner. Having succeeded in growing fine, first-class flowers, it is equally, if not more important to see that they are not spoiled by poor handling. This often happens, and is due to the grower not looking after the details and appreciating that it is just as important to market flowers in the best up-to-date manner as it is to produce the best flowers in the first place. How much quicker and better will a box of flowers sell that comes into the market carefully graded and packed and put up in attractive shape! That shipment commands a buyer, particularly on a dull market, far more quickly than the shipment that is carelessly graded and packed, even if the stock in this shipment be well grown and some of the flowers be of even better quality than the first shipment. If this condition be allowed to go on day after day from one year's end to the other, it means many a dollar out of the grower's pocket. Do not be afraid to watch the details; the larger things will then fall into line naturally and take care of themselves. Be particular about the grading; keep the quality up and do not allow poor stock to creep in.

It is very important that rubbered or wired carnations should not be put in the same bunches with the better blooms, as a few wired or rubbered blooms will spoil the sale of the bunch. Some growers feel that this is not important, but every grower who does this loses out in the end, as these bunches of carnations will sell only on a scarce market and almost all the time it is a buyer's and not the seller's market. Let the poorer blooms come in a lower grade. Details carefully watched spell success in any line of business.

Closer Relationship Essential.

I believe most growers and wholesalers do not keep in close enough touch with each other. Advices from the wholesaler as to the market conditions, or advices from the grower as to his future crops, probable quantity and when these particular crops will come in, are points that are too often ignored and too little considered. Often a crop will come in which could have been marketed to much better advantage had the wholesaler known about it and understood what to expect, whether this was a new crop coming on or simply an extra big cut. The knowledge of this would help the commission man to plan for better sales of the stock, perhaps even give him an opportunity to advertise it, and the results would more than offset the trouble and expense of the grower's writing or phoning about it.

If it were possible for the wholesalers and growers to visit each other oftener, it would be a great help to each of them and would save many a misunderstanding; it would bring them closer to-

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Pruning Hardy Climbers.

There are a number of hardy climbers which should be pruned at once, provided the work has not already been done, before the real spring rush commences. Among these may be mentioned wistarias, Clematis paniculata, bignonias, loniceras, actinidias, and Aristolochia Sipho, or Dutchman's pipe. Cut the Clematis paniculata back quite hard, for the best results. In the case of such evergreen climbers as Euonymus radicans and English ivy no pruning should be necessary at this time, but any dead shoots on the ivy would better be removed now. It is better not to prune climbing roses until there is no longer any danger of a sharp frost. If they are pruned too early and a warm spell starts, them at once into active growth, they are liable to sustain considerable injury if a cold snap immediately follows.

Petunias and Verbenas.

This is a good time to make a liberal sowing in flats of the two popular annuals, petunias and verbenas. Be careful to sow the fine petunia seed thinly and not to cover at all with soil. Give the verbenas seed a light covering and let it be mostly sand. Start them in a warm house, but do not keep them there after the seedlings have made their second pair of leaves. Use light, rich soil when potting them off, and grow them in a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees at night. This will insure stockiness. Verbenas are among the best and most persistent flowering annuals for bedding, while petunias, in addition to being excellent in the flower borders, can be used to good advantage in window boxes, vases and hanging baskets. Where the water supply is adequate and there is sufficient plant food for the roots to subsist on, they will never stop blooming until cold weather arrives.

Transplanting Seedlings.

The annual seedlings will now need considerable attention, for during the pressure of Easter work they were liable to be somewhat neglected. Now that Easter is gone, take these in hand and either pot or box off all that are urgently in need of a shift. If a little of this work can be done each day it will greatly relieve the pressure and be the means of saving many seedlings which would otherwise be spoiled, for if seedlings become crowded and drawn they are to a large extent ruined. Be sure to give all transplanted seedlings some shade from bright sunshine for a day or two.

Outdoor Bulbs.

With winter on the wane and the weather quite springlike in character, at least some of the covering should be removed from the bulb beds. Do not be in too much of a rush to take it all away, for we are still liable to have some cold snaps. It is the custom to leave at least a light mulch on, in the latitude of Boston, until April 10, after which time they can be entirely cleaned off. We have had an unusually open winter, and on this account great care had to be taken when removing the mulch not to break the young shoots, which in some cases were found of considerable length.

VARIOUS INSECTS.

I bought a great many plants last spring, to stock up with. I bought them from a good many firms and, incidentally, I secured a great many insects, among the rest white fly, which I have subdued with cyanide, but a minute insect, which I presume is thrips, is baffling me in my efforts to grow carnations, although I am spraying with Aphine and also with Paris green and sugar. As I do not know exactly what a thrips is like, I should like to have it described. This insect is extremely small and enters the flower. It hops like a flea. The petals of the flowers are withered on the edges and the flowers are small and do not keep. I also got the white fern scale on some ferns purchased of a firm of growers who advertise that they have none on their ferns. It seems to me the wholesale plant growers should be more careful about sending out such injurious insects. R. S. P.

White fly can only be subdued by the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. You will find this pest partial to fuchsias, ageratum, calceolarias, pelargoniums, nasturtiums, heliotropes and some other soft-wooded plants; it also attacks tomatoes, cucumbers and lettuce, especially the first named vegetable.

You have correctly described the thrips, or hopper as it is sometimes called, and the remedies you tried have proved successful with other growers. The scale on the ferns can be controlled by the use of Aphine, either dipping or spraying, according to the size of the plants. C. W.

ASTERS ON CLAY GROUND.

We have no ground for asters this year, except clay. We plowed it last fall and are manuring it heavily this spring with well rotted manure. We shall also put on well balanced commercial fertilizers, such as blood, meal, ashes, lime, etc. Under these conditions, ought we to get good asters? If not, what else should we do to get good asters on clay, or, in fact, can we get a profitable crop of asters under such conditions? S. F. G.

I see no reason why you cannot grow good asters in your clayey soil, if horse manure is used. Some road scrapings, fine coal ashes, sand or any other form of grit will also help to relieve the stiffness of the soil. Lime and wood ashes will also help, but do not apply lime with the manure or fertilizers, as it would release too much of the nitrogen.

LEAF DISEASE ON BONNAFFON.

Last spring I bought some rooted cuttings of White Bonnaffon. They appeared to be healthy, but as the plants grew during the summer the lower leaves got brown around the edges and curled up, and by the time the flowers were cut there was not much good foliage. I saved some stock plants; the suckers looked nice, but now, as they start to grow, the lower leaves begin to get brown again around the edges. The flowers which were cut last fall were not so full in the center as the Yellow Bonnaffon. Can I overcome the trouble, or would you advise me not to propagate from this stock? C. B.

If your stock plants show the same leaf disease as the old plants last year, I certainly would suggest that you throw them out and try to procure new, clean stock from some other source. A solution of sulphide of potassium, in the proportion of one ounce to two gallons of water, is good for the treatment of rust and all leaf diseases, but, as a matter of fact, if the plants are in poor shape I would suggest that you throw them away and procure new stock from another section of the country. Chas. H. Totty.

POT PLANTS FOR EARLY FALL.

Kindly inform me what are the best early varieties of chrysanthemums for flowering in pots in the fall. State when I should start them and give particulars as to their care. I prefer to sink the pots in a vacant coldframe when the weather is suitable.

K. P. & T. F.

The following varieties are among the best in their respective colors for flowering in pots in the fall: Crimson—Florence Stanton, Crimson Source d'Or, Crimson Quintus, La Triumphant, Rayonnante and Dean's Favorite. White—Mrs. W. Scott and Parsons' White. Bronze—Hortus Tolosanus and Source d'Or. Yellow—Lizzie Adcock and Yellow Triumphant.

If the cuttings are struck by the end of April, so as to be ready to shift the first week in May, they will give the grower splendid pot plants early in the fall. The foregoing are all splendid varieties and will probably give good satisfaction to the grower.

Chas. H. Totty.

HARDY ROSES.

Planting of all hardy roses should be completed as soon as possible, if not already done. It is a mistake to wait each year until the end of April, or even later, before doing this work. The early planted stock has a chance to make nice roots before really hot weather sets in and will give a much better crop of flowers. All roses, of course, succeed best where the ground has been well trenched, working in an abundance of well rotted manure. The hybrid perpetuals succeed particularly well in heavy soil, while the more tender hybrid teas prefer lighter ground, doing well even in sandy soil if mulched and occasionally watered. Be careful not to bring manure into direct contact with the roots; also be sure that all roots are moistened before planting, that the soil is thoroughly firmed and that the budded plants have the buds covered about three inches.

Pruning was probably completed some time ago in the warmer states. From Pennsylvania northward, from the beginning to the middle of April is sufficiently early. The hybrid perpetuals, such as Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. John Laing, Brunner, Prince Camille de Rohan and others, should have been cut back quite hard. No more than three eyes should have been left on the strongest shoots, and one or two on weaker shoots. All dead and weak wood should have been removed entirely. In the case of hybrid teas, such as Mme. Ravary, the Killarneys, Caroline Testout, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Chatenay and others of this class, little cutting back is necessary, but all weak and dead wood should be carefully removed. This latter class of roses is the one which is of real value to florists, as they are such persistent bloomers. Though they are less hardy than the hybrid perpetuals, it is easy to lift and bury them over winter or stand them closely in a cold pit or cellar where the soil about the roots is moist.

The increasing family of ramblers is already starting into growth. If the old canes which flowered last summer were cut clean out near the ground after the blooms had faded, and if the suckers from the base were taken up in their stead, there will be a better crop of flowers than where all the old wood was allowed to remain, but if the old wood was not cut out, shorten back the side shoots half their length. They will flower, but the trusses will be small as compared with those produced on the shoots which started from the base a year ago. Simply head back these long shoots a little and remove all weak and otherwise useless wood.

In planting out ramblers, it pays the best to cut them down close to the ground the first season. This encourages stout breaks from the bottom, but too often all wood is left on with the expectation of the plants giving a few flowers, which at best are puny things, and as a result little growth is made the first year.

There are so many fine new ramblers on the market that it is difficult to make a selection, but Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon, Hiawatha, Flower of Fairfield, Lady Gay, Leuchstern, American Pillar and Trier are all fine and reliably hardy. Crimson Rambler, the pioneer of this class, is not to be recommended; the foliage is bad after flowering, while practically all the other sorts named have fresh, glossy foliage until December. The so-called baby ramblers are persistent bloomers and should be in every florist's garden, as should such useful old sorts as Hermosa, Clothilde Soupert, white and pink Manman Cochet and Mme. Plantier.

ROSES FOR A COOL HOUSE.

I should like to ask you what varieties of roses you would recommend for culture in a cool greenhouse. I want varieties that would do fairly well at a temperature of about 50 to 54 degrees at night.

H. P.

Killarney and White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Richmond will succeed as well as any in the temperatures mentioned. They do best in a night temperature of 56 degrees, but if you can hold yours up to an average of 52 to 54 degrees, they will do fairly well. In midwinter, of course, they would come a little more slowly than those in a warmer house.

C. W.

EELWORMS ON ROSES.

I am enclosing some roots of roses which are badly affected by what I think are eelworms. If you can tell me how to get rid of them, I shall be much pleased. They have killed nearly half of the plants in one house. Some few plants do not appear to be affected. The leaves are small and light green and the stems are limber and weak on most of the plants affected. Sometimes a ground shoot starts and, when the bud begins to develop, it falls over and twists around like a vine. Most of these roses are grown on raised benches, but one bench is solid and does not appear to be so badly affected. I could throw out those in the raised benches, but want to grow those in the solid bench if possible. No plants have been killed so far on the solid bench. A few Bride, Maid and Ivory growing in this house are as fine, healthy plants, apparently, as one could wish, while other plants near them have been killed or nearly so.

W. H.

You have correctly diagnosed the trouble with your roses. There is no sure way to exterminate the worms, when once they are in the benches. Watering with lime water acts as a deterrent and helps the situation somewhat, but the only sure way of exterminating them is steam sterilization of the soil before planting the roses. It would be better to pull out those in the badly affected benches and plant with some other crop, if you are not planning to use them for roses again.

FLOOD RELIEF IN OHIO.

The committee of the Cleveland Florists' Club, appointed by President Graham to investigate the conditions in the state of Ohio and to give relief to those in need, has made good progress, but there is still much to be done. John Evans, who, with E. G. Hill and August Poehlmann, were appointed by President Farquhar of the S. A. F. as an investigation committee, passed through Cleveland this week and held a meeting with the local committee, consisting of A. Graham, H. A. Hart, Geo. W. Smith and Frank Friedley. The field was gone over thoroughly and methods were discussed.

The list of donations to date is as follows:

Arthur Doebel, Norwalk, O., 1,000 geraniums, 1,000 salvias, etc.
Macnair, Florist, Providence, R. I., cash, $10.
Louis Epple, North Pelham, N. Y., cash, $2.
Geo. L. Ely, Clyde, N. Y., 1,000 geraniums.
Stulb's Nursery, Augusta, Ga., five boxes mixed plants, asparagus, salvias, coleus, etc.
L. G. Barbier, Dunkirk, Ind., Boston ferns, 500 geraniums and 400 mums.
Woodbury & Woodbury, St. Johns, Mich., 1,000 carnation cuttings, callas, asparagus, daisies, etc.
R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., 10,000 geraniums.
Wauseon Floral Co., Wauseon, O., 500 salvias, etc.
J. F. Sked, Westerville, O., 500 salvias, geraniums, pelargoniums, etc.
A. Graham & Son, Cleveland, O., geraniums, etc.
J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., Godfrey callas, mums, carnations, etc.
Adam Graham, Cleveland, O., cash, $10.

The names of those helped are not to be mentioned in these columns.

Never was there a more opportune time to help a man who has lost all of his stock, for with Decoration day only a few weeks away he can quickly turn plants into cash.

If you know of any florist in this state who is in need of help—a man to whom a few hundred or a few thousand plants would be of assistance in putting him on his feet—let us know. If you have surplus stock of plants and want to know where to send them to do the most good, let us know. If you are a retailer or a supply man, or if you have no plants to offer, a small amount of cash will help to pay expressage on a box of plants to some brother florist who has met with misfortune in the flood.

What is to be done must be done at once. Reports have been hard to get from down-state, or this matter would have been disposed of sooner.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Samuel J. Perry, former manager of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co., has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. His direct liabilities are given at $6,800, all but a $100 coal bill secured by mortgages or land contracts. His indirect liabilities aggregate $21,750, the amount of his indorsements on the notes of the greenhouse company. The cause of the action, it is stated, is to eliminate this liability.

Stockton, Cal.—Moses J. Shaw, doing business under the name of the San Joaquin Floral Co., whose financial difficulties were mentioned in The Review of April 10, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy April 12, placing his assets at $6,459.64 and his liabilities at $1,749.

New York.—Henry J. Leffers has been appointed receiver for Philip L. Shaeffer, 1247 Lexington avenue, whose financial embarrassment was noted in The Review of April 17.

THE HARDY PERENNIAL GARDEN.

All covering should have been removed before now from the hardy herbaceous perennials. The season is such an advanced one that many plants have already grown as much as is customarily seen a full month later. Of course, we may have considerable cool weather yet in the northern states, but it is unlikely that frost will occur of sufficient severity to injure any of the plants now. If a mulch of decayed manure was given in the fall, this can be worked in with a fork about the plants; otherwise a coating of sheep manure, fine bone and potash, or a special chemical fertilizer should be applied, loosening up the surface soil after applying it. Nitrate of soda must be used with extreme care, or more injury than benefit will result; be sure not to let any of it touch the foliage.

Where a sufficient quantity of phlox cuttings have not been put in, a good batch should now be secured. They root readily in an ordinary cutting bench in a cool house. Do not place them in a warm house, or they will damp off. Peonies which are just starting into growth will be benefited by a top-dressing of a fertilizer containing considerable potash. A good potato manure is suitable. A little later a little dried blood or nitrate of soda will prove beneficial.

Any replanting left over from the fall should now be completed. Plants which have been carried over in cold-frames, and which are in many localities of doubtful hardiness, should be planted out soon. These include aquilegias, incarnilleas, rehmannias, kniphofias, digitalis, Campanula Medium and the so-called hardy chrysanthemums; also a number of small bedding or bordering plants, such as daisies, myosotis, pansies, aubrietias, violas, etc.

MILDEW ON OTAKSA.

What can I do to stop mildew on my Hydrangea Otaksa, of which I enclose a leaf? They were field-grown, potted up in October and set under a bench in the greenhouse to harden up. I brought them out and potted them over in the latter part of February. The buds have started and are beginning to swell, but they do not leaf out as they should, and when they do start they turn brown, mildew and fall off.

The average temperature is 55 degrees during winter. I want them in bloom for Memorial day. C. J. S.

The hydrangeas should be in a light, sunny house, and if properly treated should never be affected by mildew. Cold draughts, due to careless ventilation, usually start mildew, and it must be attended to at once or the plants will be at least badly disfigured. If you use steam, drop a little sulphur here and there on the flow pipe. If you use hot water, paint some on and blow some of the powdered sulphur over the affected plants through a bellows. Avoid spraying over the mildewed plants, as that would only aggravate the evil. Do not crowd the plants. Ventilate and water carefully, and with the aid of the sulphur you should soon see a marked improvement. C. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.Directors' Meeting.

At an adjourned meeting of the board of directors, held in New York, April 8, Vice-President Theo. Wirth reported that he had leased, by order of the board of directors, the Armory and Colosseum in Minneapolis, from August 15 to 23, for the next annual convention. The vice-president also gave a detailed report of the outdoor plant exhibit, stating what progress had been made in this important project. It was decided to rent this space at 10 cents per square foot for the inside bedding space and 5 cents for the borders, intended for perennials, shrubs, etc. Mr. Wirth stated that there would be 13,000 square feet in this garden available for bedding plants and 17,000 square feet available for shrubbery, making the total available space 30,000 square feet. Mr. Wirth was empowered to hire such additional assistance as is necessary and render a bill to the S. A. F.

Secretary Young, who was unable to be at the meeting of the board of directors in February, was instructed to make a trip to Minneapolis at an early date so that he might become entirely familiar with all the possibilities of the convention.

April 10 the board had another meeting, when ex-President Vincent brought up the question of the flood sufferers in the middle west, stating that those sufferers who had so much stock destroyed should have as much help as possible from this society. The plan outlined was that we cooperate with them as far as possible and ask them to make their wants known and publish the fact that certain sufferers were in need of different kinds of stock. Those having surplus stock might communicate with a committee appointed for the purpose and find out the names of those who are in need. It was finally decided that a committee of three be appointed with power to act without expense to the society. This committee is to gather information in regard to the sufferers and to recommend in their judgment those most in need of it. John A. Evans, E. G. Hill and August Poehlmann were appointed as such committee.

Department of Plant Registration.

John Bauscher, Freeport, Ill., offers for registration Geranium American Beauty.

Description: American Beauty geranium originated in a novelty collection. It is a vigorous grower. Stocky in growth; has a more bushy habit than any others. Its foliage is of a green color with a brown zone in leaf, leaf slightly corrugated; it grows about twelve to fifteen inches high. The form of the flower is similar to that of S. A. Nutt, differing in color, which is that of an American Beauty rose.

March 10, 1913.

A Plea to Growers.

One of the principal attractions of the coming S. A. F. convention to be held in Minneapolis, August 19 to 23, will be an outdoor plant exhibit, as shown by plans recently published in the trade papers. Applications for space should be made at once to John Young, secretary, 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York city. The plants should be shipped the last week in May, addressed to Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn. (Outdoor Exhibit). Freight charges must be prepaid. The plants will be planted and properly taken care of by expert employees of the board of park commissioners, and every exhibitor can feel assured that his exhibit will be well taken care of at no other expense than the rental space paid to the S. A. F., namely, 10 cents per square foot for the inside bedding space and 5 cents for the borders, intended for perennials, shrubs, etc.

Every grower is earnestly requested to participate in this exhibit. Novelties and superior varieties of any and all classes of plants are desired. Enough plants to fill one bed should be sent. The plants will be left in garden until fall and the exhibitor will be permitted to display a sign of his firm. These signs must be made of uniform size and will be furnished at cost price by the superintendent of the S. A. F. exhibits.

Please get busy and help us to make the exhibition garden of the S. A. F. a great success.

Even at this date several growers have taken space to assist in making this outdoor exhibition the success it deserves to be.

John Young, Sec'y.

BOSTON.The Market.

Last week showed a distinct improvement in business. This was in some measure due to a material shortening up of supplies owing to the dark, cool and rainy weather, and although such climatic conditions are not conducive to retail buying, stock cleaned up remarkably well. With clearer skies, more flowers now are coming in, but good clearances have been effected in nearly all lines.

Roses are in good supply and the quality, thanks to continued cool weather, is splendid. American Beauties are more plentiful and the best grades sell well. Short-stemmed stock is hard to move. Mrs. Aaron Ward is the favorite among yellows, but Lady Hillingdon has many admirers. Killarneys are far too abundant and low prices are taken for short-stemmed flowers. Taft is selling well. Richmond is splendid, some having exceptional stems. Carnations sell as well as anything on the list; $4 is secured for top-notch flowers, other grades running as low as $1. Some double violets still come in and bring 50 cents per hundred. The supplies of Dutch bulbous stock have shortened up materially. The cool weather favors those who have good, cool cellars for retarding stock. Spanish iris is good. Antirrhinums were never seen in such quantities; pink continues to be the favorite. Callas and lilies are each inclined to be druggery. Sweet peas are of superb quality and of almost every imaginable color. For lily of the valley the demand has been extra good of late. Quite a few Catleya Mossiae are coming in. Some Schrodæras are still seen. The call for gardenias is not good. Green stock is in abundant supply.

Various Notes.

William Sim's pick of sweet peas now is immense and the Flower Growers' Sales Co. has orders for his flowers from quite distant points. Of Zvolanek's new winter blooming Spencers he has over fifty varieties, and these are a great advance over the old grandiflora types.

In last week's issue of The Review F. H. Hazelton was credited with taking first prize for wreath at the Boston Coöperative Market show. This should have read F. H. Houghton, whose beautiful pansy wreath charmed everyone. For basket of yellow marguerites and blue cornflowers the type made Mann Bros. winners instead of Wax Bros.

Marguerites are now a great feature in the local markets. Mrs. Sander from A. E. E. Koch is fine, while the yellows from N. A. Hudson, of Natick, James Wheeler and J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, with 24-inch stems, are wonderfully fine.

William C. Ward, of Quincy, is at present strong on pansies and sends in many thousands daily to the Boston Flower Exchange.

Welch Bros. Co. reports business as satisfactory since Easter.

F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, has been deluged with inquiries for his new snapdragon, Melrose, which won the silver cup in New York. W. Wells, of Earlswood, England, was particularly taken with it and will act as English agent for it.

The New England Rose Co., McAlpine Bros., proprietors, of Exeter, N. H., is sending to the Boston Flower Exchange some splendid Richmond, Dark Pink Killarney, White Killarney and Hillingdon.

Wilfrid Wheeler, of Concord, who was recently appointed Secretary of Agriculture for Massachusetts, will lecture on small fruits at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, May 20. Arrangements are being made for a special car to accommodate members who will attend the field day at W. H. Elliott's, Madbury, N. H., in May.

J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, have fine valley this season. They have the knack of getting good stems and sufficient foliage, even in midwinter. Their carnation Pink Supreme continues to sell on sight at the Boston Coöperative Market.

Eber Holmes, of the Montrose Greenhouses, evidently appreciates the close connection between cows and good roses, as a herd of thirty head has recently been installed there.

The recent trade show at the Boston Coöperative Market has had an excellent effect on business there, practically everything being cleaned out on recent visits there.

Wm. Jurgens, of Newport, is supplying the Flower Growers' Sales Co. with splendid bulb stock, the Spanish iris being excellent. The supply of roses will be largely increased next season, as Thomas Roland's two houses at Revere and several large houses of the Halifax Garden Co., Halifax, Mass., will be devoted to them.

The next exhibition at Horticultural hall will be held May 17 and 18. Calceolarias, pelargoniums and bulbous flowers will be specialties.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, state that this has been a satisfactory bulb season with them. They grow 750,000 Dutch bulbs, more than any other firm near Boston, and market all the stock at the Boston Flower Exchange. The cold April is favorable to them for holding back late varieties.

J. K. Chandler, of Tewksbury, has a beautiful pink sweet pea named Pink Beauty, one of his own introduction and distinct from any other in commerce, which is in strong demand at his stand in the wholesale market. It won first prize recently at the Coöperative Flower Market show.

John McFarland, of North Easton, is handling a superior grade of valley and white lilac. He had a handsome wreath of these two flowers at the trade show.

Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. reports an active seed business, which the cool weather is prolonging. A fine trade is being done in hardy roses, shrubs, dahlias and bedding plants.

Frank J. Dolansky's crop of Cattleya Mossiae is coming in nicely and will give him some thousands of flowers. He still cuts a fine lot of gardenias, roses and carnations.

W. N. Craig.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

The regular monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society was held in the Board of Trade rooms April 18. A large number of members were present and President Duthie occupied the chair. John McIntyre and James Beaton were elected to active membership. The following gentlemen acted as judges for the evening: James Duckham, Duncan Beaton, George Milne, and their decisions were as follows: Society's prize, W. D. Robertson, Joslyn, first; best flowering plant, W. D. Robertson, first; three heads lettuce, Frank Petroccia, Locust Valley, first; collection of orchids, cultural certificate to John T. Ingram, Oyster Bay. A letter was read from H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, offering a premium of $10 for twelve cactus dahlias and twelve peony-flowered. It was decided to hold a euchre party and dance May 2, in the truck house. A committee was appointed to have the plans for this matured and tickets sent to all members. The matter of buying seeds was left in the hands of the president and secretary, to do the best they could. The exhibit for May will call for one vase flowering shrubs, bunch of twenty-five asparagus, one vase outdoor flowers.

OBITUARY.

John C. Hann.

John C. Hann, who was city nurseryman at Richmond, Va., for a number of years until his resignation last year, died recently at his home in that city. He is survived by two sons, George D. Hann, who succeeded him as city nurseryman, and R. C. Hann, also of Richmond.

Mrs. Andrew J. Winget.

Mrs. Andrew J. Winget, aged 32 years, died at her home at Mansfield, O., April 17, after an illness of two years. She underwent an operation last May, but it was not successful. She was a great lover of flowers and ably assisted her husband in the greenhouse and store.

August Carl Kahlmeyer.

August Carl Kahlmeyer, 83 years old, died April 18 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. James F. Dick, 22 Cottage place, Tarrytown, N. Y. Mr. Kahlmeyer was born in Berlin and at one time was a gardener to the Court of Prussia. He leaves four daughters and three sons.

Ben F. Rubel.

The president of the Fleischman Floral Co., Ben F. Rubel, died at 3 p. m., Friday, April 18, at his residence, 4337 Grand boulevard, Chicago, after a brief illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Rubel was the son of Mrs. Frances Rubel, brother of Mrs. I. E. Block, Mrs. N. A. Kauffman, I. A. Rubel, Dr. Maurice Rubel and Harry Rubel. He was born September 17, 1866, and his entire business career was in Chicago. He made a pronounced success of the B. F. Rubel Candy Co., operating one of the largest confectionery stores on State street, but his rapid rise began when he took over the flower business established in an adjoining store by Joseph Fleischman, of New York. Mr. Rubel shortly removed the flower store to the Railway Exchange building and secured the services of George W. Wienhoeber as manager. Mr. Rubel was not only a merchant of unusual ability, but he seemed to have a special faculty for systematizing the flower business and the daring to invest large sums of money in its development. His advertising expenditure in recent years is said to have exceeded $15,000 per annum and the expenditure on store facilities was on an equally liberal scale. As a result of his genius for merchandising, combined with Mr. Wienhoeber's ability as a florist, they were able to develop what is now considerably the largest retail flower business in Chicago, and probably in the United States. Mr. Rubel was not personally widely known in the trade. He was all attention to business, but took no part in trade activities outside his own store. He was a director of the Chicago Hebrew Institute, a member of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Standard Club and the Illinois Athletic Association. He had never married.

The funeral was held Sunday morning, April 20, at Sinai Temple, thence by automobile to Rosehill. There was a large showing of flowers, a number of handsome pieces coming from wholesale and retail florists, and a number of those in the trade were present.

It is understood that, appreciating the serious nature of his illness, Mr. Rubel put all his business affairs in order, making arrangements which will insure the carrying on the business of the Fleischman Floral Co. along the same lines as in the past.

T. H. Paterson.

Thomas H. Paterson, aged 43, formerly a well known florist of Baltimore, Md., and for four years master of Lexington market, in that city, dropped dead April 15 while ascending the stairs of a hall to attend a meeting. Mr. Paterson's father was also a leading florist in his day, father and son having been in business for a long time on Eutaw street, near Lexington street. The father died several years ago. Mr. Paterson is survived by his wife.

Montclair, N. J.—James N. Jarvie, a wealthy citizen of this town, has announced that he will make a gift of $500 to the Montclair Civic Association, to be used as prizes in a garden competition. He made a similar gift last year and the competition for the prizes was keen.

Results bring advertising.
 The Review brings results.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE guarantors for the Third National Flower Show, April 21, received checks from Chairman Totty for the return of the assessment made for preliminary expenses. A dividend is in early prospect.

ONE man who achieved some little success at the National Flower Show attributes the quality of his stock to washing his glass. His idea is that many a grower would make money by getting on the roof occasionally.

ABNORMAL conditions prevail this season with regard to hardy cut ferns. Usually the market is strong and advancing at this date, but this year most of the large packers and those who carry quantities in cold storage appear to be heavily loaded. Consequently the market is weak and declining.

WRITE MR. GUDE.

All florists and horticulturists who have any suggestions to make as to changes, if any, in the present tariff bill which is now before Congress, should send in suggestions at once, if they have not already done so, to the chairman of the tariff committee of the S. A. F., Wm. F. Gude, 1214 F street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Mr. Gude will be pleased to do all that he can to further the interest of the florists and horticulturists, and members of the kindred organizations, but is at a loss to know what action to take until the parties interested make complaints or suggestions.

Wm. F. Gude, Chairman.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The color chart committee of the American Gladiolus Society, after examining all the available charts, has recommended the adoption of the "Repertoire de Couleurs" as the official color chart of the society.

As the time for gladiolus planting is near, the committee on nomenclature again calls the attention of members of the society to the importance of their support, especially in the contribution of bulbs of varieties the names of which are duplicated, as well as varieties which have been renamed. The committee states that 385 named varieties and seedlings have been tested on the trial grounds, but that there are at least 450 named varieties in the American trade which have not thus been tried. In other words, less than half of the varieties grown have been tested. It is impossible to determine whether seedlings are distinct unless all the varieties have been submitted. Have you sent bulbs of all your varieties to the trial grounds?

The members of the committee feel that this particular part of their task is even of more importance than the registration of new varieties, and unless the requests of the committee are heeded, the advancement of this work is delayed, and results naturally expected by the members from their committee are not secured.

OUR PROGRESS.

Your Profit.

It is only because advertising pays that it increases. Results produce more advertising. It is the profitable mining-camp that attracts the gold-seekers. Hence you should be interested in knowing that in April, 1913, The Review has carried 332% inches more classified plant ads than in April, 1912. It is a gain of 24 per cent. Here is the record:

Month.	Inches.
April, 1913	1719 1/2
April, 1912	1386 1/2

Gain 332%

This large increase in volume of classified advertising was due solely to the profit returned advertisers. Because of the nature of these classified ads it is impossible to solicit them individually.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

With a demand that is just about equal to the supply, the local market conditions are better than they have been for the last month and practically everything cleans up at good prices. The extreme shortage of stock that caused the wholesalers some worry the previous week has been relieved to some extent by the bright weather and at present the only apparent shortage is of orchids. Receipts of cattleyas have been small and, with the spring wedding orders creating a more than normal demand, there is some trouble in filling orders for these. Prices have naturally stiffened.

Beauties in some quarters have not been so plentiful as heretofore, but continue equal to all needs. While there is excellent stock coming on the market, there is considerable in the way of low grade Beauties being cut. The demand for Beauties has been excellent since the express companies reestablished shipping facilities and the call for long-stemmed stock as well as the shorts has been brisk. In other roses the supply and quality in most cases are as good as could be desired. There are no more of the long and medium roses than are needed and on the short white there is a demand that fairly exceeds the present cut. Killarneys sell well, as do Richmond, Mrs. Taft, Lady Hillingdon, Radiance and Mrs. Ward. The latter is popular for corsage work and not enough can be cut to fill all wants.

Carnations are exceedingly good property. While no fancy prices are being obtained, the wholesalers find little difficulty in moving them out at prices that are in accordance with the quality of the stock. Red is the only color not easy to supply.

ROSES

OUR STOCK HAS A NATIONAL REPUTATION

TO BE KNOWN as handling Amling's Roses means that your store has the reputation of handling the best quality stock. Quality has been our steady aim. There almost always are plenty of short, weak Roses, but scarcely ever too many of the best grade. Everybody knows good Roses always are in demand. That is why we have paid unceasing attention to developing a constant supply of long, strong-stemmed Roses. You will find also that our Roses carry larger and finer heads, length for length of stem, than any you have had from other sources. We have a full line. Special attention should be called to our Mrs. Ward. There is no other Rose in such strong demand. We have the largest supply to be found anywhere in America.

SNAPDRAGON

Something Your Trade Will Like

Any retailer who has a call for out-of-the-ordinary work should use our Snapdragon. When this stock is used by a man who knows how, it never fails to make a hit. Long stems, beautifully flowered. Can supply other colors, but are especially strong on pink, the true Killarney shade. It works up splendidly. Put a vase of it in your show window and listen to the comments. It will sell.

SWEET PEAS

You Need Them for Corsage Work

This is the time of year when you can do a fine corsage business with our fancy, long-stemmed sweet peas. We have long-stemmed sweet peas in very large quantity—can fill orders for thousands. The longest stemmed, brightest colored, special fancy Blanche Ferry and the popular Butterfly (Spencer) peas in all colors.

CARNATIONS

Quality Is More Important than Price

This is prize-winning stock. The buyers have found that it pays, at this season, especially, to order the best. We give value. The more you think about it the more certain you are to order Carnations of us.

EASTER LILIES

You Always Can Get Them Here

You can get here all the Lilies you need, for work and for decorations. We have arranged for a large crop, the first of which is just coming in. A steady supply.

dance and show fine quality. In the miscellaneous line there is considerable variety and snapdragon and Spanish iris are in big supply and of excellent quality. There is still a large quantity of outdoor bulbous stock on the market and plenty of jonquils and tulips are being shipped to market daily. Valley enjoys the usual spring demand and the prices hold firm on the best of stock. Weather conditions have been favorable and the quality is all that could be wanted. Lilies are in good demand, but the supply now is large.

Smilax is scarce; the supply fluctuates widely from week to week. Hardy cut ferns are falling in price at a date they customarily advance, due to offers from eastern shippers who are seeking to unload at low prices.

Association Meeting.

The Cook County Florists' Association, at its meeting at the Tavern, April 17, had an excellent attendance, President A. C. Kohlbrand in the chair. H. N. Bruns had been announced as the principal speaker, but was unable to be present because of illness. H. A. Philpott talked interestingly of his trip to trade centers in England, and of the National Flower Show.

The principal feature of the evening, however, was a discussion of publicity, introduced by P. Pearson, chairman of the association's publicity committee. Mr. Pearson had brought to the meeting Mr. Shelton, representing a street car advertising company, who estimated that if each florist in Chicago would contribute $2.50 per month it would meet the cost of having a handsome display card in every street car in Chicago.

D. Paptony, Frederick Charles Price, Peter Tremulis and George Wieter were elected to membership. An application was received from Fred Krauss, of Winterson's Seed Store.

Secretary A. T. Pyfer announced that he is prepared to book reservations on the association's special train, via the St. Paul railroad, to the Minneapolis convention in August. He stated that out-of-town florists who join the party will be provided with tags for their hand baggage, which will result in the baggage being taken care of on arrival in Chicago and placed in the owner's space on the special train, thereby relieving the florist of all trouble for the day spent in Chicago.

Various Notes.

The Randolph Market is the name selected for the new quarters of Sinner Bros., M. C. Gunterberg, Frank Beu, H. C. Blewitt and A. E. Hunt & Co., who will move May 1 onto the floor now occupied by H. Wittbold. The latter has more space than he needs, but will continue at the same place, while J. A. Budlong will use the entire second floor at 82 to 86 Randolph street, where the five others have been for two years.

The death of Ben F. Rubel, president of the Fleischman Floral Co., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

John Canger, of Canger & Bergman, now is with John Mangel. Mr. Canger says that the Canger & Bergman store is closed for good, that the stock and Mothers' Day is a day set aside by the whole of North America to honor universal motherhood.

ON MAY 11th

EVERYONE SENDS FLOWERS TO MOTHER
EVERYONE WEARS A WHITE FLOWER IN HONOR OF MOTHER
EVERYONE GIVES A WHITE FLOWER TO SOMEONE ELSE TO WEAR

In memory of the loving mothers who have passed away, flowers are sent to every sick room, sanitarium, hospital, almshouse, prison and orphanage.

Any white flower typifies Mothers' Day, although many prefer the white carnation for "Mothers' Day Flower." Its virtues are similar to those of the Mother. Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, beauty; its fragrance, love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, faithfulness.

OMAHA, NEB.

At a meeting of the Omaha Florists' Club, April 10, and at the request of Ed. Williams, president of the Nebraska State Florists' Society, it was decided to send a call to the florists of the state for a voluntary cash contribution for the relief of Hans Jensen, at Forty-ninth and Leavenworth streets, whose greenhouses and home were destroyed by the tornado Easter Sunday, March 23.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its first monthly meeting April 17 at its new quarters in the spacious, handsomely furnished meeting room of the Progressive Union, corner St. Charles and Common streets. A large gathering of members was present. President Herman Doescher opened the meeting and Secretary C. R. Panter introduced the first speaker of the evening, Dr. G. Holt, president of the parking commission. In his subject, "Rules and Regulations of the Parking Commission," the speaker stated that the city assumed the right to plant all public highways, protected by the law in the person of the city attorney. Nobody has a right to plant or have planted any tree, shrub or plant on any of the city's highways. Everything to be planted must be approved by the parking commission. The first example of its work is the present style of planting and beautifying the city's highways, started during the winter months.

A short discussion followed the speaker's interesting remarks, after which P. A. Chopin made a motion to appoint a committee to confer with the parking commission to obtain information governing concessions to plant trees and shrubs on the public highways. The following were appointed: Harry Papworth, F. A. Quinette and Peter Chopin.

The next speaker introduced was Glen Fleming, secretary of the Southern States Fair and Pan-American Exposition. He gave a clear outline of the object of the coming exposition, to be held in the fall of 1914, and to be international in its scope. The buildings to be erected will be permanent and destined to show to the world the great resources of the south, each state erecting its own building for its exhibits. The speaker asked the cooperation of the members of the society in beautifying the grounds and the interior of Horticultural hall, stating that the florists should look upon it as their building and help to show what can be done here in the line of horticulture. Mr. Fleming invited the members of the society to visit him at his office to give

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The market has shown surprising strength during the week ending April 23. This is in direct contrast to the weakness immediately after Easter. It was then so bad that nothing worse seemed possible. The improvement has been steadily continued since, until now we are enjoying a market so brisk that it is hard to realize that it is the end of the third week in April. The causes for this reversal of ordinary conditions are interesting. The immense crops of plants and flowers marketed at Easter naturally caused a reaction afterward. This was intensified by the heavy crops that missed Easter and by the southern daffodils, then at their height. With the passing of the heavy crops came the dark, cool weather and a curtailment in the variety of stock; no outdoor flowers worth mentioning have yet replaced the sorts grown indoors that are over. The fine quality of the stock coming into the market has encouraged the demand, now quite brisk. Flowers are selling quickly at moderate prices, with the supply at times unequal to the demand.

Beauties and carnations have advanced, while all other varieties are firm. Valley has been in lively request and numerous extra shipments have been required on several days. Sweet peas of the fancy grade are scarce, indeed. Snapdragon is sold in large quantity at figures that show a decline. There are few Easter lilies coming into town, the fag end of the calla crop taking their place. Violets are nearly over. Emperor is the only daffodil from indoors. White lilac is an important factor. Carnations were really scarce at times. Greens have been largely used.

Lancaster.

The April meeting of the Lancaster Florists' Club was held April 17. It was the largest meeting in the history of the club, about seventy-five members being present. As usual, the members visited in a body before the meeting. George W. Park was the host on this occasion and his seed establishment proved interesting. Samuel S. Pennock was the speaker of the evening. He read a carefully prepared paper giving his views on those features of the wholesale cut flower business that he thought might prove of interest to the members, who afterward quizzed him for some time. The best of feeling prevailed. A vase of H. D. Rohrer's fine red seedling carnation was on exhibition.

foreign contingent of next season's novelties.

William J. Muth has rejoined the King Construction Co. Mr. Muth, who has a reputation for lining up the growers, will have charge of the eastern district, with headquarters in this city.

F. J. Michell returned last week from a business trip to Baltimore and Washington, where his unfailing good humor has won him many friends.

John Willard, for nearly twenty-seven years with the M. Rice Co., and its predecessors, M. Rice & Co., Joseph Marschuetz & Co. and the Philadelphia Immortelle Design Co., has done much in his positions of workman and foreman to add to the success achieved by them.

E. H. Outerbridge, of Bermuda, has been visiting in this city.

Frederick Cramer and Miss Emma Karnstadt were married April 16. Mr. Cramer has been for the last ten years with the Leo Niessen Co., where he commenced work as an errand boy, and has now risen to a position of trust.

His friends wish him happiness with a right good will.

Edward Reid, chairman of the essay committee of the Florists' Club, announces that the speaker for the May meeting will be Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa. The subject will be "Affiliation." Mr. Reid intimates that "Affiliation" will be in harmony with "Zeitgeist," Charles Fox's now famous discourse on "The Spirit of the Times."

William Swayne, of Kennett, Pa., went trout fishing April 15. Mr. Swayne is fish warden of Kennett, so you may rest assured that he began on just the right day and caught just the right number of speckled beauties.

Israel Rosnosky left April 21 on a trip to New England.

Samuel S. Pennock visited Coatesville, Ronks, Stroudsburg and Paradise last week, after speaking at Lancaster.

Gilbert Baker opened the fishing season on a New Jersey lake April 20, and he was nearly capsized in a lively gale.

The M. Rice Co. received this week a unique memento of the flood in Dayton. It was in the form of a check in payment of a number of invoices for shipments to a customer there. The check is dated March 13, and both it and the invoices have been watersoaked and covered with mud, having been over a month in the trip from Dayton to Philadelphia.

In reply to a jocular remark that the great sometimes work, W. J. Sherry aptly replied that they could not become great unless they did.

The Robert Craig Co. has been successful in raising an exceptionally fine lot of small chrysanthemums. Phil.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Victor Nelson, of the John Nelson Co., is having exceptional success with Mrs. Lawson carnation this season. His present crop does not look as though the variety has played out.

Nashville, Tenn.—It is said that Wat Schleicher has filed suit against the Joy Floral Co. to recover $5,000 damages alleged to have been sustained recently while he was in the employ of the company.

gether, each one helping the other, pointing out when and where things could be improved and having many things considered and talked over that otherwise would never come up.

Then, again, there are times when a grower thinks he knows better than the wholesaler when he should send his stock in. This is a great mistake, as the commission man's business is to know when the goods should be sent in and when there should be the best market for them. Of course, sometimes his judgment is at fault and things do not work out just as he has expected, but on the whole he is certainly in a better position to make the decision than the grower. And when the grower does not have confidence enough in his commission man to be willing to abide by his decisions in these matters and persists in sending in his stock as he thinks best, then he had better send his stock to some other market, or else try to get a little confidence from some of his neighbors who do back up their commission men, feeling that it is the only way to do in sending stock to any wholesaler. More than once we have instructed our growers to send in their stock on a certain day or days and then have had them disregard these instructions and send in the stock when they thought best, and in such cases the flowers have probably gotten in too late to get the benefit of the best market.

Early Shipper Reaps Profit.

The wholesale markets are coming more and more each year to do their business early in the morning and this brings us to another important point. Get your stock in early in the day, for the man who has his shipments in early is the man who is going to have his flowers sold first. There is no doubt about this. If you wish the best results you will have to conform to these conditions, even if it does mean starting your day's work an hour or two earlier. The old saying that "the early bird catches the worm" is only too true in this case.

I would like also to speak of the tendency which some growers have to hold back stock, hoping for big prices, particularly at holiday times, although this is something which has troubled us more in the past than it has for the last year or two. This is a bad practice and never can be anything but detrimental to the sale of the stock. As an illustration of this, I remember one Memorial day when a large shipment of carnations came in to us from one of our growers. Some of the stock was beautiful, fresh and well grown flowers, but a large portion of it was stock which showed that it had been pickled, and this poor stock condemned the whole shipment. This particular grower must have lost $200 or $300 by holding his stock, where, if he had sent it in when it was good and fresh, even on a lower market, he would have come out far ahead of the way he did. It was a lesson to him, one which he never forgot, and he told us afterwards that he would never repeat that mistake.

We would much prefer to have to notify our customers that we had sold up clean and were not able to take care of their orders, or were only able to send them a portion of their order, rather than to send them stock that we knew would not hold up for them, stock that would be bound to make trouble. Pickling is a thing of the past and any grower who indulges in it does so at his own expense. We cannot force these goods on the buyer of today.

Close Attention to Details.

I have said practically nothing about the growing and it would be a hard matter for me to give you any advice on points on which you are at fault in this respect. When the stock comes in I can tell whether it has been well or poorly grown, or whether it has been grown in too high or too low a temperature or various points of that kind, but naturally it is the conditions governing the marketing of the stock with which I am most familiar. But I would say that here again in the growing is where details count, and where good results will not come without proper attention to details. Well grown stock always shows that it has had the attention and care that are necessary to produce good flowers, and without such attention and care it is seldom that good stock is grown. Sometimes it is possible to get good stock without attention to these details, but this is more good luck than good management, and it is seldom that a grower is able to repeat such a chance success.

These are the points which our experience as wholesalers has brought most forcibly to my attention, and I hope you will consider them as they have been given—hints and suggestions made in a spirit of frankness and helpfulness and not in the spirit of fault-finding. I believe that every man wants to improve his business whenever and wherever he can and is glad to get pointers, even if they are in the line of criticism and not praise.

We, too, have our faults and are glad to be told of our mistakes, so that we can seek a remedy for them. But our interests are identical and there can be no separation of our motives, our ambitions and our results. One hinges on the other and the more we try to help each other with friendly criticism and deserved praise, as well as blame, the greater efforts we both will be able to put forth. Give us your confidence and support, believe that we are working for your best interests as well as our own, and then there can be no question of our mutual success and profit.

is both good and plentiful and the locally grown stock can hardly be beat. Snapdragons are in big demand and there are enough to fill all orders. The keeping quality of these flowers makes them preferable to roses at this season of the year. Orchids are scarce. Cat-tleya Mossiae is bringing $7.50 and such as are coming in are quickly sold, their color making them general favorites. Schroederæ seems to be too pale and small for the local trade. There are a few gigas to be had, which are bringing $7.50. Gardenias are overplentiful, though not of the best quality, and are

New Ebbitt House, Fourteenth and F streets, N. W., May 6. At this time the newly elected officers will be installed and professional talent has been engaged to furnish entertainment for the guests.

Messrs. Schaffer, Lennan and Cooke made fine scores at the New York show in the bowling contests, their scores being 548, 538 and 535, respectively; and there were only two other florists who did better.

Among the visitors in town during last week were: Mr. and Mrs. John Heintz, Terre Haute, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.; Mr. and Mrs. John Stuppy and party, St. Joseph, Mo.; W. N. Rudd, Mount Greenwood, Ill., and Harry Papworth, New Orleans, La.

Local florists are taking an active part in the work being undertaken by the various commercial organizations to provide entertainment for, and make a success of, the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, to be held here in June. Among those who are active in this connection are Z. D. Blackistone, F. W. Bolgiano and W. F. Gude. C. L. L.

The trade is interested in a new lilac now to be seen at the store of J. H. Small & Sons, and blooming at their greenhouses. It is named H. Koster, the variety for which M. Koster & Sons, of Boskoop, recently were given an award of merit by the Royal Horticultural Society in London. It is rich, deep blue, carrying good trusses of larger flowers than do the varieties commonly grown by florists. The Smalls think highly of it. The plants they are flowering just now are some sent for trial, for it will not be put on the market until next year. Gude Bros. Co. also had some plants for trial, but brought them into flower earlier. Both the Gude brothers speak well of it, saying that it is easy to flower and a good seller.

INDIANA FLORISTS MEET.

In all likelihood the Northern Indiana Florists' Association and the Indiana State Florists' Association will merge in one central society. July 10, at Winona Lake, a committee of five members from each body will report on the question which occupied the chief attention at a joint meeting held at Portland April 16, the state organization holding its April monthly meeting and the northern Indiana division meeting in quarterly session. The sessions were led by President W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, and Secretary O. E. Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, of the State Association, and J. D. Conner, of Wabash, and A. J. Wagoner, of Columbia City, president and secretary of the Northern Indiana Society. The two bodies have a membership of 275.

Members reported the heaviest damage of a decade to their enterprises because of recent storms and floods. At the meeting there was a display of stock by some of the fortunate ones, and a dinner was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church.

Those present were: Mr. Barnaby,

The Market.

Business has had its ups and downs, but on the whole it has been good. There is still a fine lot of bulbous stock available and, with peas, roses, snapdragon, etc., little trouble is experienced in filling orders. Several of the stores are already displaying fine boxwood and bay trees and the season is opening up nicely.

Various Notes.

Albert Pochelon may be seen any Sunday afternoon doing a back-to-nature act on the grounds surrounding his home on the boulevard. His hobby is his fine collection of shrubs, and while the rest of us are out joy riding Mr. Pochelon is pushing a wheelbarrow or counting the buds on his wistaria vine.

The ladies of the Plant, Fruit and Flower Guild had an affair in Breitmeyer's store the evening of April 16 and the whole establishment was converted into a fairyland by the presence of so many ladies in their spring gowns.

Miss Burch, for many years employed by Hufford & Maebius, was married April 15 and will make sprays and bouquets no more.

The stores of W. B. Brown, Norman Sullivan, Broadway Flower Shop, B. Schroeter, J. F. Sullivan and Gus H. Taepke recently were entered by burglars.

The fight against the two bills at Lansing which would seriously affect growers in Michigan using steam for heating purposes and which was started some time ago by the Detroit Florists' Club, has ended in a victory. Both bills were passed, but not before being amended so as to exempt horticulturists and agriculturists. H. S.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business activity was well maintained during the last week and the demand for cut flowers was unusually large. The larger business houses in the center of the city combined in making a fete of the opening week of the season and this accelerated the demand, not only for cut flowers, but for palms and plants for decorative purposes.

Various Notes.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Garden Co., has been elected president of the Rhode Island Bank Clerks' Association. His firm is selling a large quantity of rose bushes for outdoor planting.

William Appleton & Son are exceedingly busy with outdoor work, laying out lawns and estates.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, is cutting some choice Catleya Trianae.

T. O'Connor had two large wedding decorations last week, as well as several smaller functions.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Ed. Brooks, proprietor, furnished the decorations for the big annual banquet of the local order of Elks at the Crown hotel, April 16. Joseph Kopelman furnished the cut flowers.

At a meeting of the Warwick school committee, April 16, it was voted that "the committee condemns the practice of giving flowers at the graduation exercises of the schools of the town."

Ernest Howard has just received several carloads of trees and shrubs for his nursery at Auburn.

S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, who suffered a shock March 16, is reported to be slightly better.

Eric Bonevier, who has been manager of the greenhouses of the late William Butcher, has purchased them from Mrs. Butcher and will conduct them himself.

The W. E. Barrett Co. is now settled in its new store, 89 to 95 Canal street, one block north of the old location, where the firm had been for nearly half a century.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Southwestern Market.

The local market underwent some changes last week. During the early part of the week stock was selling well at advanced prices, but later in the week the demand fell off greatly, stock suddenly became plentiful in everything, prices went down low and buyers in big lots held the whip. Buyers in small lots had to pay from 1 to 2 cents more for their stock. The retail trade was not any too brisk all the week. The busy ones now are the greenhouse men, who have all they can do getting things in shape for planting out.

In looking over the market we find an abundance of stock in carnations and sweet peas. Carnations are down as low as $1.50 per hundred for good stock. Extra fancy alone holds to 2 cents. Peas are down in price again, and $2.50 buys a fine lot of fancy peas. Roses, too, are plentiful and low in St. Louis County Club.

Anton C. Zvolanek, of Lompoc, Cal., on his way home from the National Flower Show in New York, spent April 18 and 19 as a guest of the Kirkwood florists. Mr. Zvolanek was met on his arrival by Hugo Gross and Joseph Hauser, who visited with him the interesting points in St. Louis and Kirkwood. The Kirkwood florists, numbering forty-five, arranged a meeting at the Eleven Mile house April 19. Fred W. Ude, Jr., was the presiding officer. He introduced Mr. Zvolanek, who spoke for an hour on the culture of sweet peas, from the first to the present-day varieties. He concluded his talk by telling the florists that long-stemmed peas were the only stock to grow and that the short-stemmed should be relegated to the dump pile.

A short recess was taken and a fine spread was served, at which Mr. Zvosay that trade in plants, bulbs and seeds was rushing.

The Retail Florists' Association met
April 21 at the Washington hotel.

Frank Windler, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., reports an exceptionally busy week. The firm cleaned up pretty well each day, the glut being cut short by the dark weather of the week previous.

William Vogel and Oscar Kuehn, with the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., have their hands full with advance orders in wooden easels and wire trellises.

Albert Scheidegger, of Kirkwood, has been cutting a fine lot of purple sweet peas, which found a ready market at any time.

C. Buesking, of Gardenville, Mo., is supplying the local trade with fine pansy plants. He disposed of several thousand last week.

Julius Koenig, city forester, says his department is busy and the entire force is giving its attention to the city sidewalk trees.

The fine weather last week has taxed our nurserymen and landscape gardeners to the full limit, as they had not been able to do much work in their line for some time previously.

James Young, head of the C. Young & Sons Co., has fully recovered from his recent illness, and is back in his office at the downtown store. His youngest son, Walter, has been added to the store force.

Miss Theresa Badaracco has taken a rest for the last two weeks, and in her absence Mrs. Gaudolfa, her sister, and Anna Meyer have charge of the store.

At H. G. Berning's, stock was plentiful all the week. Otto Bruenig, who has charge while the proprietor is away, says high grade stock sold well, but that the lower grades were slow in demand.

Geo. H. Angermueller handled a lot of good quality carnations and roses during the week. Fred Alves says they shipped a lot of supplies during the week.

Paddy Patton, of the Smith force, was asked the other day why it was he never drank water. He replied that he was afraid it would rust his ironclad constitution.

Alex Siegel reports a good transient trade last week. The bright sunshine brought out the shippers in full force.

Nearly 10,000 St. Louisans got a rare treat April 20, when that number visited the Missouri Botanic Garden to view the tulips in bloom all over the grounds. The large bed in front of the new greenhouse contained 30,000 tulips. Dr. Moore says the rearrangement of the beds and the new conservatory will be completed by June 15.

Phil Goebel, of Kirkwood, gave a barn dance April 19, at which all the florists in and around Kirkwood were in attendance. The whole force of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. went out in the big auto truck to take in the fun.

Peter Bora, of the Red Bud Floral Co., and Miss Marguerite Capone were married April 20 at the home of the bride, 3049 Glasgow place. The trade was invited to both weddings. J. J. B.

J. Deutschmann has been granted a permit to erect three greenhouses and a frame shed on his place at Kirkwood.

AUSTIN, TEX.

The growth of the flower and greenhouse plant trade in this section has been remarkable. Ten years ago there were three small, struggling establishments in town; now there are six and one of them does more than all did at that date.

Mrs. Eva Seiders, the carnation specialist, had a fine outside trade last winter and hopes to increase her area of glass.

O. Olson, E. Friedrich and Charles Alf & Co. are all increasing their glass, as trade is constantly demanding more stock.

The Market.

Northern growers are dumping a lot of belated bulbous stock into the market here, but the returns cannot be good, for there is too much local stock for the demand and only the choicest quality brings satisfactory prices. Baby roses, Cecile Brunner, are coming in freely from outdoors, and this little gem seems to be getting more popular here every year. Roses of other kinds are plentiful, some fine indoor Frau Karl Druschki from the north making a welcome change from White Killarney. The stems are short as yet on the outdoor roses, but the color is good and the foliage clean. Carnations, both indoor and outdoor, are good and plentiful.

Spanish irises are becoming more plentiful and there were a few gladioli on the market last week that brought fancy prices. Ranunculus, ixias, sparaxis and other bulbous stock make a change from daffodils and hyacinths, while the California poppies make a beautiful show. Lilac in purple and white and other shrub flowers help to make a variety. Greens of the more common kinds are still plentiful but good. Smilax and asparagus are scarce. In plants, rhododendrons, azaleas, primulas and cyclamens hold the stage and the demand for them is not great. There is still an active call for magnolia leaves.

At the Pasadena Show.

The spring show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, April 10 to 12, was of so fine a character that the visitors from Los Angeles were richly repaid for the trip. The weather was of the southern California brand and the attendance was all that could be desired on all three days. The exhibits were of a higher order than had been seen at Pasadena before, especially in the bulb classes. In the class for six tulips the judges had the greatest difficulty in giving their decision, so many fine lots being shown. The six Pride of Haarlem exhibited by A. Wilson, gardener for Mrs. Neustadt, were absolutely perfect and were timed to the minute. There were others that looked as well, or nearly so, the first day, but the terrific heat under the tent was "melting" and on the second morning the flowers would not have been so difficult to judge. The group of flowering plants put up by W. T. Shield, gardener for Mrs. W. Allerton, was a winner. The flatness characteristic of the usual groups was absent and every plant told. Schizanthus Wisetonensis, Nicotiana Sandera and others were finely grown and tastefully displayed. All the private gardeners' exhibits were good and the competition in some cases was unusually keen.

In the trade groups, Howard & Smith took a prominent place. The front of the orchestra was completely covered with a trellis, on which was trained the new red Cherokee rose, Ramona, in full flower. The ends and sides were flanked with fine kentias and the center was occupied by a magnificent lot of pansies of the well known Howard & Smith quality. The crowning point of all, however, was the beautiful collection of amaryllises in flower. Fred Howard has worked with this strain until there is nothing in the country to equal it, and those who cannot make it convenient to see the Montebello grounds, where they are grown by the acre, had a good opportunity here.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co., South Main street, Los Angeles, made a fine exhibit of bulbous and other flowers, showing the quality of the seed strains controlled by this noted firm. The date was a little late for the narcissi, but the tulips were at their best and the great variety and high quality of the flowers shown were a revelation.

J. Dieterich, of Wall street, Los Angeles, showed fine plants of Erica persoluta alba.

The Clemence Nurseries, Pasadena, had an excellent exhibit. The back of their group was composed of fine hanging baskets of "lotus." The front consisted of small, pretty groups of popular stock, such as begonias, coleus, Geum miniatum, rehmannias and others. The stock in all cases was finely grown and in good cultural condition, each plant a replica of the other. A great deal of credit is due to this young and energetic firm for the showing made in a short time.

The Mentor Nursery, Robert Pegg proprietor, showed a pretty group of plants in which Bougainvillea lateritia was prominent; also a fine lot of the African daisy, Dimorphotheca aurantiaca.

Theodore Payne, of Los Angeles, put up a group of rare and unique plants and shrubs, which was the center of an interested group of spectators during the whole continuance of the show.

The Los Angeles Flower Market was the only wholesale flower firm from Los Angeles that showed, C. E. Morton putting up a fine table of tulips.

William Hertrich, gardener at the Huntington estate, put up a group of palms, ferns and foliage plants and a good display of cinerarias came from William Hutchinson, gardener for Mrs. Eva Fenyes.

The progress made in school gardening here was well shown in the pretty display of flowers, the fine vegetables and interesting exhibits of correctly named wild flowers put up by the public school children.

I should like to mention many more of the fine exhibits made by private gardeners, did space permit, but I cannot close without a word for J. McGillivray, the president of the association and manager of the show. From first to last he was never too busy to attend to every detail of management, and the smoothness of the arrangements and the good feeling permeating the whole show were largely due to his unceasing energy and never-failing tact.

The judging was in the hands of W. Donald, W. E. Felgate, of Sierra Madre; Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles; H. R. Richards, of Los Angeles; Theodore Payne, J. Taylor and I. Farrel.

Various Notes.

There has seldom been a more pleasant gathering than at a "house-warming" dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Fischer, of San Gabriel, April 13, in their new home. As Mr. Fischer said, it was too late to show us freesias, but he could show us a good time, and he surely did. The roads are fine and the whole party made the trip in autos. After allowing time for a short look around, Mrs. Fischer announced dinner, which was a splendid one, to which all did ample justice. Home-raised turkey and other good things disappeared rapidly and everyone present was loud in praise of our host and hostess. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Fischer and family, the following were present: R. W. Saakes and wife, J. Dieterich, wife, son and daughter, H. N. Gage and wife, C. E. Morton, wife and daughter, all of Los Angeles; Fred Howard and wife, Henry Turner, wife and "Boy," and H. R. Richards and wife, of Montebello.

Charlie C. Miller, of 329 North Mentor avenue, Pasadena, has added a new rose house, 34 x 100, and is thinking of building another, 40 x 200, this summer. The quality of Mr. Miller's roses this season is especially good and at the recent spring show at Pasadena he exhibited elegant Beauties, Chatenays and Ulrich Brunners. He is planting several novelties this year.

& Smith's, at Montebello, and for many weeks lovers of these showy and beautiful plants will have a treat in store. The roses, too, are grand.

A storm of an unusual character visited the foothill region north of this city April 14. Hail and sleet fell at Pasadena and the tents which had been used for the show were blown down.

Speakman & Dille are sending in fine Beauties and it is evident that Frank Speakman is keeping his hand in with Killarney, for the flowers are fine in every way.

A window full of Gesneriana tulips was quite a draw recently, the stock having been purchased from the Los Angeles Flower Market.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Everything is active except trade and that is not what we should like to have it. Plants of all seasonable kinds are as plentiful as one could desire them. There is for the first time this year a shortage of nothing that should be in bloom at this time. Violets are about over, however, and another couple of weeks will end them for the season. Lilac is plentiful and good and moves well. Spring bulbous stock is on the wane. There is nothing now except late-blooming tulips and iris. Freesias and hyacinths are over for the year. Inside roses and carnations are plentiful, but the prices are not quite as good as they were one year ago. Fruit blossoms are being used quite extensively for decorating. Lilies and valley are in good supply and move fairly well. Orchids are plentiful and are in steady demand. Other lines of stock are about as usual.

Various Notes.

The large beds of late-flowering tulips and hyacinths in Golden Gate park attract throngs of visitors during these warm spring days.

A visit to the recently established nursery of Henry Kempf, at Colma, shows that wonderful progress is being made and a great deal of propagating is being done. This nursery was recently moved there from San Francisco, where it had been established for over forty years.

Podesta & Baldocchi have had some stunning window displays of orchids during the last few days. Much of the stock is from the houses of J. A. Carbone, at West Berkeley.

The recently enacted alien land laws of California may have the effect of curtailing somewhat the number of Japanese growers, who have almost the entire carnation growing industry in the neighborhood of San Francisco.

E. Wagner, of San Lorenzo, Cal., is bringing into town some of the finest late tulips and Spanish iris ever seen here.

E. J. Roberts, formerly of Los Angeles, is in San Francisco and has the intention of permanently residing here.

G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions have been normal. There is little to create a demand other than a general counter trade and funeral work. There is plenty of stock. Roses are unusually fine, Maid especially, with stems measuring from twenty-four to thirty inches, with the flowers in proportion. Beauties are showing fine color and form. While these are not especially profitable in this section, they serve as a novelty. Carnations are plentiful in all varieties, yet the standard of prices is maintained for choicer stock. Outside tulips are coming in, but are rather short for commercial purposes. Inside stock has about given out.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

With Park Superintendent Morley.

The rising importance of this beautiful city is indicated by the rapid advance in the florists' business here. The new stores continually being opened seem only to make the others more busy, proving that competition here, as elsewhere, is the life of trade. The nearest Pacific coast city to the Mexican line, and therefore the nearest to the Panama region, it was only to be expected that San Diegans would make a bold bid for the trade that is to follow the opening of the canal, and this they are doing. Scores of miles of splendid hard stone roads connect the park system with the historic Port Loma district and the interesting Mission valley, making ideal conditions for motorists, while an excellent street car service is at the command of those who need it, reaching far out into the country and to the beach resorts.

I had the pleasure of a long ride through this magnificent section recently with John Morley, the park superintendent here, and, while I should like to mention more of the interesting points visited—such as the old town famous as the landing place of the Franciscan friars, who did so much to civilize California, and the old mission—I have perforce to keep to the level of present-day matters and stick to what Mr. Morley is doing with his immense charge.

The Exposition Grounds.

The grounds being laid out for the 1915 exposition, while quite distinct from the parks, are yet part of the system and will be included in this when the show is over. What the park commission is doing is to improve, with good roads and suitable planting, hundreds of acres of wild canyon and mountain land. This land is so bad in many places that every hole prepared for a tree has to be "shot"; that is, a charge of dynamite is placed in it to break up the hardpan and allow the roots to work. The ground for lawn making has to be scored with dynamite before anything else can be done to it and this is the problem Mr. Morley has to face. In addition, his last year's planting had to suffer the worst freeze in the history of California, so that much of it will have to be gone over again. But this kind of thing only stirs him to greater activity and the work is going ahead just as fast as money and men can be found.

Mr. Morley has wisely used much native material in his planting, and the California lilac, Ceanothus thyrsiflorus, is here in several varieties. The cistuses, or rock roses, has also been used to good effect and numbers of native perennials are being raised from seed for use later. There are many wild spots of great beauty that will not be touched, except to plant a few firs, as

Mr. Morley says, to elevate the skyline. There is a great deal in knowing what not to do, as well as what to do, in a case of this kind. The new lath house built in the nursery is full of all classes of fine shrubs and herbaceous stock in every stage of development, from tiny seedlings to stock ready to plant; so, if appropriations run low for nursery stock, the good work will go on just the same. Los Angeles lost a good man in John Morley, but "it's an ill wind," etc., and San Diego gets the benefit.

CAUTIOUS dealers are booking orders for hyacinth bulbs "subject to advance in duty," there being a fair prospect that the new tariff bill will be law before this season's crop moves, and a possibility that the old rate on hyacinth bulbs, $2.50 per thousand, will be restored.

SEEDSMEN generally still are going at top pace. Mail orders are holding up unusually well and counter trade, especially west of the Alleghenies, is heavy as April closes. The season has been a peculiar one thus far, but most houses have found it favorable; they are looking for a new record when the final footing up is reached.

THE seed trade should write to congressmen and senators asking for a change in the tariff bill on seeds not specially provided for. In the present law the rate is 10 cents per pound, and there are a number of objections to it. In the new bill now pending the rate is changed to fifteen per cent ad valorem. In some respects it is a better rate, but the principle of specific duties is the big thing and should be maintained. Why not make this rate 8 cents per pound?

NO RAIN IN CALIFORNIA.

No additional rain has fallen in the California seed growing district since last week's report. Waldo Rohnert says that with an inch more rain there would be about a half crop and that without any more rain the growers will be lucky to get back their stock seed, except where fields have been irrigated.

JAPAN'S LILY BULB EXPORTS.

The exports of lily bulbs from Japan in 1912 were as follows:

To—	Number.	Value.
Great Britain	9,782,095	$228,396
United States	9,145,137	181,198
Other countries	8,153,903	73,214
Total	22,081,135	$480,808

Further details are not yet available, but it is estimated that Holland took fully half the bulbs credited to "other countries." No statistics are kept as to the size of bulbs exported, but they are usually from seven inches upwards,

Good, true Seeds are the product of Work, Time and Care. But all Seeds, good and bad, look alike. It becomes necessary, then, to choose by choosing a producer.

Ramblers and Other Climbing Roses

AMERICAN PILLAR (The Grand Single Climbing Rose). A new single-flowering variety of great beauty which appeals to everyone. The flowers are of enormous size, 3 to 4 inches across, of a lovely shade of pink, with a cluster of yellow stamens. Bundle of 5, $1.25; 100, $20.00.

MARECHAL NIEL. Bright, rich golden yellow. Field-grown, 5, $1.50; 100, $25.00.

GLOIRE DE DIJON. Color buff, orange center, very sweet-scented. Field-grown, 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

DOROTHY PERKINS. Resembles the Crimson Rambler, except in color, which is a lovely shell pink, holding a long time without fading. 4 to 5 feet, XX, 10, $1.75; 100, $15.00. 8 to 9 feet, XXX, 10, $2.25; 100, $20.00.

TAUSENDSCHON. The new Rambler Rose. The name, translated, means a "thousand beauties." Color beautiful rose, shading to pink, 5, $1.00; 100, $16.50.

CRIMSON RAMBLER. American grown. The only stock for forcing. Large, heavy plants, two years old, mossed and packed in bundles of 10. 3 to 5 feet, X, 10, $1.75; 100, $15.00. 4 to 6 feet, XX, 10, $2.25; 100, $20.00. 7 to 8 feet, extra heavy, XXX, 10, $4.00; 100, $35.00.

DELIGHT. Flowers are large, bright red, with white center. This variety is a decided acquisition. Flowers are borne in large clusters from forty to seventy-five in a cluster. Bundle of 5, $1.25; 100, $20.00.

HIAWATHA. The flowers are single, and are of a deep, intense crimson shade with the petals shading to a pure white base. Flowers very freely. Extra strong, 2-year, field-grown, flowering plants. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $18.00.

LADY GAY. A seedling from the popular Crimson Rambler, which it resembles in habit and general effect. The flowers are of a delicate cherry-pink color, which fades to soft white. Strong plants, field grown, 5 to 6 feet, 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

WEDDING BELLS. A seedling from the Crimson Rambler. The most beautiful Rose yet produced. The flowers are white with the upper half of the petals soft pink. Fine for forcing. Extra hardy. Extra strong, field-grown, flowering plants, 3-4 ft., 10, $15.00.

Flower of Fairfield

The Everblooming Crimson Rambler

This variety is a sport from the beautiful Crimson Rambler, is similar to it, more brilliant and lasting than its parent. Flower of Fairfield is a favorite. Flower of Fairfield is a most generous grower and free bloomer. It begins to bloom early in the spring and continues until late in the autumn. It is rightly termed "perpetual blooming." 5, $1.50; 100, $25.00.

VEILCHENBLAU (Violet-Blue). The blue flowers of this new rose are in large clusters, are semi-double, medium size and keep in bloom a long time; 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON

Rambblers, Etc. Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses

Everblooming Bush, or Baby Rambler Roses

MARINE SEIMETH. A white Baby Rambler Rose, larger and better flowers than the type. An important fact is it has the true rose perfume in a degree; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

DOROTHY. The same in habit as Baby Rambler, but the color of the flower is similar to Dorothy Perkins. By Dorothy, when planted out, flowers perpetually from spring until autumn. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

WM. H. CUTBUSH. A grand addition to the Baby Rambler class. Intense crimson and exceptionally flowering; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

NORBERT LEVAVASSEUR (The Baby Rambler). A dwarf-growing ever blooming Crimson Rambler. Blooms when a small plant and as clusters of flowers as large as Crimson Rambler; 5, 85 cts.; 100, $16.00.

Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses

Hybrid Tea, or Everblooming Roses are becoming more popular every year; while as hardy as the perpetuals, with slight pruning in winter they carry over in good shape and give a wealth of flowers all through the summer months and in the fall till frost checks them. The following collection is the latest in this beautiful and increasingly popular class and are two-year-old English field-grown.

AMERICAN BEAUTY. Almost too well known for description, but as popular as twenty years ago. Rosy carmine, shaded salmon; flowers large and very floriferous. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

W. BROWN. Creamy white. Each, 75 cts.; bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

Y. Coppery yellow, overspread with rose. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

LINE TESTOUT. Bright satin rose, brighter center, large, full and clear. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

Originated by the raiser of Etolle France. Perpetual flowering. Vigorous grower. The blooms are very full, with broad petals, full and globular in form; shrimp pink at the ends of petals, center coral red or salmon shaded with chrome yellow. Very fragrant. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

LIBERTY. Very free flowering, bright crimson scarlet, of an even shade throughout; floriferous. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

DEAN HOLE. Large, full flowers; perfectly formed; large petals, silvery carmine shaded salmon; very distinct and free flowering and a beautiful rose for all purposes. Awarded Gold Medal, N. R. S. of England. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

GRUSS AN TEPLITZ. No rose in commerce can compare with this as a bedder. It is a perfect sheet of richest crimson scarlet all summer. A strong, vigorous grower. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

HARRY KIRK. New Irish, yellow Tea Rose. The blooms are large, full, with large, smooth petals of great substance; the form is perfect, the buds long and elegant. Color deep sulphur yellow, passing to a lighter shade at the edges of the petals. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

JULIET (Novelty.) This, perhaps, is the most distinct rose ever introduced for color, which is unique. It is of the same type as Soleil d'Or, Rayon d'Or and other Austrian Briers and their hybrids. It was introduced by Wm. Paul & Son in 1910. These types require very little pruning; simply remove dead and useless wood. The following is the raiser's description: "Outside of petals old gold, interior rich rosy red, changing to deep rose as the flowers expand. A very distinct and attractive novelty, blooming both in summer and autumn. Large and full, of powerful and delicious fragrance; most beautiful." Each, 50 cts.; 5, $2.25; 100, $40.00.

KAISERIN AUGUSTA VICTORIA. An almost pure white rose. Shaded a beautiful primrose. Fine for indoor or outdoor summer blooming. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

KILLARNEY. This is a grand rose for either indoor or outdoor cultivation; is a strong grower, and the blooms, which are of a beautiful pink, are borne in great profusion. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

WHITE KILLARNEY. This white queen of the Irish roses excels any other of its class. The color is pure white. White Killarney, like its prototype, is unusually hardy and without protection has stood severe winters as far north as Boston. Bundle of 5, $1.25; 100, $20.00.

LADY HILLINGDON. Deep orange yellow; medium size; long and pointed bud. A beautiful rose for all purposes, also a good forcer. Bundle of 5, $1.75; 100, $30.00.

MADAME ABEL CHATENAY. Carmine rose, shaded salmon pink. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MAMAN COCHET. The best of all roses for summer flowering and cutting.

MAMAN COCHET (Pink). Color a clear, rich pink, changing to silvery rose; very double and fragrant. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MAMAN COCHET (White). A sport from the above, with all its characteristics; color a beautiful snow white, at times tinted with the faintest suggestion of blush, the same as is often found in the Bride. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MILDRED GRANT. Cream, with a faint blush of pale rose. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MME. JULES GROLEZ. A beautiful satiny china-rose color, very bright and attractive. A distinct and pretty rose, which should be planted extensively. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MME. RAVARY. Buds golden yellow, open flowers nankeen yellow. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MOLLY SHARMAN-CRAWFORD. Large, full flower; color delicate eau-de-Nil, which, as the flower expands, becomes dazzling white. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

MRS. AARON WARD. Indian yellow, occasionally washed salmon rose; very large, full elongated flowers; very free. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

PRESIDENT CARNOT. Almost pure white rose, shading to soft pink, very distinct and excellent for indoor or outdoor summer growing. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE. Large and quite full; outer petals superb rosy flesh, with the reflex petals of a slightly lighter tint. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

RAYON D'OR (Novelty). One of Pernet-Ducher's greatest hybrids. Cadmium-yellow as the bloom begins to open, toning to sunflower-yellow when fully expanded. Fine, bronze-green foliage, glossy and absolutely immune from the attacks of mildew. Flowers large, full, of fine, globular form; superb. Each, 75 cts.; 5, $3.25; 100, $60.00.

RICHMOND. The well-known red rose of commerce. Bundle of 5, $1.00; 100, $17.50.

ROSE, ETOILE DE FRANCE. Superb crimson-red velvet, the center of the bloom vivid cerise red. The queen of the everblooming red roses. The most free-blooming and vigorous red rose ever introduced. Bundle of 5, 85 cts.; 100, $15.00.

ALARM IN CALIFORNIA.

The seed trade has been keenly interested in the report in this department of The Review last week, referring to the apprehension caused by the lack of rainfall in the California seed growing sections. It had been generally understood that conditions were not favorable, but how bad they were had not been appreciated until The Review article appeared.

Here is a table of rainfalls that shows the situation from the viewpoint of the weather bureau's office at San Jose:

INCHES OF RAINFALL AT SAN JOSE.
Month.	1909.	1910.	1911.	1912.

June02	.07	.46

Season

9.25	11.46	10.316	4.20

The normal rainfall is thirteen inches. To date the district is 2.91 inches behind last year, 6.44 inches behind the season of 1910-11 and 3.11 inches behind the season of 1909-10.

What the prospects are for the rest of the season is shown by the following record of the precipitation for the months of April, May and June for the last three seasons:

Year.	Inches.
191043

Commenting on these figures April 14, E. O. Piper, manager of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., said: "It is quite evident from this tabulation that the rainfall this season is seriously short, particularly in view of the fact that last season also was about three inches short of normal, which averages about thirteen inches.

"The present water level at local seed farms is low and has fallen below the suction limit of most of the old pumping plants that are used to irrigate the orchard districts. For this reason, many of the pumps have had to be lowered and in some places it has already become impractical to lower them farther.

"The long dry period from the latter part of January to the last of March set all the plants back considerably and a great deal of seed planted at that time, finding insufficient moisture in the mulch, failed to germinate. The stormy period about the end of March, revived all plantings considerably and temporarily made things look as though the damage caused by the long preceding dry spell was not permanent.

"But now that the present dry spell has continued for so long, the effects of the great shortage of moisture in the soil are becoming most noticeable in the weakened stand of all seed crops. This condition is not alone confined to the plantings in the drier lands, but is also commencing to obtain in what are ordinarily called wet lands.

"As most of the growers have kept up almost continual cultivation, all available moisture has been brought up and unless we are favored with showers from now on, the dry condition of the lower strata and subsoils will undoubtedly bring about hopelessly short yields. At present it is problematical whether certain crops planted in the higher and lighter soils will yield at all. The apprehension of many of the growers is evident from the way in which irrigation is being attempted; it is still much too early to note any change as a result of these efforts.

"Sweet peas now stand, on an average, about six inches high. Some of the early-flowering varieties have already started to bloom. At this season, it does not seem possible that the stand can attain sufficient extra growth to yield anything like a normal crop. So with continuing rain shortage, sweet peas will undoubtedly again be a decidedly short item. I understand, from Messrs. Gardiner and Beale, of James Carter & Sons, London, that the sweet pea fields here look better than those in the southern part of the state.

"Onion, during the last three weeks, seems to have stood still, showing little new growth. The stands are all about one foot in height. The ends of the stalks show a decided tendency to yellow and dry out and almost all plants have thrown out numerous premature seed stalks.

"Lettuce may be found in all stages; some crops barely appearing through the soil, while others are commencing to head.

"Radish stands about eight to ten inches and seems quite green and rugged, but, as you well know, this is a large-growing crop that requires considerable moisture and an early start to carry it through to the producing stage.

"Our Hollister farm, seeded late, is planted to lettuce. This has made a good stand since the March rainfall and we have hopes of receiving a fair yield there. At Sweeny Ranch we have conserved what moisture has fallen by vigorous cultivation, but if we do not receive considerable additional rainfall, I regret to say that we do not expect anything like a normal yield."

THAT ABANDONED LEASE.

Referring further to the report in The Review for April 17 that one of the large California seed growers has abandoned, because of the drought, its leased land, the following, under a Mayfield date line, April 11, appeared in the San Jose Times: "The dry weather has driven the big seed growing company, which recently rented a large section of the 8,000 acres of the Stanford estate, to abandon its lease. It is reported that all employees of the seed firm have been let out. The employees, mostly Japanese, were allowed to go yesterday. The seed firm went to the expense of plowing and seeding the large tracts of land and, not being in a situation where irrigation was possible, they were dependent upon the rainfall for the growth of the seed crops. This year has been too dry for the company to successfully continue its business, and it is probable that the company will do no more until next spring."

OBJECTS TO THE CUTS.

The following duties on seeds are proposed by Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, in an amendment to the tariff bill introduced in the Senate:

"221. Seeds. Castor beans or seeds, 25 cents per bushel of fifty pounds; flaxseed or linseed and other oil seeds not specially provided for in this section, 25 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds; poppy seed, 15 cents per bushel; mushroom spawn, and spinach seed, 1 cent per pound; beet, except sugar beet, carrot, corn salad, parsley, parsnip, radish, turnip and rutabaga seed, 4 cents per pound; cabbage, collard, kale

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

JOHN C. HANN died recently at Richmond, Va., where he was city nurseryman for a number of years.

M. KOSTER, of M. Koster & Sons, Boskoop, Holland, was in Chicago last week. He says his firm will introduce the new lilac, H. Koster, next season.

JOHN MULLHAUPT, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has accepted the position of chief forester with the Northeastern Forestry Co., of New Haven, Conn., and will be stationed at Cheshire, Conn., where the company has its nurseries.

FORTY men are at work in Riverside park, Indianapolis, Ind., endeavoring to save something from the wreckage of the nursery. Two hundred thousand plants were washed out, but it is believed most of them may be saved and replanted.

THE Brainard Floral & Nursery Co., at Thompsonville, Conn., of which D. W. and C. F. Brainard are proprietors, has changed its firm name to the Brainard Nursery & Seed Co., and April 15 it discontinued its cut flower business in order to devote greater attention to seeds and nursery stock.

THE Atlantic Nursery Co., Inc., at Berlin, Md., believes in The Review Classified ads. It got results from almost everywhere with a few insertions and was so well satisfied that it has ordered the ad continued. Manager D. W. Babcock writes: "Continue our advertisement as you have it for the next four issues. Your paper certainly does the work. We have orders from nearly all the states and also from Canada." The ad carried prices and the results were immediate.

F. G. SHEFFER, formerly of Phoenix, Ariz., has located at Prescott, where he purchased twenty acres at the Willow Creek ranch of B. W. Getsinger. He will make a specialty of apple trees.

USE of a pulmotor saved the life of David Weigar, a nursery employee of Louisville, Ky., who was drugged and robbed of three weeks' wages and lay at the point of death in a hospital when the appliance was sent for.

NURSEYMEN in the middle west are fearful of a short season. Weather conditions have been such that no great amount of work had been accomplished prior to the last few days. Things now are going at top speed, but the season is late and likely to end suddenly at an early date. In the east conditions have been rather more favorable, the frost having been all out of the ground by March 17 as far north as Boston, with generally good weather ever since.

LARGE numbers of florists are equipping themselves to handle hardy stock and to push for orders for autumn planting. The average florist is pretty busy during the spring planting season, but can handle a lot more garden work in the long autumn.

THE Aurora Nursery Co., of Aurora, Ill., gave away 5,000 white ash trees this spring to pupils of the public and parochial schools of that city. Each pupil received a card containing instructions as to the care of the tree. The card was also inscribed with the motto, in large letters, "Make Aurora beautiful."

ful." J. A. Young, president of the Aurora Nursery Co., is also Aurora city forester. He tried the same educational experiment last year, in the giving away of trees, with encouraging results.

W. T. MARCH, manager for the Newburys, Inc., at Mitchell, S. D., has prepared the plans for the new park which the city will establish on the former driving park site. The track will be retained, but the rest of the plot will be planted with trees and shrubs.

THE Natomas Consolidated Co., of California, has just received at Citrus, Cal., 2,153 pieces of orange stock from the Kirkman Nurseries at Fresno, Cal., this being the first shipment of the large order of nursery stock recently contracted for by the new company. E. K. Carnes, who is in charge of the horticultural work, has completed a tour of the state, buying orange, olive and almond stock with which to build up the nursery that has been established on the 18,000-acre irrigated project of the Natomas Co.

SHRUBS FOR SHADED LOCATION.

What good shrubbery would grow at the north end of a house, mostly shaded all day, here in the southeastern part of New York state? I want shrubs that will show up well. H. B. & S.

In the way of evergreen flowering shrubs, rhododendrons succeed finely at the north side of a house where there is shade most of the day. A bed two and one-half feet deep should be dug out for them and a mixture of pasture loam, decayed cow manure, rotted leaves and sand added. Good, hardy varieties are R. album elegans, roseum elegans, delicatissimum and Charles Dickens. The native Catawbiense and maximum can also be planted. Such evergreen shrubs as retinosporas and taxus will also do well in such a location. For evergreen climbers, both English ivy and Euonymus radicans will be found first-class. In deciduous shrubs, Berberis Thunbergii, Lonicera Tatarica and Philadelphus coronarius will do fairly well, but the rhododendrons would find the location ideal.

"Get them at Dreer's"

All Seasonable Plants—Seeds—Bulbs and Sundries

HARDY PERENNIALS.

The most complete collection of varieties and the largest stock in the country. Our Perennial plants have a national reputation. We spare no expense to have them in the best possible shape for the planter. Such varieties as move better when pot-grown are prepared in this shape. This does not mean little seedlings, but in the majority of cases the plants were field-grown, were dug and potted during the fall and winter months, and are just the right size to give immediate results. They are not to be compared with so-called field clumps. Try them and be convinced. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

HYBRID-TEA ROSE
KILLARNEY

ROSES FOR OUTDOOR PLANTING TO GIVE IMMEDIATE RESULTS.

We have three hundred thousand 5 and 6-inch pots, the usual Dreer stock, and the style of plants your retail customers are looking for. These are all two-year field-grown plants which have been potted during the winter months, and which were stored in cold houses and frames, and which are now in prime condition for outdoor planting. The collection is the most up-to-date, including many new varieties not offered by anyone in the trade.

Hybrid Teas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Tea and Ever-blooming, Ramblers, Baby Ramblers, Moss Roses, Hybrid Sweet Briars, Austrian Briars, Wichuraiana, etc., etc. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

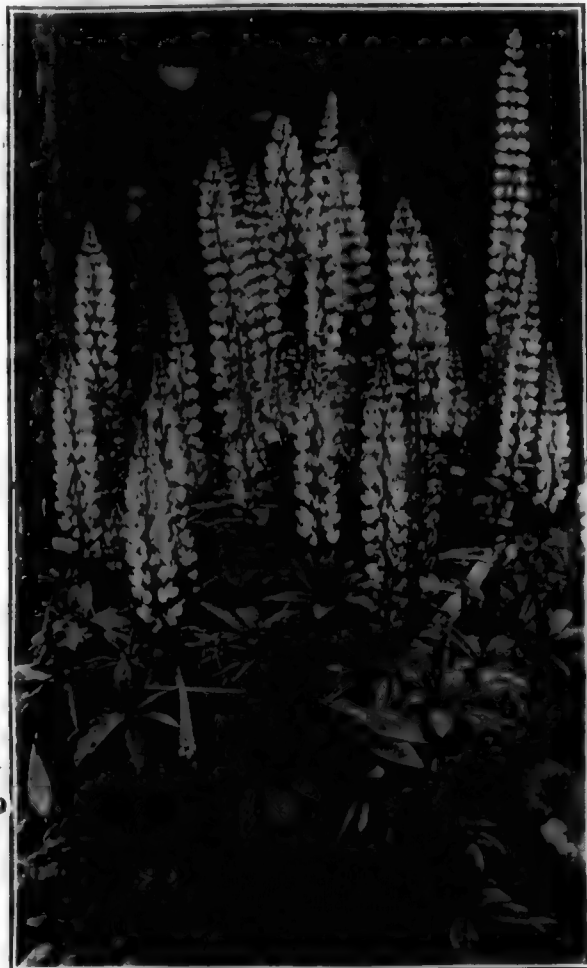

OUR CURRENT WHOLESALE LIST

also describes the following, all of which are handled as Specialties:

Decorative Plants, Palms, Ferns, Pandanus, Bay Trees, Box-woods, Dracaenas, etc., etc.

Hardy Shrubs, Hardy Vines, Hardy Climbers, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, etc., etc.

BULBS—Dahlias, Tuberous Rooted Begonias, Gladiolus, Gloxinias, Fancy Leaved Caladiums, Cannas, etc., etc.

LUPINUS POLYPHYLLUS

AQUATIC PLANTS—Water Lilies, Nelumbiums, Victorias.

Tender and Hardy Aquatics have been a special feature with us for nearly a quarter of a century. Over eight acres of artificial ponds are devoted to their culture. If we can assist you in making plans or selecting varieties, the services of our expert are at your disposal for the asking.

NYMPHAEA

HENRY A. DREER, Inc. 714 CHESTNUT ST. Philadelphia, Pa.

LANCASTER, PA.

Twenty-five members of the Lancaster County Florists' Club made a visit April 17 to the greenhouses and seed establishment of Geo. W. Park at La Park, Pa. The greenhouses are in charge of E. W. Byer, who grows 600 varieties of plants, in addition to the immense lot of bulbous and hard-wooded stock found on the grounds, which is quite an undertaking for one man.

The seed houses are a genuine hive of industry, with a modern printing establishment turning out 600,000 copies of Park's Floral Magazine every month. Some idea of the business done here may be formed from the fact that one day's mail brought orders for over 500 tuberous begonias, that more than 1,000,000 gladiolus bulbs are sold at retail by mail every year and every imaginable variety of seed and mailable bulbs are sold in the same proportion.

Returning to Lancaster, the club held a meeting, at which all members but four were present. S. S. Pennock, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., was the essayist. His subject was "The Faults of the Grower in Growing and Consigning His Stock." It was exceptionally well handled, and was followed by a discussion that has practically put an end to the pickling of stock in this section, and has determined the grower who grows less than 5,000 plants for bloom to stick to from one to three varieties, so that he may have them in reasonable quantity.

Thos. R. Fries read a paper on Easter stock, which was well received and discussed.

A committee was appointed to select a place for the summer picnic and make all arrangements.

Another committee was appointed to work out a coöperative system of buying and report at the meeting in September for action.

After the meeting a large delegation escorted Mr. Pennock, James Brown, of Coatesville, and C. P. Bernard, of Northbrook, through Lancaster's "White Way" to the station. A. M. H.

Anderson, Ind.—The benches in the greenhouses of B. H. Klus & Son were under four feet of water during the recent flood, but most of the stock is coming since it was cleaned up.

Norristown, Pa.—Wm. H. Catanese says this is proving to be the best season he ever had. He advertised extensively for Easter and had so much business he had to get another store and a lot of extra help. The benefit of the advertising has been apparent in the business done since Easter.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

The Market.

Business last week was unusually good, a number of weddings and social functions calling for quite a lot of decorative work and cut flowers. Tulips and daffodils are selling exceptionally well, as are carnations and roses.

Various Notes.

Champion & Co. report business brisk. They filled an order last week for a wedding decoration at Shelton, Conn., using smilax, snapdragons and Tausendschon roses. Their window was attractive April 19, displaying choice snapdragons and other spring flowers. Funeral work has kept them busy, orders being filled every day last week.

W. H. Long had a busy week, cut flowers and plants selling well.

Slocombe Bros. are cutting choice sweet peas. Their houses will be in full crop up till Decoration day.

S. H. Moore had an attractive window display of araucarias, Boston ferns and spring flowers.

W. H. Barnett is booking a number of advance orders for his fancy single geraniums for Decoration day. Bedding stock at this plant is looking thrifty.

At the Rehbein range on Howard avenue fine Boston ferns were noted. Every available inch of space is filled at present with bedding stock, which looks well.

Roses are now in full crop at the plant of the Doolittle Floral Co. and they have to cut closely every day to fill orders. They have had a heavy call for early vegetable plants at their downtown store.

Jos. J. Sokol reports a busy week with funeral work and early shipments of geraniums and other bedding stock. His carnations are in heavy crop.

Superintendent of Parks Amrhyh is carrying out needed improvements on the old green. Pipes are to be laid

GERANIUMS

We have about 5000 plants of S. A. Nutt and Marvel, which we want to move at once. They are fine, strong young plants in 2-inch pots, and will make fine stock for late spring sales if shifted right away. We also have a few hundred each of Decorator and A. Ricard. There is no finer young stock in the country, and they are really a bargain at the price we are quoting—

$2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000

We also have about 1000 fine young plants of Carnation White Perfection, in 2-inch pots, which we offer you for $20.00 per 1000.

It will be to your advantage as well as ours if you will order at once.

The Market.

Business in the wholesale market has been steady and opened encouragingly April 21. There is no surplus; Saturday's sales left the market comparatively depleted. Shipments are light and the general trade is not complaining. Prices have not advanced and current quotations seem satisfactory to all concerned. There has been little change from last week's price records. Beauties are doing better. Carnations have been strong and continue to hold so, the novelties bringing $4 per hundred. The selected American Beauties have sold as high as 30 cents each. All other roses are firm at last week's quotations. The best cattleyas still bring 75 cents and are not plentiful. The second grade is selling at 50 to 60 cents. Violets may as well be omitted for the balance of the season. Valley is firm, offerings being at from 3½ cents down to 2 cents. The best tulips sell at $3 per hundred. Lilies are plentiful. All spring flowers are abundant and prices low. These include lilac, phlox and pansies.

Various Notes.

The seedsmen are elated and universally prosperous. The general verdict is, "The best year in our experience," and the season still is young. It has been a grand year for the nurserymen; perfect shipping and planting weather, vegetation encouragingly delayed.

L. J. Kervan, who has spent the winter enjoyably in Florida, will return to the city May 1.

Harry Weston, of Hempstead, L. I., president of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., was operated upon last week for appendicitis. He is in the hospital at Mineola and his many friends will be pleased to know the prospects are encouraging for his complete and early recovery.

M. C. Ford displayed in his window last week some fine gladioli from Florida.

Schurer & Gay had charge of the home decoration for the wedding of Herman Weiss last week, at which fifty guests were present.

Owing to unavoidable delays, the opening of the marble palace of John S. Nicholas, in the Grand Central Terminal, did not take place until April 23. Mr. Nicholas extends a cordial welcome to the florists to visit this unique store.

It must delight florists everywhere to know that the National Flower Show was so satisfactory a financial success that it may now be safely announced that under the same splendid management and in the same building the exhibition will be repeated in 1914. There is every reason to believe the annual flower show hereafter in New York will prove as great a drawing card as the horse show or the automobile exhibition.

At Arthur T. Boddington's the report is "a tremendous sale of hardy roses and practically sold out of cannas."

Special on Made-up Kentlas

We have an exceptionally large stock of 6 and 7-inch Kentia Forsteriana, 3 plants in a pot. The 6-inch are 18 to 22 inches above pot, on which we make a special price of $1.00 each, $12.00 per dozen. The 7-inch are 28 to 32 inches above pot, 3 in a pot. A special price of $1.50 each, $18.00 per dozen, is offered on these. Remember these are nice bushy plants, just what you need for decorating.

& Blake's silver cup at the recent show, was the only florist in the City of Churches to demonstrate the ability to construct a modern bride's bouquet, and it took rank with the best of them. Mr. Loretz is moving his store from 228 Flatbush avenue to the corner of that avenue and Dean street, a much larger store, and in a fine locality.

A. T. Bunyard had the decoration of the Hotel Astor for the Creditmen's Association, April 17, at which he used 1,500 Richmond roses.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., now is making daily shipments to Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn.

The trio at W. H. Keubler's says the only kick is lack of room. With the supply department they occupy the whole building and manage to keep two autos busy all the time.

Geo. McGarrett, for many years bookkeeper for Alex. McConnell, is now at Liberty, N. Y., convalescing after a severe attack of the grip.

Lace chiffons, according to Wertheimer Bros., are being widely used this season on brides' bouquets.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

INVITATION TO ALL IN THE TRADE:

The third annual Spring Opening of the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., at Libertyville, Ill., will be held on May 1st, 1913.

The management tenders a hearty invitation to the trade to call and inspect their plant. Libertyville can be reached by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R.R., or via the Chicago-Milwaukee Electric R. R.

A cordial welcome is assured you.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The annual dinner of the Rochester Florists' Association will be held April 24 at the Hotel Rochester, the date having been determined upon at the meeting of the body April 14.

Delegates from the association to the National Flower Show in New York were heard at the meeting. Colin Ogston reported on orchids, E. P. Wilson on roses, Chas. M. W. Suhr on carnations, J. Michael Keller on greenhouse plants, and G. B. Hart on the general features of the show. Mr. Ogston and Mr. Keller were jurors.

R. G. Salter spoke on the subject, "The Flower Business in Rochester," detailing the growth of the trade from the early seventies to the present day. In 1881 he started the first down-town shop for the sale of cut flowers. At Christmas of that year he brought a small box of holly to the city for sale. He mentioned this to show how the business had grown to the point where holly is now sold by the carload. At Easter in 1883 he bought 500 violets. Last Easter he purchased 50,000.

Following the meeting the members of the association enjoyed a Dutch luncheon.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Thomas J. Gibson has returned from a several days' trip to New York on business.

John Barry, for many years a gardener employed on various estates on the "Neck," died April 13 at his home, 99 Wellington avenue, after an illness of nearly three years. He was 72 years of age.

Harry Butler, the gardener at the new naval hospital, has begun the work of grading and laying out the grounds.

Gibson Bros. are now located in their new store, at 9 Marlbone road.

Karl Kammann, of Kammann & Crowley, New York, was in the city last week, looking over improvements that are being made at the Bellevue avenue branch of the concern. W. H. M.

Large stock of Roses, Carnations, Coleus, Salvias, Pansies, etc., ready in season.

C. H. FREY, Lincoln, Neb.

CLEVELAND.

The Sixth City.

Favorable weather last week kept trade moving at a brisk pace and the market has been cleaned up closely each day. Roses are improving in quality. Some good Beauties are seen. Carnations are fine and are plentiful enough to meet all demands, but there will possibly be a considerable shortage by Mothers' day. Snapdragons are at their best now. Valley is plentiful. Green goods are in fair demand. Of violets there are only a few, home-grown. Single sweet peas are short in supply from local growers. Chicago stock is plentiful and of good quality. Calendulas and daisies are in heavy supply. There is a good supply of Easter lilies. Large quantities of lilies have been used in the last few weeks.

Various Notes.

Guy Bate is busy at Newton Falls, O., establishing the new plant of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co.

The bowling tournament of the Florists' Club is drawing to a close. The game April 28, between the Daffodils and the Tulips, will finish the season.

Carnations are being planted in the field by a few venturesome growers. A heavy freeze April 19 and 20 did some damage to early sweet peas, etc.

Adam Graham gave a talk on the Panama canal before the Florists' Club at its last meeting. Mr. Graham had just returned from the canal a few days before and his remarks were naturally right up to the minute, as well as being exceedingly interesting.

Miss Schmitt, of the wholesale store force of the J. M. Gasser Co., has the sympathy of the local trade in the loss of her father, whose death occurred April 17.

The Ohio Horticultural Society is booming its flower show, to be held June 12 to 14. Several thousand "Welcome" stamps have been passed around to local florists, to be used on their outgoing mail.

Carl W. Gerdum is getting established in his new venture. He has purchased the greenhouses on Schaff road, formerly conducted by the Ohio Floral Co. Mr. Gerdum will move his stock of orchids, consisting of about 8,000 cattleyas, from his old place in Lakewood to the new plant. He also intends to grow a general line of cut flowers and plants.

W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, Mo., stopped off a few days on his return from the big show. John Evans, Richmond, Ind., was also a visitor.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is experiencing most delightful spring weather, with clear skies and sunshine, and yet cool enough for one to enjoy an overcoat. Peaches and cherries are in fine bloom and the early shrubbery is flowering. All of the soft-wooded trees are coming finely into leaf and everything is just right to make people want to buy. The rule among the wholesalers all week has been to clean up by noon, which makes some think that stock is scarce, but, rather, the demand has been good, as there is a good cut of everything coming in. The first local outdoor stock, Trumpet narcissi, came in this week. There are still a few violets arriving. Sweet peas are between crops and what are coming in are not fine, but sell clean; in fact, almost everything received is good. Little rubbish is coming to the market. There has been a good demand for flowers of all kinds and all of the retail stores have been busy; nothing unusually big, but what is better—a good, healthy trade.

The seedsmen are working night and day to keep up with their orders and it is said there never were so many small buyers as this year.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. still holds the duck pin championship. The results of the matches played April 11 were as follows: Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., 1,461, and W. H. Carney Co., 1,411; McCallum Co., 1,421, and A. W. Smith Co., 1,309. The complete scores are given in the Bowling department on another page. Clarke.

David City, Neb.—Mrs. A. L. Mehur, proprietor of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, has just completed a new greenhouse, 28x70. Her stock is in fine condition and she sends out some first-class designs and other such work.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last two or three weeks have been peculiar in some respects. At one time there was the heaviest surplus of cut flowers that Nashville has seen in months. Both roses and carnations were accumulating by the thousand. The next week everyone was short on stock and was unable to secure it from out of town. Several stores had large openings and purchased several thousand carnations, which were given away to visitors. The growers realized good prices for these and all the cold storage stock was used up. Roses are off crop. The supply does not begin to be equal to the demand. Sweet peas are not nearly so numerous as they were a few weeks ago. Violets are practically gone, as are daffodils and narcissi. The supply of carnations is perhaps better than in any other item, but these are neither so plentiful nor so good quality as they were a few weeks ago. There is a good supply of lilies, but none to spare. Outdoor lilac is beginning to come in, but the frost killed most of it.

With a light frost April 20 there came a slacking up in the business in bedding plants that started last week. Our growers have already put thousands of carnations in the field and planting is going forward rapidly.

Various Notes.

J. F. Corbitt, a railroad conductor residing in East Nashville, has established a nice little plant for growing cut flowers and bedding stock, which he has been disposing of largely at wholesale. Last week he completed arrangements with a first-class greenhouse man to operate his plant on shares for the next year.

The Mount Olivet cemetery greenhouses have done by far the largest business in their history since January 1. They never have had such a good supply of bedding stock as at present. They will be forced to enlarge their plant soon, from present indications.

Geny Bros. say they sold more carnations week before last than they ever sold in one week before.

The Joy Floral Co. planted 45,000 carnations in the field last week.

McIntyre Bros. report business in bedding plants as unusually heavy last week.

Haury & Sons report that they have been kept cleaned up closely all the time for the last two or three weeks, and that funeral work has been especially heavy.

NELROSE

is, we believe, the best commercial Antirrhinum yet offered. It produces more No. 1 flowers per plant, that sell for top prices, than any variety of which we have knowledge. Under glass it gives perfect spikes, 30 to 36 inches long, on very stiff stems, and requires no stakes.

NELROSE

won the Leo Niessen Co. cup for best cut-flower novelty at the INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW in New York. It also won first at the big Spring show in Boston, in strong competition. It will be sent out in the Spring of 1914, both in America and Europe.

NELROSE

as an outdoor plant grows less than 12 inches high, and its bright pink color and sturdy habit make it ideal for bedding. Especially effective in large masses. Those who should know predict an enormous sale for park and cemetery use. See it growing this Summer at Auburndale, Mass., or at the establishment of Mr. William Wells, Merstham, Surrey, England, who will disseminate the stock to the trade in Europe.

NELROSE

is offered (to the trade only) at following prices: Dozen, $3; 25 for $5; 50 for $7; 100, $12. We are now booking orders for delivery next Spring.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2¾ inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2½-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as the plebian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales 1913. Send for both of the booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

VERBENAS.

10,000 verbenas, all in 3-in., with 3 to 6 branches, grown from Michell's finest mixed seed, not from cuttings. These will be in bloom by May 10. We know how to grow them, have them all out in frames now, thereby avoiding soft, weak plants. A great majority are growing in waterproof paper pots and can be shipped that way so you don't need to repot them. Price, $3.00 per 100. Cash and worth the money. Order quick.

LEAF-ROLLER MOTHS.

Will you please inform me how to get rid of the butterflies or moths that bring on the leaf-rollers, with which we are troubled a great deal? Would cyanide kill the moths, or is there something safer? J. B.

Cyaniding, carefully done, would be the surest remedy for the moths in question. You must give a light dose, however, and choose as cool an evening as possible for the operation, or the plants are likely to suffer some damage. The gas will also kill the rollers themselves, if any are on the plants. An exposure of twenty to thirty minutes will suffice if you have facilities for opening your ventilators from outside. If not, a light all-night exposure can be given. To get the exact dimensions of your house, multiply the length by the breadth and this by the average height. Use stone jars for the acid and water. Be sure that all ventilators are shut tight. Start at one end of the house and drop the cyanide into the jars, walking away rapidly. Lock the house securely and post a sign stating the danger incurred by entering.

I would suggest for an all-night exposure three and one-half ounces of water, two and one-fourth ounces of

Get Interested, Mr. Florist; This Is For You

If you contemplate painting your houses this year it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The LUTTON reputation for high-class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost, and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. Some of the largest growers in the country will testify to this fact.

WILLIAM H. LUTTON, West Side Ave. Station, Jersey City, N. J.

sulphuric acid and one and one-fourth ounces of cyanide of potassium, ninety-eight per cent pure, for each 3,000 cubic feet of space. The gas usually takes a good deal of the color out of pink and red roses and may scorch some of the tender leaves. Give a good syringing before the sun strikes the plants in the morning. Sticky fly papers, stood here and there, will catch some moths, but these are at best only a partial remedy. C. W.

DISEASED LETTUCE.

I am sending you a few plants of my lettuce and some of the soil. The lettuce is badly diseased. My first crop came at Thanksgiving. It was in good condition, but the second crop was affected as badly as the third crop. I put in new soil in the fall for the first and second crop. I mixed in a 4-inch potful of bone meal to about twenty-five square feet, with a little air-slaked lime on top of it. As the second crop was badly diseased, I threw it out and put in the third crop, using an inch of rotted horse manure. I have also one whole house of lettuce in the same soil in which I had mums last season. They are in the same condition. I hope to receive advice through The Review. J. P. M.

Your soil seems to be about right for lettuce culture. The fact that your first crop was good goes to show that there is nothing seriously wrong with the compost. The most successful lettuce growers now sterilize their soil each season, or they are sure to get more or less of the disease known as scald. The affected plants will be found to have diseased roots, and the trouble is worst during spells of sunless weather. I should say this has been your trouble.

In new soil the crop is tolerably sure to be clean, but successive batches will come poorer unless the soil has been sterilized. At Arlington and Belmont, Mass., where perhaps a greater number of houses are devoted to lettuce forcing than in any other part of the United States, all lettuce soil is sterilized each season, and if you will do the same with your soil you should have equally fine crops. Instead of adding bone meal, use two or three inches of horse manure and work it down well into the soil by spading, or by plowing if the houses are of sufficient size to allow it. C. W.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

A CARNATION HOUSE.

Kindly let us know how many runs of 2-inch pipe will be needed to heat a carnation house 21x65, six feet high to the gutter and eleven feet high to the ridge. The north side and both ends are exposed; the south wall contains two feet of concrete and four feet of glass. Please state, also, how many 3-inch flow pipes will be required. The location is northern Iowa.

L. & J.

To heat a carnation house 21x65 feet, with four feet of glass in one wall, when the mercury is 20 degrees below zero, it will be well to use two 3-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. Under the conditions mentioned, however, it might be still better to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and nine 2-inch returns. One flow pipe could then be upon each wall and the other under the ridge, with the returns distributed under the benches, or a part of these could be upon each wall, if preferred.

THE FUEL SITUATION.

The labor situation in West Virginia is of prime importance to the greenhouse trade. Large numbers of greenhouse establishments use West Virginia smokeless coals; probably it is not too much to say that these smokeless coals are the florists' favorite fuels. At present the West Virginia fields are full of dissension. The coal trade is strongly organized, from a labor point

WHAT THE USERS SAY
Better than All Others

I have fired boilers for the last forty years. The Kroeschell is the best I have ever used. I have two cast iron boilers, also a locomotive boiler coupled with yours, but did not need to use the cast iron boilers this winter. Your No. 7 boiler is rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass and carries 25,000 sq. ft. of glass until the outside temperature goes down to 10° of frost. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in our houses with easy firing since we installed your boiler. From the boiler to the farthest end of our violet houses and return is 800 feet, and circulates very quickly.

Continuous Firing for Four Years Twenty-four Hours a Day Fails to Burn Out Cyclone Grates

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

of view, in practically every other state in the Union except in the West Virginian smokeless fields. The labor leaders consider the season propitious for forcing the thorough organization in West Virginia. Strikes already are in progress in the New River fields and it is feared that at almost any day the trouble will spread to the Pocahontas fields. The operators in West Virginia already are strongly organized. They are not at all disposed to permit the unionizing of their miners if they possess the means to prevent it. other develops unexpected weakness, the production of smokeless coals during the summer of 1913 is likely to be almost completely cut off. This is the radical view. The difficulties may be settled at any moment, by the retreat of one side or the other. If the battle is waged to the bitter end, it seems not improbable florists will find the autumn drawing near and no supplies of smokeless coals in sight. Those familiar with the situation are stocking up now, because there is practically no chance that the price this summer will be lower than it is at present and the assurance given by full bunkers is worth much more than the interest on the money invested.

DISPENSING WITH AIR VALVES.

Is it necessary to have air valves on the pipes in a hot water system when the expansion tank is connected with the highest part of the main flow, or can the air valves be done away with in hot water systems?

N. W. V. G.

By running all of the pipes downhill and connecting the highest part of the flow pipe with the expansion tank, it will be possible to secure first-class circulation and also to do away with air valves, as the air will always seek the highest part of the system and pass out through the expansion tank.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week's market was, as a whole, a good one. At the opening of the week there was an active demand that kept the market pretty well cleaned up. As the week progressed the call for stock let up considerably, while the supply increased rapidly. As a result there was a general shading of prices on almost everything. Business this week started even worse than at the end of last week.

The rose supply is large. Some of the stock is more or less mildewed and serves to hammer down the price on the better quality. Most of the carnation offerings are elegant. The call for them, however, is not so strong as it might be. The lily supply is still large and as a result this flower brings only an ordinary price. There is a tremendous glut of Narcissus poeticus. They have been coming in at such a rate that it was impossible to move them at any price. Many tulips are also offered. Sweet peas are again more plentiful. Valley has been in rather limited supply. Snapdragon finds a fair market. The green goods supply is large.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell, chairman of the S. A. F. sports committee, is making arrangements to go to Minneapolis within the next fortnight to confer with the local committee.

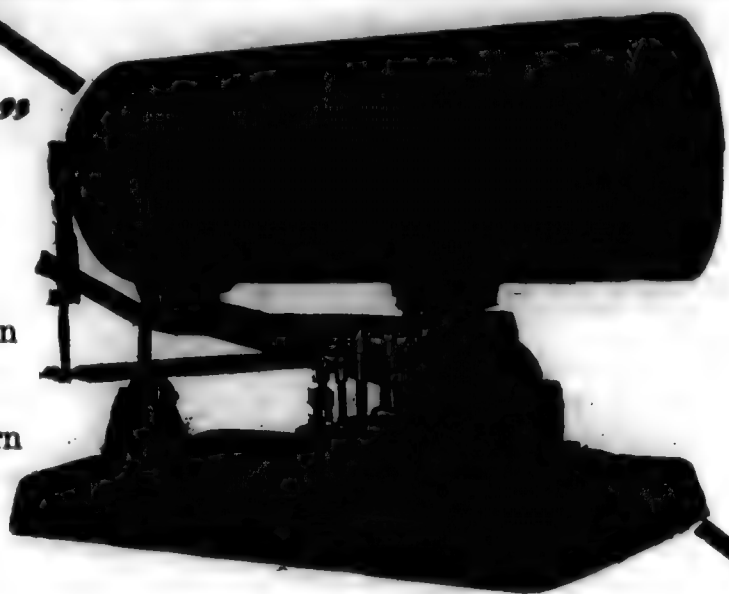

Alex. Ostendarp and A. C. Heckman, Jr., are in receipt of a communication from Fred Rupp, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., who states that his greenhouse plant was flooded and all his stock ruined. He needs help to get going again.

The committee of the Cincinnati Florists' Society, consisting of Henry Schwarz, Wm. Schumann and Wm. Speck, who were to try to arrange for donations by various florists to help those local florists who were affected by the flood, report that the growers responded generously. Arrangements are being made for the delivery of the stock April 26.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Pembroke hall on Friday, April 18, with President Brown in the chair. One new member was elected.

Communications were read from the following firms, offering special prizes for the fall show: C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Burnett Bros., Peter Henderson & Co., W. E. Marshall & Co., Weeber & Don, Hitchings & Co. and A. T. Boddington, all of New York. The Stumpp & Walter Co. offered a silver cup for twelve varieties of vegetables.

The judges of the evening's exhibit were Messrs. Gilder, Marshall and Robinson. They awarded a certificate of culture to V. Cleres for well grown plants of Hydrangea hortensis, first prize to G. Ferguson for twelve mixed roses, and first prize to H. Gaut for twelve Darwin tulips, variety Clara Butt.

The schedule for the summer show was read and approved and judges for the fall show were elected. The next meeting will be held May 14, at 7:30 p. m. J. M.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has improved somewhat during the last week. There is as yet but little doing in the social line, but funeral work has picked up considerably. Stock is plentiful. There is an increased supply of roses and sweet peas. Carnations are to be had in almost any quantity. Bulbous stock is still available. Lilies and callas have been plentiful. Beauties have been fairly abundant, but not of the best quality. Blooming plants are selling well, but the variety is diminishing.

Various Notes.

E. A. Nelson was severely hurt in a runaway accident last week. He suffered a number of cuts and bruises.

Fred Kiel, formerly with the Bertermann Bros. Co., has taken a position with A. Wiegand's Sons Co.

Adolph Baur and Oliver Steinkamp attended the meeting of the State Florists' Association at Portland last week.

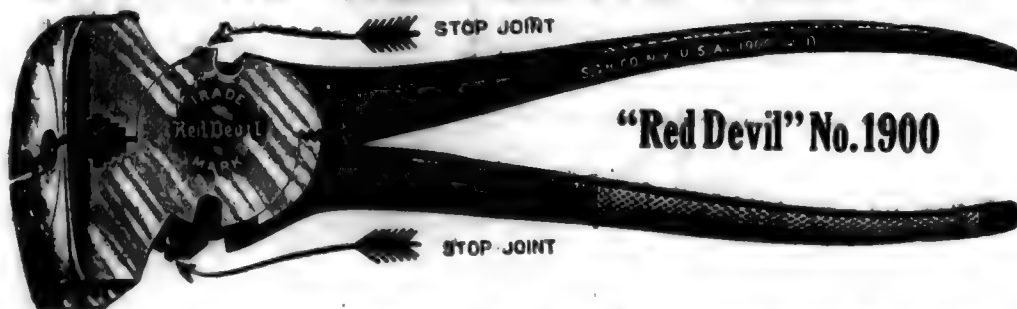

E. E. Temperly is expecting to add another house to his range this year.

S. T. Hitz & Son have a fine lot of bedding stock coming on. They also have been cutting some fine snapdragons. H. L. W.

The Market.

Business has been unusually good during the last week, while the temperature was a little high for this time of the year. A number of weddings and social functions demanded a great many cut flowers. Funeral work was beyond expectations with everybody, it seems. Shrub work is brisk with florists who have a general run of business. The week was marked with a glut in the lower grades of carnations and roses. Department and grocery stores had big sales on both from 1 cent to 3 cents, but the better grades were needed at times. Bulb stock is about all gone. Good stock is bringing a high price. Sweet peas are selling cheaply and in large lots. Of the standard varieties in carnations, Enchantress is the best, while in roses the Killarneys are showing up the best. There seems to be plenty of bedding stock everywhere. A number of the florists here are figuring on selling last fall's propagations of geraniums this spring for $1.50 per dozen out of 3-inch pots, and they are worth it, as they will have to be spread far apart, which takes up about as much room as a 4-inch. The call for bedding stock has started and a lot of people have planted outside.

Various Notes.

James Payne has a fine lot of bedding stock and had to throw out several benches of carnations in order to make room for his spring stock. He also reports that funeral work was brisk last week with him.

R. S. Brown & Son have about 75,000 vincas every year and they report that they are going fast, as well as the bedding stock, of which they sell an enormous lot.

Samuel Murray reports that business increased during the week, especially in decorative work.

Edward Ellsworth, of the Rosary, is busy getting his place ready for the spring trade, and his stock looks exceptionally good.

W. L. Rock is back from the New York show, where he was one of the judges. He reports that it was a big success for a spring show. Business has been good with his firm the last week.

Arthur Newell says business is better and he has some large decorations on hand for next week. He will decorate for the National Bank of Republic and he will use a great many cut flowers instead of so many palms. The bank will give away souvenirs of cut flowers.

Looking Price Straight in the Face.

WHEN you get a specification estimate on our Pipe Frame House, the first thing you do is to take a look at the price. If that price seems at first glance to be about right—all is satisfactory.

If it is some higher than you have been paying for all cypress houses, with heavy wooden plate and other shade-casting, short-lived wooden members, then without any further investigation you at once jump to the conclusion that L. & B. are "high."

Now, isn't this so?

Let's look this price question straight in the face. Look at it from all points of view:

Suppose you are going to stock a house with carnations—you are pretty careful to compare different varieties, looking into their free blooming qualities, strength and length of stems, and so on; then you select the very best ones your money can buy, because you know that in the end you will get more blooms and more money by making such a selection.

Then why allow yourself to apply any less careful investigating business methods when buying a greenhouse?

Why not be equally fair with yourself and make just as careful comparisons, point by point, between our construction and others?

If you read carefully over the list of materials we furnish View looking down one of the alleys in the cypress yards. Millions of feet of cypress, air-drying for greenhouse materials. Not a stick used in our greenhouses that has not been air-drying for two years. When milled, all sappy parts are cut out and burned. (Sappy parts are not used in our greenhouses in any way, shape or manner.)

for our Pipe Frame House, and check it up, item for item, in comparison with the specifications for the other build of houses, you will find that in reality you are getting from us not simply the usual Pipe Frame house, but one that is more than half iron.

Other estimates you may have are for one thing, while ours is an entirely different proposition.

The other prices are a little cheaper at the beginning, but if you will give us half a chance we can show you how our construction most certainly will cost you less in the end.

Things are different now than ten or twenty years ago, when men could make good money in heavy, shade-casting houses. These same men find themselves up against the stiffest kind of game to make satisfactory profits today, in competing against growers with up-to-date, productive, repair-free houses.

Still, on the other hand, if you want an all cypress house, rather than our Pipe Frame or all Iron Frame, we can sell you top notch materials as reasonably as anyone—quality of cypress and smoothness of milling taken into comparison. Fact is, there is no greenhouse concern in the country that has as many million feet of air-dried cypress being turned into greenhouse materials each year.

It is exceedingly bad financing to build in a way that you know means constant repairs, and in a few years makes necessary the complete tearing down and replacing of your houses. Such houses positively cannot produce the highest paying quality and quantity—and such a property, if put on the market, practically brings nothing.

Building cheaply is a losing game any way you figure it. Write us.

A 5 TO 0 SHOT

"Cypress Wins In a Canter"

As a straw to show how the wind blows, we note that a recent issue of The Florists' Review carried advertisements from the following greenhouse contractors and material men, all of whom recommend CYPRESS in large, black, healthy display type:

JOHN C. MONINGER CO., Chicago, users of Cypress ("and no substitutes.") ALL CYPRESS.
STOKES BROTHERS CO., (Inc.) Philadelphia—specialize in CYPRESS Bench Boards.
LOCKLAND LUMBER CO., Lockland, Ohio, shout for "Spot Clear CYPRESS." SCHNUTE-HOLTMANN CO., Evansville, Ind., announce "Clear CYPRESS." ADAM SCHILLO LUMBER CO., Chicago, specialize in "PECKY CYPRESS."

Now the joke in this is: No dealer in a "substitute" for CYPRESS mentioned his "cheaper" article. Those who use clear, heart CYPRESS seem to be PROUD OF IT. They are willing to "go before the country" on the standard that all experience in greenhouse construction has set—clear, heart CYPRESS, "and nothing but."

THERE'S AN ARGUMENT IN THIS SO PLAIN WE DON'T HAVE TO TELL IT.

There's Profit for You in the Facts—So Plain You're Bound to Go After It.

How about our free booklets in the CYPRESS POCKET LIBRARY? They're attractive—and chock full of greenhouse "hoss-sense." Vol. 1 is the Government Report on the "wood eternal"; Vol. 3 has the last word on GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION; Vol. 20, "Cypress for All Farm Needs"—it's new. A postal will bring you one or a dozen—they're free, absolutely. Write us a letter just for luck and good-fellowship—and as a good business move.

BOILERS THAT DO THE WORK RIGHT.

CAST IRON BOILERS are heating 70% or more of all the greenhouse glass in the United States, and they are steadily gaining on the old steel flue boilers. It is only a question of a few years and steel flue boilers will be hard to find in greenhouses. Get your cast iron boiler now and be rid of your troubles.

To the Trade:--Mothers' Day already has become one of the important special flower days and, if the Retailers keep up their good work of advertising it to the public, it soon will be one of the trade's very best days. But to get the most out of Mothers' Day we must all work to get all kinds of flowers used, not just white carnations. We all know there are not enough white carnations to go around and that a big special demand for them alone sends them up in price, while other flowers still are selling at the same low prices as in ordinary times. If the Retailers will push colored stock for Mothers' Day they will increase their profits and make it possible for us to give still better service to our customers. Advertise 'Bright flowers for Mother still in the home; white flowers for Mother's memory,' and tell your customers that the appropriate flower for Mothers' Day is the flower Mother liked best. It will work fine. Try it and see if it don't.

FOR MOTHERS' DAY we can supply everything that is to be had in this market and our prices will be, as always, the market rate at the time of shipment. We always treat our customers right.

WATCH FOR SPECIAL DECORATION DAY ANNOUNCEMENT NEXT WEEK.

Mothers' Day Orders should be placed at once in order that you may be sure of getting the best stock. The market will not be oversupplied with Carnations, but we can handle your order if you send it in now.

Gentlemen:

I purchased our commercial car from the White Company for delivery purposes in and about New York City, and for running between our Nurseries at New Rochelle, N.Y., and our City store in New York.

We find this car a very valuable factor, both in the long and short distance runs. After running it for a year, I consider the automobile delivery almost indispensable and, in my opinion, there is none superior to the White Car.

Respectfully,

NEPHROLEPIS IN VARIETY

We are now the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country, in the following varieties; in fact, we are headquarters for them. The demand increases each year and it is our aim to have EVERY VARIETY OF NEPHROLEPIS IN EVERY SIZE EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

Excellent values in all sizes.
NEPHROLEPIS TODEAOIDES—LONDON FERN
This we consider one of the best.
2½-inch pots, for growing on.....$5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots, very heavy.....$20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1,000

NEPHROLEPIS SCHOLZELI
This is an ideal crested fern, holding the same relation to all other crested ferns that Scottii holds to the old Boston.
2½-inch pots.....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots, very heavy.....$20.00 per 100
11 -inch tubs.....$2.50 and $3.00 each

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA IMPROVED
This variety is a greatly improved Elegantisima, and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston. This is now one of the most popular of the crested varieties.
2½-inch pots.....$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots.....$20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1,000
10 -inch tubs, very heavy.....$2.00 each

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA COMPACTA
A dwarf compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantisima, each plant making an ideal shape. Our stock of this variety is large and of exceptional quality.
2½-inch pots.....$6.00 per 100
4 -inch pots.....$20.00 per 100
8 -inch pots, heavy.....$12.00 and $15.00 per doz.

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII

Our stock is in superb condition.

11 -inch tubs, handsome plants.....$2.50 and $3.00 each 11 -inch special tubs, heavy plants.....$3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each

NEPHROLEPIS SMITHII

This variety is a greatly improved Amerpohlii, dwarfed in habit, the fronds being much finer, and having no tendency to spoil in the center of the plant.
2½-inch pots.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1,000
8 -inch pots.....$20.00 per 100
4 -inch pots, very heavy.....$35.00 per 100

NEPHROLEPIS BOSTONIENSIS

6-inch pots.....$6.00 per doz.; $45.00 per 100

NEPHROLEPIS BOSTONIENSIS HARRISII
2½-inch pots.....$8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000
4 -inch pots.....$20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1,000
6 -inch pots.....$6.00 and $9.00 per doz.

10 -inch and 11-inch tubs, very handsome plants.....$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each

The above variety is a greatly improved Boston and very similar to the new President Roosevelt Fern, having the same wavy appearance to the fronds. Our stock of this variety is very large.

NEPHROLEPIS WM. H. HARRIS—DWARF

NEPHROLEPIS HARRISII
2½-inch pots.....$8.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1,000

DRACAENA MANDAIANA

Large leaf, beautifully colored bright red.
6-inch pots.....$15.00 and $18.00 per doz.

DRACAENA DE SMETIANA

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties; a strong, vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine.
7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandaiana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena De Smetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.
8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $5.00 and $6.00 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI

The ribbon weavers have been on strike for over ten weeks and there is no prospect of a settlement. Fortunately, our stocks have been in such condition that we have been able to fill most orders. But stocks are rapidly becoming depleted, and we predict a great scarcity of ribbons during May and June, with a probable advance in price.

FLORIST.....

THE TREND OF THE TRADE.

Helpful Competition.

In The Review of March 20 there was an interesting article on "The Trend of the Trade," and as this is a subject of great importance to all, it no doubt has been read with interest and has also given rise to many opinions for and against the views which were expressed there.

There is no doubt as to the large amount of stock to be handled; so large that it might be said to be in excess of the demand. This is not so, however. At any rate, the demand may be increased. This has been done and is being done from day to day. Yes, the stock is here and we must sell it and we are going to sell it.

The wholesaler who opens new retail stores is working along one line which should meet with success. It must not be a combination of wholesale and retail business, however, but strictly a retail store, buying from the wholesale department. Then will result honest competition, and every competitor of this kind is boosting business. Cut flowers at retail must be sold at retail prices and there is no reason why any retailer should fear the competition of the wholesaler with his retail store; nor should he consider him a menace. Of course, a small town will furnish only a certain amount of trade, but there are so many of the public who are not educated into flower buying that our opportunities are practically unlimited, provided we push on carefully and intelligently along the proper lines. Find the right field and then develop it, and it will work to the advantage of all. Every new store, handled properly, makes new business for itself as well as for competitors.

The Get-together Spirit.

Intelligent advertising is no doubt one of the best business getters and it not only gets business for its own store, but for the others also. That is one of the best reasons why the get-together spirit should be encouraged and an advertising campaign pushed along in every way possible.

Special sales are also a great help in the retail trade. They are also a help to the wholesaler. He can unload in times of gluts and the retailer reaches new customers. Sooner or later their taste for flowers will be cultivated and they will want the flowers whether there are special sales or not. The result is increased demand.

Why should we complain when the department stores take up a retail flower department? It is the same thing over again. Every competitor is making new trade and the result will simply be that the public who are not buyers at present will become buyers eventually. The flower business is not overdone, by any means, and a large part of the department store trade is developing new customers.

Stock That Discourages Buying.

We do not want a cut price campaign, but a system of business whereby a decent profit may be made; neither do we want the stores which sell unfit stock. Selling sleepy and unfit stock will discourage buying and such stock should not be handled at any price.

Let all work together. Get together and advertise. Persuade your customers to attend our exhibitions. Get them acquainted with plants and flowers and the names of the different varieties and there will be many who will show new interest, all to the profit of our profession. Assist the local flower shows, and if the small towns have no shows, start them. The public will fall right in and help you. Help them by exhibiting. We do not realize our possibili-intensively as he might. He also questions whether or not the starting of a downtown retail store would pay.

As The Review invites comment, I will give a little of our experience.

Eight years ago this spring we bought an old greenhouse establishment in a town of 3,600 people. The best year's business, previous to our taking charge, was $2,000, which included a little out-of-town trade to nearby towns. Within two years we were obliged to rebuild, which we did, putting up 10,300 feet of glass at the edge of town. We also started at that time a downtown retail store. Last year we moved into a larger store, to accommodate increasing business.

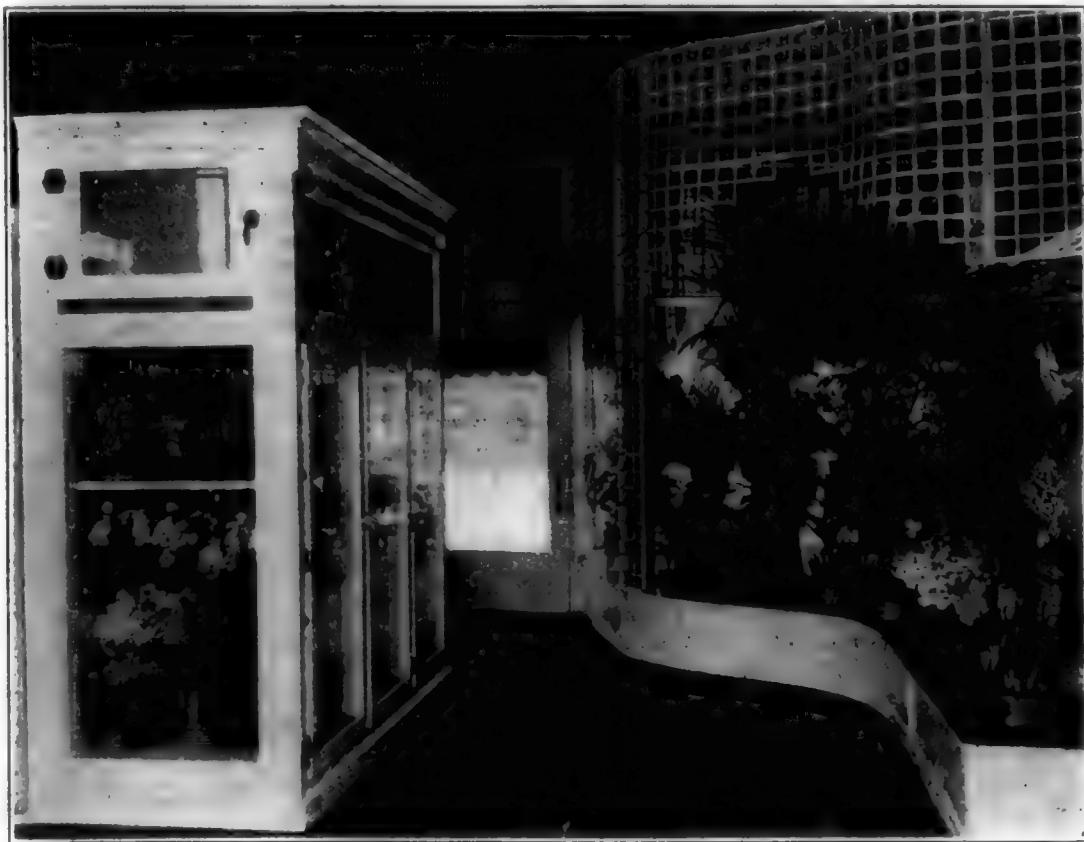

Our last year's business totaled a little more than $6,600. From present indications it will go close to $7,500 this year. We consider that pretty good for a town of 3,600, made up almost entirely of that much derided class known as "retired farmers."

Not every town of this size will support a downtown store, but certainly a city of 10,000 will, if it is backed by business ability, with lots of push and hard work.

PAUL BLOME'S STORE.

An attractive store is considered one of the most important factors of the present-day methods of merchandising cut flowers. While exterior display to ties and can only get what we are entitled to by putting our shoulders to the wheel and working in unison. Stock will be produced in plenty. Our problem is to dispose of it.

Louis J. Reuter.

DO YOU GET WHAT'S DUE?

There has just come to my attention an article published in The Review of January 16, under the title, "Do You Get What's Due?" The writer of the article states that his sales run from $10,000 to $12,000 per year in a town of 10,000 inhabitants, and he wonders whether he is farming his territory as attract the eye of the pedestrian is a sales force in itself, it must be backed up by proper inside display. Usually there are more possibilities offered for working out of ideas for interior display than for window or sidewalk arrangements. The photograph reproduced here shows a display window and the new Buchbinder white enamel display refrigerator installed by Paul Blome at his North Clark street retail shop, Chicago. The refrigerator is so placed that it is the first thing that catches the eye of the prospective customer when he enters. Its construction affords a maximum of display, the idea being worked out so that as much glass surface would be used as was practical. Three thicknesses of glass were used in order to attain this end and still have a minimum consumption of ice.

CLEVER ADVERTISING.

The Philadelphia Retail Florists' Association is conducting a publicity campaign in one selected newspaper that, viewed from every angle, spells splendid advertising. It is doubtful if the trade in any one city ever combined before to educate the public to flower spects, with terrasse floor and high ceiling, and it is well lighted day and night. The window platform of white tile is 5 x 9. The ceiling of the window, finished in white paneled woodwork, is equipped with subdued electric lights to meet the maximum requirement.

The booth effect at the right of the store's entrance is novel and useful, for there the rest chairs and patrons' desks are located. On the opposite side is the large refrigerator. There is a base-and unloading under cover, a feature particularly desirable in cold weather. The greenhouse is nine feet high to the gutter plates, giving splendid opportunity for the future installation of a fountain and rockery.

The business is situated in a new and growing shopping district and gives promise of rapid development.

RIME IT.

N. J. Wietor, the Chicago grower, after reading last week's issue of The Review, said that he approves the suggestion made therein to feature "bright" flowers for Mothers' day, but that the couple of lines now used so generally for advertising purposes should be entirely rewritten, as follows:

For Mothers living, a flower bright,
For Mother's memory, a flower white.

THE IDLEWILD IMPROVEMENTS.

The illustrations on page 13 show the new greenhouses and branch office of the Idlewild Greenhouses, at Memphis, Tenn., together with the new residence of W. H. Englehart, vice-president and manager of the firm. T. G. Owen is president of the Idlewild Greenhouses.

In the exterior view, the new branch office is shown in the foreground, conveniently connected with the new greenhouses, and to the right is seen the new home of the manager. The interior view shows the conservatory, with its display of palms and Easter lilies at Easter.

Speaking of the improvements, Mr. Englehart said: "We are proud of our new plant and think we have the only greenhouses in this section of the country."

buying along lines quite so broad, so liberal and so convincing as the publicity committee of the Philadelphia association, of which Charles Henry Fox is chairman.

Briefly, the plan is an intelligently worded, attractively displayed daily argument in favor of flowers, their use, importance, general need and the good they do. It is an unsigned advertisement, more of an editorial card than an advertisement, in fact, and appears from day to day in varying lengths, always one column wide and in the same faces of type and border. The publicity committee, after looking over the field for the best medium in which to reach the public with its daily discourse on flowers, selected the North American, which is giving it a most attractive display.

Mr. Fox has had some of the advertisements reprinted in circular form and has sent copies to the trade, suggesting that they be cut out and pasted in windows, or reproduced on separate sheets and enclosed with orders, letters and bills. That the Philadelphia florists are desirous of letting others profit by their material is evidenced by the line Mr. Fox uses in his circular, "Make these ads work for you."

NORMAN SULLIVAN'S NEW STORE.

The most recent addition to Detroit's numerous well-appointed flower stores is that of the Woodward Flower Shop, 361 Woodward avenue, shown in the accompanying illustrations. Norman Sullivan, well known to the trade, is the proprietor. The store is 20 x 65 feet and connects with a greenhouse, 20 x 85 feet. It is modern in all rement with concrete floor, provided with departments for a large supply of boxes, wire designs and florists' requisites.

The greenhouse has a center aisle five feet wide between the display benches. A 25-foot section in the rear is partitioned off and used for automobile storage and affords facilities for loading directions, sprayed it on with a pump, and at least saved our benches. Since then, as soon as the moths appear we use the spray and never have any trouble. The lead will discolor the foliage and possibly Paris green in weak solution would do as well, but there is always danger of burning the foliage with the green unless used with lime.

TO FIX RESPONSIBILITY.

The Review frequently has called attention to the difficulty often experienced in fixing the responsibility for loss where the instructions to the express companies, which should be on every shipment, are not sufficiently explicit. In the case of cut flower shipments it is not enough to direct that the shipper be notified "at once" if for any reason the box cannot be delivered; the courts have ruled that if the company acts within twelve hours it is "at once" and that often would mean a total loss on a box of cut flowers.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., Chicago, has given much study to the method by which the wholesale florist can control the disposition of his goods under all cases of inability to deliver or to collect C. O. D. and says that the express companies all have now recognized that if the shipment bears a conspicuous notice in a certain form, herewith quoted, the company has no defense where the instructions are not carried out. The notice recommended is: "Notice to express companies: Should consignee refuse to accept flowers or pay C. O. D., wire us day message at once at our expense." Mr. Pieser recommends that this be printed in a different colored ink than the rest of the label and with a big index finger pointing to it.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Boston, Mass.—James M. Petros, of this city, and George F. Arnold, of Winchester, Mass., formerly doing business as Petros & Arnold, on Boylston street, filed a petition in bankruptcy, giving their liabilities as $5,784 and their assets as $300. Mr. Petros gives his individual liabilities as $1,144 and assets $545; Mr. Arnold's individual liabilities are $100 and assets $300.

Baltimore, Md.—Frederick W. Meyer-direk, conducting a flower and tobacco business at the corner of Fayette and Liberty streets, made an assignment April 16 for the benefit of his creditors. He has been suffering from nervous prostration for some time and his business has been handled by Edward A. Strauff as attorney, who was named as trustee, his bond being fixed at $1,000. Mr. Strauff states that the assets will realize $3,000 if not disposed of at forced sale, and the liabilities are about $2,000. Creditors pressing for payment precipitated the assignment.

Sandusky, O.—J. P. Richardson has sold his business to Mons Bros., who have changed the name to the West End Greenhouse.

TARIFF WORK IN WASHINGTON.

Representing the Society of American Florists, as chairman of the tariff committee, Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, has been taking up with senators the proposed amendments to the tariff schedules affecting the trade. The House members were not seen because Chairman Underwood has refused to consider amendments. Although representations were made to him through the mail by those interested, urging changes in the schedule, Mr. Underwood told them that the bill was out of the jurisdiction of his committee and before Congress. As is generally known, the chairman of a committee can present amendments on the floor, but Mr. Underwood is trying to rush the bill through and is heedless of all suggestions.

Mr. Gude, therefore, is concentrating his attention on senators, and on several occasions has taken up the matter with Senators Simmons, of North Carolina, chairman of the finance committee; Smoot, of Utah, and Gallinger, of New Hampshire. He told these senators, in behalf of the horticultural trades of the country, that the language in the schedule should be changed in some respects as to imports of greenhouse plants and nursery stock. He pointed out that the bill as it stands is obscure and likely to cause importers trouble. He said that in one place greenhouse stock was classified at twenty-five per cent and in another at fifteen per cent, and urged that the two should be harmonized.

After seeing a number of the House members, Mr. Gude said he had assurances that there will be no change in the House in the tariff. He hopes for changes in the Senate, but to a limited extent.

"The one idea of the leaders is to rush the bill through, irrespective of how it is framed," said Mr. Gude to The Florists' Review correspondent. "This is bad policy, but we are hopeful that the Senate will calmly consider it and right the imperfections in the House bill."

Mr. Gude has notified all florists and horticulturists who have suggestions to make as to changes in the tariff to send them to him, and he will do all he can to further their interests.

In his interviews with the senators, Mr. Gude asked that the following changes be made:

Paragraph 215—After "orchids, palms and azaleas," insert "Azalea Indica," which is a greenhouse plant. All other varieties of azaleas come under section 216.

Paragraph 216—Include Rosa rugosa, which is the principal briar rose. Strike out "greenhouse stock" under this section, which is fifteen per cent, while under 215 it is twenty-five per cent.

J. C. Vaughan, chairman of the tariff committee of the American Seed Trade Association, offered to invite the chairman of the tariff committee of the American Nurserymen's Association to go to Washington to take up the horticultural schedule for hearing, and William Pitkin, of Rochester, of the American Nurserymen's Association, offered to go, but Mr. Gude told them it was of no use, as the leaders would not change the bill in any important detail, and, being on the ground, he could attend to the minor details.

Glass Area In the U. S.

THE Census Bureau has at length supplied the tabulated figures showing the area under glass at the time of the last census, taken in 1910. The figures are as of 1909 and therefore are, at best, four years old. This is the first publication of them. The number of establishments reporting and value of products (1909) were made public last July, but are included in the present table of area covered by glass for convenient reference.

PLANT LEAVES DYING.

Kindly give us a remedy for the drying of leaves on geraniums and hydrangeas. The disease started last November on Primula malacoides, and, despite fumigation and spraying, seems to keep spreading all over the bedding plants.

J. J. B.

If you are sure that no escaping coal gas or other fumes are entering the house, the most probable causes of your leaves dying off are an insufficient water supply and soil starvation. The plants named are all of easy culture, but need a fairly good soil; the hydrangeas require a generous compost. I would advise you to discontinue the spraying and apply more stimulants to the plants in the form of liquid manure or top-dressings of fine bone, or such a chemical stimulant as Clay's fertilizer. Keep the house freely ventilated, avoiding anything in the nature of a damp, close, stagnant atmosphere.

CARNATIONS IN ENGLAND.

By a coincidence, April 10 and '11, when American carnation growers were assembled in New York, their British confreres of the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society were holding their spring show at Leamington. In the past all the shows of the society were held in London. Now, however, with additional power to its elbow and a widening interest in carnations, the society has decided to make the shows migratory, and the first was held at Leamington, in the land of Shakespeare, on the dates mentioned. The first day was entirely satisfactory, but the second day a snowstorm interfered with the attendance of the public.

The entries were quite up to the average of former shows. On this occasion the champion, W. E. Wallace, was not a competitor, but acted as one of the judges.

In the group class for the American cup there was a keen contest between C. Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, and W. Wells & Co., Merstham, the former securing the trophy, with a nicely balanced exhibit, rich with brilliant colors of some of his own varieties, such as Sunstar, Elektra, Rosette, Lady Northcliffe, British Triumph, etc.

The cup for American novelties went to W. H. Page, Hampton, for Washington, White Wonder and Gloriosa. The Brunton cup for British novelties was awarded to C. Engelmann for British Triumph, Lady Northcliffe and My Rose. On this occasion the floral committee had little work, and its only award was an award of merit to C. Engelmann for Sunstar.

In the competitive classes for seven vases of distinct varieties the premier position was secured by C. Engelmann, with Benora, Carola, My Rose, Lady Northcliffe, Sunstar, Lady Meyer and British Triumph; second, the Clury Nurseries. For five vases of distinct varieties W. H. Page triumphed with Gloriosa, Salmon Britannia, Mrs. C. W. Ward, White Wonder and Enchantress. For three vases of distinct varieties the chief honor went to H. T. Mason, who put up Beacon, Gloriosa and White Wonder. For one vase of fifty blooms H. T. Mason won with Beacon; C. Engelmann, second, with Carola; Clury Nurseries, third, with Mikado. The silver gilt medal for the best vase in the show went to a magnificent lot of flowers of Lady Meyer, shown by E. Guile.

Large, non-competitive groups were arranged by Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park; A. F. Dutton, Iver, and C. Engelmann, and each received a large gold medal. Smaller groups were staged by Allwood Bros., Haywards Heath, and Young & Co., Cheltenham; a gold medal was awarded to each.

Table decorations, bouquets, baskets and other work were a feature of the show, the leading honors in this section going to Perkins & Sons, Coven-try; W. J. Garner, Hale, and W. Harper, Leamington. Bee.

SEVEN YEARS—SOIL UNCHANGED.

Several times comment has been made in The Review with regard to the system followed by N. Greivelding, of Merrill, Wis., who grows his carnations year after year in the same soil. Mr. Greivelding writes:

"I send you a box of carnations and a photograph of the house they are growing in. These carnations are seven years in the same soil. I have a part of a house in new soil and they are not so good as those in the old soil. I am not going to throw the old soil out so long as the carnations are as they are now. They did not get any feeding since last fall, but we are giving them some now as soon as we can get at it."

The photograph is reproduced herewith. As to the cut blooms that accompanied it, they certainly were fine—they stood on the editor's desk for three days and nearly every visitor remarked on the excellence of the flowers. But not many growers could be made to believe that Mr. Greivelding gets any better flowers than equally good culture would give in fresh soil, or that he cuts as many of them as he would if he changed his soil as other growers do. He uses ground beds.

A BEGINNER IN ALABAMA.

Please give a beginner, located in central Alabama, a few points on the growing of carnations. I am going to grow Enchantress and White Enchantress. I have one ground bench that is 4x46 feet, and two ground benches that are each 5x46 feet. How many rows can I put in each bench and how far apart in the rows should the plants be set? Should the plants be sprayed daily after they have been benched and should there be some shading on the glass until the plants get started? Would five inches of soil be enough? I shall appreciate any information you may give me as to the care of the plants after they have been benched.

H. A. C.

Central Alabama is rather far south for growing carnations, and unless you have had experience in growing them, I would advise you to go into it rather slowly until you can feel sure of your ground. I would set five plants in a row across a 4-foot bed and space the rows ten inches apart. Set seven plants in a row across a 5-foot bed and space the rows twelve inches apart.

When the carnations are first planted in from the field (I presume you are intending to bench field-grown plants), you will have to keep them sprayed to prevent wilting until they have taken hold in their new quarters. Just how much spraying will be required will be governed by prevailing conditions. We spray as little as possible at all times, and discontinue altogether as soon as the plants are able to stand up without it. We add only a little shade to what is put on for any other growing plant. We find that in this latitude, central Indiana, a little shade is beneficial to most plants during the hottest part of the summer. Four inches of soil is plenty; any more is superfluous.

TO EXTERMINATE SPIDER.

I have been using the sugar and arsenic mixture for spider, but have trouble to keep the arsenic in suspension. Can you tell me whether arsenate of lead could be used instead of arsenic? In what manner does the mixture affect the spider? I have just tried some arsenate of lead and molasses, in the hope that these will do the work. I find them much easier to prepare and I am inclined to think that the molasses will not have a tendency to crystallize like sugar.

Perhaps the readers of The Review may be interested in knowing that con-concentrated lime-sulphur, about one part to fifty parts of water, will prove effective against spider. It has the serious objection, however, that it will injure blooms, so its use is limited to non-blooming plants, unless the blooms are covered with paper or something similar. C. P. B.

Not being the author of the formula in question, I would hesitate in making any changes in it. It was given to me by a friend who received it from another friend. We tried it thoroughly and found it quite effective against red spider. The molasses would perhaps be as good as the sugar. Try it, and if it works in the way you suggest it will be an improvement on the original formula. Arsenic is deadly to nearly all kinds of animal life and would be used a great deal more as an insecticide if it were soluble in water. It is hard to keep it mixed; in fact, all you can do is to hold it in suspension by keeping it agitated while it is being applied to the plants. When this is not well done it will settle to the bottom, which accounts for the burning of foliage, etc. A. F. J. B.

WHEN TO POLLENIZE.

I should like to get some pointers on the pollenizing or crossing of carnations. I have been successful in pollenizing gladioli and peonies, so I understand the mechanical part of the operation, but I did not succeed in my trials with the carnation. Should I anticipate nature a few days and apply the pollen before the flower is fully expanded, or wait for the full-blown flower? Any information you can give me will be thankfully received by me, and perhaps by some other novices who would be willing to try what they can produce. J. M.

The time to pollenize carnations is when the stigma has taken on a fuzzy appearance. This takes place when the bloom has reached its full development. Perhaps you selected varieties for pollination which do not set seed readily; varieties differ greatly in this respect. We have found it impossible to set seed on some varieties, while on others we succeed in only a percentage of attempts made. For that reason, when we are not sure of the varieties we usually cross them both ways. After a little experience you will soon learn which varieties will set seed and which will not. A. F. J. B.

RENEWING OLD SOIL.

I should like to ask for some information in regard to carnation soil. In one of my houses I have some soil that was new last year. Would it be advisable to take it out and mix, say, one-half new sod soil and one-half of the soil from the carnation bench, adding one-fourth of cow manure, and use the soil again this year for carnations? C. H. M.

I would advise you to use all new soil for planting your carnations. If you want to use your old soil over again, spread it on the field, manure it well and then plow it in with at least its own quantity of new soil. Then sow it down to red clover and in a couple of years it will be ready for use again.

With some of us the soil question is a considerable problem, but when you consider the returns from a good crop as compared with the returns from a poor one, you will agree that you can afford to spend a considerable amount for good soil, from which you can reasonably expect a good crop. It never pays to use soil which is known to be of poor quality. A. F. J. B.

FLOREX GARDENS CARNATIONS.

The photographs from which the accompanying illustrations were prepared were taken March 19 in the big carnation house, 150x475 feet, at Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa. There are 68,000 carnation plants, all growing in solid beds. The varieties grown are White Star, a seedling raised on the place; White Enchantress, Enchantress, Ruth, another seedling; Beacon, and two others. Ruth is said to be the best paying variety. It is more free blooming than any of the others and the flowers are borne on better stems. Eighteen buds and blooms were counted on one plant at the same time.

The end of the house is planted with snapdragon, which has been blooming freely. Phil.

FAIRY RING.

You will find some young carnation plants enclosed. Please tell me what the trouble is, how it was caused and what measures should be taken to eradicate it. Is the disease hereditary? Will it have any effect on the flowers when they begin to bloom? H. H.

The cuttings forwarded are covered with fairy-ring spots. This is not a hereditary disease, but is caused in much the same way as all the leaf-spot diseases. Too much dampness on the foliage usually brings it on. Spray the plants with Bordeaux Mixture, after picking off all you can. Dusting with Grape Dust will also help. A. F. J. B.

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Miltonias.

Plants of Miltonia vexillaria will now have flower spikes pushing above the leaves and the earliest ones should be opening about the last part of March. Never mind the leaves taking on a ruddy hue; this will harden them and put them in a better condition to stand the hot summer months. No shade should yet be required for them. A night temperature of 55 to 58 degrees will be found about right.

Thrips is the arch enemy of this Miltonia and to keep the foliage clean the plants should be sponged with or dipped in tobacco water.

A rather more abundant water supply will now be necessary, but avoid spraying the plants overhead. About the middle of April it will be better to move the plants into a somewhat cooler house, where they will be shaded from direct sunshine.

Calanthes.

It is time to start the bulbs of those beautiful winter-flowering orchids, the Calanthes, in flats of sand. You will note the new growths starting from the base of the old bulbs. Do not cover these much, and water only moderately, or decay will set in. Pot the bulbs while the roots are quite short. As a rule, they can be held sufficiently by the compost, but with long bulbs it is always better to support them until they have rooted well into the compost. Drain the pots well and use a compost of three parts fibrous loam, with the fine particles shaken out, and one part dried cow manure, also adding some coarse sand and broken charcoal. Large bulbs of C. Veitchii and C. Regnieri will each require a 6-inch pot; more moderate sized ones, 5-inch, and smaller ones can go three in a pot. Give the plants a minimum temperature of 65 degrees.

Phaius.

This is the season when most of the terrestrial orchids are pushing up their flower stalks, and the old but ever useful Phaius grandifolius is already in flower. Give the plants a night temperature of 60 degrees, a good water supply and weak cow manure water to strengthen the flower spikes. In repotting any of the plants after flowering, use a similar compost to that advised for Calanthes. The Phaius, being more robust growing, require larger pots than Calanthes, but they want much cooler treatment through the growing season.

Odontoglossums.

At this season there are more spikes on the Odontoglossums than at any other, O. crispum, O. Harryanum, O. Pescatorei and others all being in bloom. Give the plants full sun for some time longer to redden up the leaves. This will make them tough and better able to withstand the summer heat. All the Odontoglossums now enjoy a good supply of water at the roots. O. citrosimum, which has been kept dry for some time, is now showing its flower spikes and water can be applied more freely. An oversupply before the spikes show, often causes a failure to flower at all. As the spikes of this Odontoglossum are of a drooping nature, the plants are best grown in pans or baskets, suspended from the roof. A temperature at night of 55 degrees is ample for them. All the Odontoglossums are benefited by a spraying over on bright days. Protect the flower spikes by wrapping cotton-wool around the bases. Snails which come in sphagnum moss are destructive to them. For this reason it is safer not to use any moss for Odontoglossums and Oncidiums, the spikes of these two species being more relished by snails than those of any other orchids.

SPOT DISEASE OF VINCAS.

Can you tell me what is the trouble with my vincas? The leaves become covered with black specks and then fall off. I am enclosing a sample of the leaves. M. H. W.

Pick off the affected foliage. Cut out the worst shoots entirely. If any plants are badly attacked, cut them down. I have known of extreme cases where it was necessary to shake away all the soil, cut back the plants and repot in fresh soil in order to shake off this spot trouble. If you have not used any Bordeaux mixture, try an application of this on your plants. A second spraying can be given if the first does not stop the spot. Keep the foliage as dry as you can in the meantime. C. W.

Gorham, Me.—Fred H. Smith, of South street, is building an addition to his greenhouses.

Allentown, Pa.—The Ellsworth Flower Shop, of which Chas. F. Berke-meyer is proprietor, has been moved from 17 North Sixth street to 1103 Hamilton street.

THE MINNEAPOLIS FLORISTS.

Floriculture in Minneapolis is nearly as old as the city itself. In 1857 Dr. Alfred E. Ames, uncle of the famous Dr. A. A. Ames, instructed his brother, then a consul in Hamburg, Germany, to send him a gardener. Wm. Buckendorf was engaged and came to Minneapolis. He, therefore, was the first florist. A year later they built two neat greenhouses on Eighth avenue south, between Fourth and Fifth streets. For several years these greenhouses were kept for private use only, when Mr. Buckendorf decided to operate them for commercial purposes. In 1866 Mr. Buckendorf built a greenhouse on his own property, Fourth street and Seventh avenue south. This ground was sold for building purposes and in 1890 Mr. Buckendorf built another house on Fourth avenue south and Seventeenth street, which was discontinued in 1900.

In 1862 Wyman Elliott, having a large nursery on Park avenue, built two greenhouses where Elliot park is today. In 1865 R. J. Mendenhall decided to have a few small greenhouses for his private use. He engaged Henry Buck-endorf, a brother of William Buckendorf. They began in a small way and kept enlarging until the plant was one of the foremost in the country. This was located on Nicollet avenue and Eighteenth street south. First avenue was not opened up at that time. After this plant covered a city block and some space across the street, another one was started at Twenty-eighth avenue south and Thirty-eighth street. In 1903 Mr. Mendenhall sold out to L. S. Donaldson, and one year later the greenhouses were torn down.

About the same year Mr. Mendenhall started, George Brackett built a greenhouse where the city hospital is now located. This was operated a few years by Mr. Brackett, with Mr. Boose as florist, and later Mr. Kilvington. In 1883 Mr. Kilvington built a greenhouse near Lakewood cemetery, which has been dismantled for many years. In 1880 Mr. White started the establishment on Twenty-second avenue and Garfield street northeast, which now belongs to O. H. Carlson. Mr. White had a nursery, a dairy and one small greenhouse. This was purchased in Greenhouses of Warren G. Matthews, Dayton, O., Probably the Heaviest Loser in the Recent Flood.

MATTHEWS FLOOD RUINS.

The accompanying illustration shows the ruins of Warren G. Matthews' greenhouses at Dayton, O., following the disastrous flood of March 25. Mr. Matthews was the heaviest loser in Dayton, his stores and residence, as well as his greenhouses, being damaged. The loss on his property and stock, it was estimated, amounted to $30,000. Mr. Matthews and his family narrowly escaped with their lives, and for some days following the flood he was in a critical condition as a result of the shock.

MOLES AND CUTWORMS.

This spring I am confronted with two afflictions new to me. One is the mole, which has established several underground routes to his satisfaction, but to my discomfort.

In digging up a section of the lawn in which I set out some bedding plants I encountered cutworms, looking hungry and greedy. Can you give me any practical suggestions in the line of eliminating these pests? And can you satisfactorily explain why weeds, more especially the particularly noxious kind, by some dispensation of Providence are immune from disease? Could it be connected with that apple transaction at a remote period in the garden, and was it intended to provide a generous supply of sweat for the brow if other avenues failed to give sufficient opportunities? W. A. S.

To get rid of moles, the best plan is to secure one or two special mole traps, of which I have found the Reddick to be the best. Set these right in their runs and they cannot pass through them without being caught. Poisoned bait has been tried successfully in some cases, but I think you will find traps the most effectual.

Cutworms do a great deal of damage annually. The use of lime and soot in the soil is distasteful to them, but, now that you have them, there are several ways of fighting them. Cutworms are nocturnal workers, and if you have only a few plants, by digging away a little soil with the hand around the stems of the plants you will find them curled up there and can destroy them.

Poisoned mash made of fresh shorts (bran), sweetened with molasses, moistened with water and sprinkled with Paris green until it shows a light green tinge, laid about their haunts in the evening, will be eagerly devoured. Another plan is to lay shingles or rhubarb leaves among the plants in the evening. The cutworms, or many of them, will crawl under these instead of burying themselves in the soil during the day, and can thus be picked up and destroyed.

All weeds are not free from disease, but it is a distressing fact that about all the more noxious ones seem to be practically disease-proof. Whether Providence so ordained it after the apple theft you refer to, I am unable to state, but it is certainly a fact that between insects, diseases and weeds, to mention no other sources of discomfort, the tiller of the soil has ample opportunities to keep busy.

On further considering your query relative to cutworms, I think that probably what you found in the lawn were not the true cutworms, which are dark in color, but the larvæ of the June bug or May beetle. These are larger than cutworms, have dark heads and light bodies and are usually found curled up. They live on roots of grass and other herbage, but will also eat roots from many other plants. They do not come to the surface, as do the true cutworms. Turn up the affected ground and let the birds make a feast on the grubs. Lime the soil well. Carbon bisulphide will destroy them without digging up the ground. Bore holes six inches deep and twelve to eighteen inches apart each way. Pour in half a teaspoonful of the carbon, cover the holes with earth and the fumes will penetrate and destroy the grubs. Heavy rolling and pounding of the soil will also kill a large number. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Asters.

The earliest aster plants should now be gradually hardened off, and they can be planted in the field from the beginning to the middle of May, according to location. Land which has been liberally manured and kept well harrowed right up to planting time, and which is persistently cultivated, should grow good asters. Light soil can be improved by using cow manure freely. Heavy land, if treated before plowing with a surfacing of road grit, fine coal ashes, sand or similar material, in addition to some lighter manure, such as horse manure and decayed leaves, will be put in an improved mechanical condition for asters. Of course, they need an open, sunny spot. Bottom lands, which are naturally moist in a dry summer, are suitable if we are fairly sure the land will not become sodden, as often happens even in summer. It is surprising what fine asters can be grown even in a light, sandy soil, if plenty of humus has been added and the cultivator is kept constantly at work all the growing season.

This is a suitable time to make succession sowings of asters in a cold-frame or even outdoors. There is far less liability of plants developing stem-rot and yellows if the seed is sown outdoors.

Memorial Day Crops.

Memorial day, the great harvest time of the year for many country florists, will soon be here. In volume of business it far exceeds Easter with many, for it is a time when practically all flowers sell, and the florist who grows the material needed for bouquets and designs is the one who will make money, and not the one whose crops are too early or late and who is compelled to pay Memorial day prices in wholesale markets for his flowers.

Such crops as ten weeks' stocks, candytuft and double feverfew, if they can be timed right, net excellent money. They are worth little at any other time, however, than Memorial day. Therefore, every possible attention should be given them. An ample water supply, freedom from insects, plenty of fresh air and full sunshine are essentials to their successful culture. Keep the surface soil stirred and do not give weeds any quarter. The crops may have to be retarded by shading the glass, or pushed a little, according to the season. Spanish iris, Gladiolus nanus and the big-flowered varieties, such as America, Brenchleyensis, Augusta, etc., can be kept for some days in a cut state in a cold cellar. These crops are all valuable and it is not easy to say offhand how they should be treated now. The weather is always a potent factor, but with cool houses, kept shaded and freely aired, and with cool cellars, even the vagaries of climate can be to a large extent offset.

Spiraea Japonica comes in quickly and if half grown now should be in on time. Gladstone and compacta need a week or more longer, and that beautiful pink variety, Queen Alexandra, still more. The last named brings fancy prices for Memorial day. It is important to remember not to force it too hard and to be sure to shade the plants when the flowers are opening, or they will speedily lose their beautiful peach-pink color. Lilium longiflorum, if it is now showing buds, will be in good season. If buds are not yet appearing, the plants must have more heat.

OBITUARY.

Frank T. Emerson.

Frank Thayer Emerson, who became personally known to practically all the seedsmen of the United States during the years he was manager for the Western Seed & Irrigation Co., died at Mercedes, Tex., April 23. Although it had been known that he was likely to go at any time, the announcement of his death came unexpectedly, as the last letters had spoken of some improvement, which evidently was only temporary.

Mr. Emerson, who was a native of Boston, spent his whole life in the seed business. His father, Joseph Homer Emerson, for a number of years was with the Ames Plow Co., in Boston, but later went into the seed business. Leaving Boston, the son went to New York, later to Fremont, Neb., where he and his brothers established one of the important industries of that section under the corporate name of the Western Seed & Irrigation Co. For some years Frank T. Emerson was manager. The business was established in 1887 and incorporated in 1894. The present officers are: Lowell Emerson, president and treasurer; William Emerson, vice-president and manager. Leaving Fremont, Frank T. Emerson spent some time in California, eventually locating at Mercedes, Tex., where he continued the seed business, first as a retailer and later as a wholesaler. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fannie W. (Hildreth) Emerson, and three children, Mrs. William Evans, of Framingham; Mrs. H. Grey Coy, of Waterloo, Neb., and Samuel H. Emerson, of Mercedes, Tex. His mother, Mrs. J. Homer Emerson, resides in Roxbury, Mass. Mrs. Emerson and son, Sam, accompanied the remains to Boston for interment in the family plot.

Mrs. August Dresel.

Mrs. August Dresel, widow of a prominent Chicago and Crown Point florist, whose death took place about nine months ago, passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Samuel Pearce, 2137 Clybourn avenue, Chicago, April 26. Apoplexy was the cause and she was suffered to live only a few hours after the stroke took place. Born in Copenhagen, Denmark, July 6, 1838, she was 74 years 9 months old at the time of her death. Moving to this country while quite young, she married August Dresel and for forty-eight years was a resident of Chicago. Five children survive: August Dresel, Jr., is a florist and a business associate of Samuel J. Pearce, the husband of one of the daughters; Henry is a florist and foreman for the Metairie Ridge Nurseries, New Orleans, La., while Lewis is a bank auditor at Detroit. The burial took place April 30 at Wunders cemetery, many Chicago florists being in attendance.

E. H. Bauer.

E. H. Bauer, head of the firm of E. H. Bauer & Son, of Chesilhurst, N. J., died April 26. His death is recorded in the Philadelphia correspondence this week.

H. W. Blowers.

Harry Winfield Blowers, aged 55 years and in the nursery business at Westfield, N. Y., died April 20 at the State hospital at Gowanda, N. Y., where he had been ill since April 4. Mr. Blowers was born at Cuba, N. Y., August 24, 1858. He graduated from the Westfield Academy and Union School in 1879, afterwards working at Fredonia, N. Y., for T. S. Hubbard, whose nursery business is now conducted as the T. S. Hubbard Co. Later he embarked in the nursery business for himself, also handling a side line of bicycles. Recently he disposed of the bicycle end of the business and devoted all of his time to raising grape roots and propagating Blowers' blackberry, which he discovered and placed on the market. He married Miss Bertha Burch, at Erie, Pa., December 8, 1891. She survives him, together with two daughters, Misses Marian and Jessie Blowers. He is also survived by one brother, Roy S. Blowers, and one sister, Mrs. Jennie B. Dann. Mr. Blowers made his home at Portland, N. Y.

Henry Eicke.

Henry Eicke, aged 47 years, recently with Vaughan's Seed Store and formerly with Stumpp & Walter Co., O. V. Zangen and F. E. McAllister & Co., all of New York, died April 10 at Christ hospital, Jersey City, N. J., as the result of a complication of diseases. He left a widow and three children. Mr. Eicke was well known in the trade. His experience covers a period of more than thirty years. He was of a genial nature and had many friends in and around New York.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The business for last week showed an increase over that of the previous week. There has been a steady increase of trade since Easter. The demand is about equal to the supply, except in carnations, which are being cut heavily, and some of the dry goods stores are still offering them in special Saturday sales. Roses are fine and are easily disposed of. Killarneys take the lead, with Richmonds second, and they sell as high as $3 per dozen. Roses are in excellent condition, on account of the cool weather, which leaves them with a good color. Sweet peas are being cut in large quantities and the quality is fine. Snapdragons are being heavily cut, but the trade seems to dispose of them all. There is little bulbous stock left anywhere. Bedding stock is being sold at a lively clip for so early in the season.

Various Notes.

J. Tobler has been exceedingly busy during the last four weeks, planting shrubbery, and he says business has increased a great deal along that line.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had an exceptionally good week's business, decorating tables for different functions. The firm also reports a heavy cut of carnations and roses in the last two weeks.

Biedermann & Son report that the spring bedding stock is selling much earlier this year than last and that they have already sent out a great many porch boxes.

R. S. Brown & Son say that business with them is exceptionally good; they are almost too busy to eat. They also report that spring bedding stock is going fast.

Charles Laundry has his place looking extra attractive and he says he is ready for the spring rush, which he expects to show an increase of twenty-five per cent this year.

Henry Kusik went to Chicago last week to buy cut flowers and supplies to fill out his orders, as his stock of supplies is inadequate. He contemplates making more room, in order to keep a larger stock.

Arthur Newell reports that he has been extremely busy all the week with funeral work and that business has increased a great deal over that of two weeks ago.

Across the state line, business in general is as good as could be expected and has increased steadily since Easter.

E. H. Frandsen & Co. have planted their summer-blooming roses in benches and the plants look quite promising.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Cut Flower & Plant Co. reports that out-of-town funeral work was exceptionally heavy last week and that their stock of cut flowers has just come into crop again.

The Alpha Floral Co. put out a suggestive letter head for Mothers' day. Around the edge of each sheet were printed the faces of mothers, twelve in number. He thought that, as an advertisement, it would much more than pay the expense.

W. J. Barnes has about 300 porch boxes filled, waiting to go out, and he is still busy planting more. W. J. B.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

A spell of warm weather has brought on an enormous quantity of flowers of all kinds. Roses, carnations, violets, daffodils and sweet peas are all abundant and in some cases the prices have dropped almost one-half. The sale of seeds, shrubs and outdoor plants, such as pansies and hardy herbaceous stock, has been greatly increased. Boxwood trees are selling now.

All vegetation is advancing fast. Forsythias, magnolias and outdoor bulbous stock are in full bloom. Violets are still plentiful, but the quality is getting poorer right along. Most of the single violets are raised outdoors in coldframes and the color is good. Carnations are getting somewhat smaller and the supply is falling off to a marked degree. Yellow marguerites and snapdragons continue to come into the market in great quantities. Sweet peas are plentiful and are cheaper now. The quality is nothing extra. A few Spencer peas from Boston, however, have come to this market and they are extra fine, with unusually long stems. Daffodils are almost a drug on the market; needless to say, the price is low. A few of the florists here are handling trailing arbutus, but it does not pay, as there are but few calls for it and it does not keep well.

In flowering plants there is scarcely anything to be had except a few ramblers, potted deutzias, Dutch hyacinths and geraniums.

Various Notes.

The Flower Mart reports that business is increasing each week. The firm had a good window display of Dutch hyacinths recently.

The growers at M. Aitken's greenhouses in Agawam attended the opening performance of the Broadway theater on Monday evening, April 21, and had an exceptionally good time. It was the first function of this kind the growers had attended in a body.

G. J. Herrick is producing extra fine candytuft.

Carnation day will be publicly observed here on Saturday, May 10. White-robed girls will stand at the busiest street corners, selling the flowers to passers-by. The proceeds of the sales will be used for the benefit of needy girls of the city, who are helped by the People's Institute.

Mrs. E. B. Beals is beginning to reap the benefits of her four years' labor with two carnation seedlings. One is a cross between a white and a sport of Prosperity; the other is a sport of Thomas Lawson. They are still unnamed, but are numbered 7 and 35, respectively. A bench sixty feet long, containing 400 plants, is at present in fine condition for cutting.

Circulars containing the history of the origin of the new rose, Milady, have reached this city. These circulars were distributed by A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., and in glowing colors tell the history of their newest rose.

Calceolarias of beautiful and varied colors are shown in the display window of N. F. Higgins, on State street. They are quite unusual in the stores of this city.

Jack Morse went to Pittsfield, Mass., April 20, to do some special work for the funeral of Mr. Manihan, proprietor of the Wendell hotel.

M. Aitken and Wm. Schlatter & Son were the only florists who closed one-half day on Patriots' day, April 19.

The Everett Forestry Co. is cutting down the dead trees on the streets in Long Meadow.

Because of the warm weather and showers, fruit trees are in full bloom in Ware, Mass. Fruit trees that usually bloom about May 10 are in full blossom at this writing and it is feared that heavy frosts will come while the trees are in bloom or the fruit is beginning to set.

The genial Robert Shoch, of M. Rice Co., called on the trade last week. He reports that he likes married life.

A WINDOW DECORATION.

Philip Freud arranged a taking and most seasonable window for the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, that is attracting attention. The Caldwell lawn mower is the feature of the window. There are three of the machines in position, ready to trim the delicate green-sward. In the center of the window, in the place of honor, is Helen Michell, the new geranium cross between Alphonse Ricard and, I think, Jean Viaud. You know, Helen Michell is so strong a winner that her debut has been postponed until 1914, so that anywhere near enough plants can be propagated. All around in convenient positions are what may be described as the etcetera of the garden tools—the pruning shears and everything else you can possibly need, with a few that you never needed before but will as soon as you see that window. RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE general strike in Belgium was of short duration; it was settled April 25 and horticultural shipments, which have been interrupted for a fortnight, will now go forward as usual.

A SOUVENIR postal from B. Eschner, from Eisenach, Germany, says that he and Mrs. Eschner are thoroughly enjoying their maiden trip to the supply centers of the Old World.

ONCE more let it be said that anonymous inquiries go into the waste basket. If any reader will sign his full name and address, The Review will do its best to answer his inquiry.

IF F. Zimmer, Philadelphia, who is not a subscriber to The Review, sees this note and will send his street address his inquiry as to the names of plants will be answered by mail.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE recent advance in the popularity of the antirrhinum as a cut flower is something remarkable, scarcely less than the progress noted a few seasons ago in the gladiolus and the sweet pea.

WHEN the new tariff bill came back to Congress last week, from the Democratic caucus, it was unchanged in the paragraphs relating to horticultural commodities. All the ambiguities and conflicting rates remain.

THE New York World, in its magazine section, April 20, Sunday, gave A. N. Pierson's Milady a full page in colors. It was one of the results of the National Flower Show and W. R. Pierson, who supplied the material during show week, feels that it is the finest advertisement a new variety ever had and sure to result in a wide demand for it on the part of the general public.

ACCORDING to Bailey's Cyclopedia, a double spathed calla is not an unusual occurrence and the frequency with which these blooms, or photographs of them, arrive at The Review office bears out Bailey's statement; but every time a florist discovers one of these freaks he appears to think it the rarest curiosity, so apparently they are not so common after all.

BECAUSE of the nature of the florists' business, the promptness with which bills are met perhaps is of greater importance than it is in lines of ordinary manufacture and merchandising. The slow-pay man hardly ever stands wholly still: he either shows some improvement or else he gets slower and slower. And in the latter case, when the crash comes there seldom is much left for those who did not watch their collections.

SPENDING GOOD MONEY.

Not every florist has yet got to the point where he applies the same rules to buying advertising that he applies to buying other things necessary to the business—a good many still buy because the solicitor is a mighty nice fellow (he has to be to get away with some of the propositions he puts up), but an increasing number of advertisers are asking for exact information about circulation and are examining the methods by which subscribers and advertisements are obtained; they are learning that circulation counts, and that to the advertiser circulation obtained by mail on the merit of the publication is vastly more valuable than circulation obtained by canvassers or by the offer of gifts:

We would not be without The Review for several times its cost, and enclose our renewal.—Williams Bros., Lorain, O., April 10, 1913.

Enclosed find check for another year's subscription to the florists' best trade paper.—William H. Catanese, Norristown, Pa., April 10, 1913.

The one insertion sold all our stock, but will have more to offer soon and will advertise again.—John Assa, Chicago, Ill., April 15, 1913.

Our Classified Ads in The Review are pulling like one of Ringling's ten-horse teams.—W. A. Toole, Baraboo, Wis., April 12, 1913.

Sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our ad in The Review.—Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., Spokane, Wash., April 10, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A tendency to shorten up is apparent in the market and for the last week there has been, in most lines, only enough stock to go around without causing the wholesalers any great amount of trouble in filling orders. The last two weeks have been ideal for the growers, for the weather has been bright and cool and the usual spring glut that comes on the market at about this time every year is not in evidence, greatly to the gratification of both grower and wholesaler. Generally speaking, the market for the last two weeks of April was about as firm as it could be expected to be at this season of the year and it aided materially in bringing the month to a close with about the usual run of business even though the floods retarded business at the start.

Carnations have become excellent property. The reports show that the crops are hardly expected to last until after Mothers' day and there is some speculation as to the available supply. Present indications are that there should be a lively market on white, for the growers do not hold out any encouragement of any great supply. Of the colored stock there is not expected to be any shortage, for the demand on these is not so brisk. At present there are enough to go around and yet good prices are being obtained for the really select stock, white or colored. Roses are in better supply than carnations, with the exception of American Beauties, the greater part of these having been cut. Long-stemmed Beauties are short of the demand and shippers are not able to execute all the orders. Killarneys, Richmond and Maryland have been cut in just about large enough numbers to maintain a fair price and there is little in the way of a surplus at this writing. Mrs. Aaron Ward is in spe-

CARNATIONS FOR MOTHERS' DAY

WE CAN supply the goods. Why not send your order to us today and go ahead with your plans for selling? Mothers' Day was a big day last year (some day it will be one of our busiest flower days), but there are two things to attend to: you must insure your supply, and you must advertise—Mothers' Day is too new a flower day to have the trade come to you without your advertising for it. To get the stock is easy—all you have to do is to order of us. We have a big supply of fancy Carnations and for advance orders we offer

SELECT WHITE . . . $40.00 per 1000
SELECT COLORED . . . 30.00 per 1000

SNAPDRAGON

Something Your Trade Will Like

Any retailer who has a call for out-of-the-ordinary work should use our Snapdragon. When this stock is used by a man who knows how, it never fails to make a hit. Long stems, beautifully flowered. Can supply other colors, but are especially strong on pink, the true Killarney shade. It works up splendidly. Put a vase of it in your show window and listen to the comments. It will sell.

FANCY ROSES

Our Stock Has a National Reputation

To be known as handling Amling's Roses means that your store has the reputation of handling the best quality stock. You will find also that our Roses carry larger and finer heads, length for length of stem, than any you have had from other sources. We have a full line. Special attention should be called to our Mrs. Ward. There is no other Rose in such strong demand. We have the largest supply to be found anywhere in America.

SWEET PEAS

You Need Them for Corsage Work

This is the time of year when you can do a fine corsage business with our fancy, long-stemmed sweet peas. We have long-stemmed sweet peas in very large quantity—can fill orders for thousands. The longest stemmed, brightest colored, special fancy Blanche Ferry and the popular Butterfly (Spencer) peas in all colors.

EASTER LILIES

You Always Can Get Them Here

You can get here all the Lilies you need, for work and for decorations. We have arranged for a large crop, the first of which is just coming in. A steady supply.

cial demand and the supply is not over-abundant. The same is true of all the yellow roses, as well as Mrs. Taft. Snapdragon is much in evidence and some excellent stock is being moved off without much trouble. Sweet peas have been the greatest problem. Early last week there was a serious oversupply, but the market improved with some reduction of receipts at the close of the week. At the opening of the present week, however, warm, bright weather again increased supply and lowered prices. Valley is still finding the usual spring demand. Violets are at last done for this season, although a few were seen as late as April 26. Smilax is scarce. Ferns are stiffening a little in price.

Various Notes.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., says that the addition to the floor space made this week by taking the basement is 8,000 square feet. Four floors and the basement now are occupied. Frank Pasternick joined the sales force of the Randall establishment April 22.

Frank Oechslein is in New York, visiting relatives and noting what is new among the plantmen.

Peter Reinberg began planting carnations in the field April 24, rather earlier than most of the growers thought it safe to begin.

Two meetings of the creditors of Canger & Bergman have been held in the last few days. At the last one it was stated that enough cash already had been realized from the book accounts so that a payment can be made to the creditors without delay.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., which held a lease on the old store formerly occupied at 30 East Randolph street, moved the big ice-boxes and fixtures to Morton Grove this week, the lease expiring May 1.

Lubliner & Trinz now are in temporary quarters at 29 West Washington street. They held out on Randolph street till the last day of their lease.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., is keeping bachelor's hall, Mrs. Pieser having gone to Philadelphia to try a new sanitarium.

At Winterson's Seed Store retail seed and plant trade is breaking all records this week.

A. T. Pyfer says he expects to see Mothers' day show another big increase this year.

A dinner was held April 24, at the Union, to which all the chairmen of S. A. F. convention committees were invited and at which all the details were cleaned up and a final dividend ordered paid to those who had contributed to the fund for the entertainment of the convention last August. Treasurer N. J. Wieter is this week sending the contributors checks for forty per cent of the sum paid in. After this is done there will be a balance of a few dollars that was ordered turned over to the Chicago Florists' Club.

Adam Zender was at Milwaukee April 25 to attend a directors' meeting of the Holton & Hunkel Co., which is building again this year.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., spent a day at Crown Point, Ind., last week, the guest of Alois Frey, antirrhinum specialist. Mr. Michelsen says Mr. Frey has a number of good seedlings, but that two are so exceptionally fine that he looks to see them make a big hit. One is about the color of Bulgarie rose, the other about like a well colored Killarney Queen, and they each produce spikes of bloom a foot and a half long on stems as thick as one's finger.

The E. Wienhoeber Co. has made a rather large advertising contract with the Tribune. The first advertisement appeared April 26. Quality will be featured, not price.

Co., was at Milwaukee last week on business connected with the new range of the Holton & Hunkel Co.

George Wienhoeber says that on the day of the advertised special Beauty sale, April 24, the Fleischman Floral Co. sold 1,300 long Beauties. It is understood the stock was picked up in four wholesale houses.

Wietor Bros., who never let their sheds stand empty, last week made a contract for 6,000 tons of Pocahontas coal, as much as possible of which is to be put in at once.

Bert R. Lucas, who has charge of the Eldredge greenhouses at Belvidere, last week sent C. W. McKellar three of the strangest carnation blooms one is likely to meet. They were of enormous size and looked more like peonies than carnations. In the center of each flower another perfect flower was superimposed, set so far down as to give no hint of the malformation. Mr. McKellar kept the blooms for several days and few of those who examined them would believe that it was the work of nature and not of a skillful man.

Last week Peter Reinberg placed a contract for 8,000 tons of Pocahontas as a part of next season's coal supply.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., reached home April 27, from his trip to New York, which originally was to the National Flower Show. He says that he has sold boilers for 199,600 square feet of glass on this expedition.

Mrs. Ida Gelderman, mother of F. H. Gelderman, of L. Baumann & Co., left for Altadena, Cal., April 24, to visit the family of L. Baumann. L. Baumann and family have been on the Pacific coast all winter and there is no indication, at this time, that an early return will be made.

The Raedlein Basket Co. recently has received some large shipments of baskets from the factories in Germany, intended for the fall trade.

Sam Pearce states that he has not yet closed any arrangement for a new business location and that in any event he will be at the old stand till October 1.

Oscar Leistner reports a heavy demand for natural prepared oak wreaths for the Decoration day trade. "Our sales have shown a large increase over last year," he says.

The death of Mrs. Dresel, widow of the late August Dresel, pioneer in the trade and the mother of florists, is reported in this week's obituary column.

Phil Schupp, of J. A. Budlong's, says the demand for valley has seldom been so brisk as this year. The Budlong firm now has the entire floor at 82 to 86 East Randolph street. Sinner Bros., M. C. Gunterberg, Frank Beu, H. C. Blewitt and A. E. Hunt & Co. have taken quarters at 56 East Randolph street, on the floor with H. Wittbold and P. Jones.

John Zech is of the opinion that April would have been a record month this year if the floods had not disturbed business at the opening of the month.

Guy Reburn, of A. Henderson & Co., is back from an extended western trip.

H. A. Born, Inc., is moving this week to a new plant at 3201 Shields avenue.

Out-of-town orders have been heavy for the last ten days with Erne & Klingel, according to Charles Erne.

Jack Hanisch, who formerly was with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is now a member of the city store staff of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., succeeding Robert Roberts.

Master Lawrence Story Washburn, the grandson of C. L. Washburn and the youngest member of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, celebrated his second birthday April 27, at Pasadena, Cal., where his parents, Edgar B. and Mrs. Washburn, are sojourning. The proud grandfather was passing out the clear Havanas in honor of the occasion.

A. L. Vaughan, who has been troubled with rheumatism for the last few weeks, writes from the Sacred Heart sanitarium, Milwaukee, that the treatments he has been taking there have benefited him to such an extent that he hopes to be back at his desk next week.

John F. Kidwell, president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says April business was ahead of a year ago in spite of the shipping difficulties at the start of the month. The last two weeks were especially good.

Fred J. Dittberner, former manager for Koropp, Inc., has opened a store of his own and is known as the Gross Park Florist, at 2016 Roscoe boulevard.

Steve Minon has moved to a new store at 2065 Milwaukee avenue.

J. W. Breakey has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Benton Harbor, Mich. Now it is Mrs. Breakey's

The Southwestern Market.

The market was rather dull as far as business was concerned last week. The weather was fine and stock of all kinds was abundant. Prices fell lower than ever for this year. The retailers surely had no complaint to make in regard to the supply and prices, especially those who bought in big lots.

Roses were received in large consignments at all of the wholesale houses, and in all varieties. Long Beauties were quite plentiful, with the price at $4 per dozen for the best. Other roses sold well, but the demand was not enough to consume the supply. All the standard varieties, such as Richmond, the Killarneys, Bride and Maid, are of extra good quality. Carnations are in great supply, with the price at $10 in thousand lots. The quality is extra fine. Sweet peas, too, were too many for the wholesalers to dispose of at anything like a fair price. The extra fancy held their own, but the shorts sold as low as $1.50 per thousand. A quantity of fine single and double lilacs were disposed of during the week. Violets are over for this season. Lilies and callas are more than the demand calls for. Valley was in quite heavy demand all through the week. Other bulbous stock is over for the season. Some fine yellow daisies are coming in and sell well at $2 per hundred for the fancy.

In greens, the market had a busy week, as the demand was large.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

There have been a great many weddings and some of those sadder affairs that bring regret to nearly all except the profession; and then there have been social affairs where the "turkey trot," the "tango," the "crab crawl," the "grizzly bear" and the "grape vine twist," gather the gay dancers. Altogether these events have made much to do in the floral world, not so much, perhaps, as the week before, but quite enough to make the wise ones nod their heads and say it has been a good week. Outdoor lilac has come, and with it only a few of the other outdoor flowers, besides the poet's narcissus. The extraordinarily heavy rains and the cool weather account for the absence of the usual outdoor blooms. The variety has been increased by the arrival of iris—from the south, I think—and by greenhouse-grown fancy gladioli, baby gladioli, German ten weeks' stocks and gillies, both single and double, some of them remarkably fine. Sweet peas are a big factor, the spring crops of some of the growers being at their best. The price is receding a little under the influence of heavy receipts. Valley has been in lively request. There are more carnations and roses than a week ago, and nearly all of them have brought fair prices. Easter lilies are quite scarce and callas are waning. Violets are about over. It has taken time to completely finish them. Indoor-grown white lilac is still an important flower. The demand from out of town has been the strength of the market.

Various Notes.

Martin Dudley Mathews and Miss Mae Muller, of Wakefield, N. Y., were married in the little chapel on Thirteenth street, near Race street, in this city, April 16. Paul R. Klingsporn was best man. Mr. Mathews is well known as died April 26. The funeral took place April 29. Mr. Bauer, though deeply interested in the welfare of his florist's business, was not actively engaged in it, the greenhouses being in charge of his son, while he was occupied by another calling in this city. While there has been no unnatural rise in quotations, the level of values for some weeks has been encouragingly maintained. Up to the present date there has been no special increase in shipments, but the flood is anticipated in May, especially of roses. Already the supply of Maryland is immense, and of Killarney "there is no end." There has been an abundance lately of wedding and dinner decorations, which have kept the majority of retail florists exceedingly busy and have left no surplus of the selected stock at any time. The bargain hunters have been obliged to fall back on the lower grades, and less slashing of values is in evidence in the big advertisements of the department stores.

American Beauties, when perfect, sold steadily last week at $30 per hundred. One lot of 400 brought that figure. The demand for the best Beauty stock continues wide and steady every day. Brides, Maids and Marylands are abundant, and prices are gradually lessening. Killarney holds more steadily, especially in its popular double varieties. Sunburst, Ward, Chatenay, Hillingdon and Richmond lose none of their charm, and all the new kinds, including Milady, Russell and Shawyer, are much in demand by the "400" since the National Flower Show. Carnations are increasing in volume, and the quality is generally superb. The novelties are many and in constant demand at $4 per hundred. The older varieties go at from $1 to $3. The purchases for Mothers' day, Sunday, May 11, will hold prices firm until after that celebration. The publicity given the day by The Review has occasioned much favorable comment; judicious advertising in the daily press by the enterprising retailers should do the rest.

The best valley still is held at 4 cents, and the demand for society events maintains this level for the selected. It must be perfect to command this price. Most of the supply sells from 3 cents down. There is no shortage in the general supply. Longiflorum lilies on Saturday, and in fact most of the week, brought Easter prices for the highest grade. There seems to be an abundant supply, and the short-stemmed stock sells slowly. Callas seldom go above 75 cents to $1 per dozen. The requiem has been sung, apparently, over the violet industry for this season. A few single ones still are seen. The record of the year has not been a brilliant one. The best cattleyas are selling now at 60 cents. There are plenty of them and evidently many sources of supply, as most of the wholesale houses now handle them. Gigas, Mossiae and Schrøderae are the varieties arriving, the last being nearly at an end for this season. Some fine double daffodils have sold as well as three bunches for $1. These, however, are the exception and not the rule; $1 for five is the prevailing quotation. Only the Darwin varieties of tulips are in demand. Much of the other stock is practically unsalable. The supply of sweet peas is heavy and only the long-stemmed stock brings profitable returns. There is an abundance of spring flowers of all kinds in the market, especially of lilac, now ar-

Mothers' day promises to be more widely observed in New York this year than ever before. The publicity committee has a fine opportunity this week to demonstrate its efficiency.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., left April 26 for a week's stay at Minneapolis, to perfect arrangements with the local board for the August convention.

Max Schling, of 22 West Fifty-ninth street, reports good business, contracting for more centerpieces than he has ever done in one week. He had one dinner at the new Woolworth building for 900 covers, for which he alone made 102 centerpieces, the smallest consisting of 150 roses. He furnished ten other elaborate dinners. The combined lot represented 1,192 covers. He used, besides numerous other varieties, 1,100 Richmonds, grading from No. 1 to specials.

The store of John S. Nicholas, in the Grand Central Terminal, opened April 23, and its attractive windows and fine decorations interest continuous crowds. The enterprise is a success from the beginning. Only the highest grades of flowers and fruit are handled. A large force is employed.

Spring is much in evidence. Arbutus is in the market and abundant. The trees are in full leaf and magnolias, forsythias and all the early-blooming fruit trees are everywhere in flower.

The seedsmen are still working day and night; not a few, but every one of them. No season has ever compared with this one in general prosperity in this branch of the business.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has had an unusually warm week and everything outdoors seems to be getting rather dry. This appears to keep vegetation back somewhat, though there is some lilac in bloom and tulip beds are really looking fine. The wholesale cut flower houses have had a good week. Quantities of good stock have been coming in and all of it seems to move out quickly at fair prices. There has really not been a great glut of anything so far, which is quite surprising at this season of the year. The stock offered comprises almost anything you can think of in the line of cut flowers, including some violets, which are not particularly attractive or much wanted.

The retail people seem to be quite busy. Though much of the business is what might be called small trade, the total amount of it is quite satisfactory. With the present great variety of flowers, the stores look more attractive than usual. There were some good funeral orders early in the week. The retailers seem to have gotten out of the way of selling Beauties or they can make more money selling other flowers, for they do not seem to push Beauties as in former years. The mixed center-pieces of flowers, such as yellow daisies, Ward roses, small Richmonds and other small flowers, make an unusual demand for that kind of stock. Good lilies also move nicely; so do snapdragons and iris.

The growers are busy getting carnations out in the field. In this they are later than usual, being delayed in get-

Mothers' Day is a day set aside by the whole of North America to honor universal motherhood.

ON MAY 11th

EVERYONE SENDS FLOWERS TO MOTHER
EVERYONE WEARS A WHITE FLOWER IN HONOR OF MOTHER
EVERYONE GIVES A WHITE FLOWER TO SOMEONE ELSE TO WEAR

In memory of the loving mothers who have passed away, flowers are sent to every sick room, sanitarium, hospital, almshouse, prison and orphanage.

Any white flower typifies Mothers' Day, although many prefer the white carnation for "Mothers' Day Flower." Its virtues are similar to those of the Mother. Its whiteness stands for purity; its form, beauty; its fragrance, love; its wide field of growth, charity; its lasting qualities, faithfulness.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is cutting some fine cattleyas and yellow daisies, which find ready sale.

The McCallum Co. is receiving excellent sweet peas and gardenias. Ed. McCallum is moving his home from Sheridan to the east end district.

Randolph & McClements are exceedingly busy in every department. Their counter trade has increased wonderfully since they moved into their new store and they have had a number of small social affairs every day, which have kept the store people on the jump. They also do a planting business, which was unusually good this spring in the line of trees and shrubbery. At the greenhouses they are busy filling miles of window and porch boxes, and they are fortunate in having room to handle them. The orders for general planting indicate an exceptionally good season.

Mrs. E. A. Williams long since gave up the planting end of the business and has all she wants to do in looking after a select class of business which demands personal attention. Last week a large window of adiantum, with fine specimen rhododendrons, was especially attractive and beautiful. Her window displays are always artistic.

The A. W. Smith Co. also does a general business, and as landscape work is a special feature, with the operations in this department extending over a radius of 100 miles, it is needless to say that the firm is at its wits' end at times to get capable men to carry out the work. The company is doing an extensive retail seed business, which is exceedingly active just at present. The cut flower department is always busy, as the firm is among the most extensive advertisers in this city.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., of the north side, has had an unusually busy week in funeral work. This firm caters to the out-of-town undertakers, and an order sent in at any hour of the day or night receives immediate attention and goes out on the first train. Ernest is in the sleepless and restless class.

Ben Elliott, of the John Bader Co., has been extremely busy getting his stock into shape for Decoration day and he says, "Now let 'em come on," as he is ready with the largest and best stock he ever had. Mrs. Elliott, who has been at Portland, Ore., visiting her father, John Bader, has returned and reports that her father is well and happy in his new home. Clarke.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Minnesota Florists' Association gave its annual dance April 17 at Junior Pioneer hall, with an attendance of 300. It is customary for the association to alternate its annual dances between Minneapolis and St. Paul, but this year there have been balls in both cities.

Omaha, Neb.—The city council is in a quandary to determine the proper sources of the money necessary to accept the gift of the Joslyn greenhouse and collection of tropical plants, and to transfer them to the city park. About $5,000 will be required. It is proposed to reconstruct the greenhouse as it is now and to reproduce the dark rooms and damp cellars necessary for the tropical growth.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 30%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 30% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Market.

Business has been quite good of late, in spite of the fact that temperatures of 80 degrees or over in the shade were recorded on several days last week. Roses, which had been in the dumps, lifted up their heads a little and moved better, and though the output of these is now heavy, fairly good clearances have been effected. As usual, Taft, Russell, Beauty and the yellow varieties have been the favorites. Carnations continue of good quality, and while prices have dropped somewhat, they are still quite good for the season. Gloriosa, Benora, Pocahontas and Pink Delight, in the case of fancy flowers, bring as high as $4 per hundred, but the average price is half these figures.

Sweet peas are selling extra well. Flowers of finer quality were never offered in Boston. Valley is in excellent demand and is not overplentiful. Lilies and callas are inclined to be druggy. Yellow marguerites sell well. Some fine Mrs. Sander also sells readily. Blue cornflowers are popular and some remarkably fine ones are coming in. Dutch bulbous flowers from indoors are practically over, and plenty of outdoor narcissi are now available. Spanish iris sells well; so also do gladioli, which are as yet rather limited in numbers. The cattleya trade is paying well, better than that for gardenias. A good call exists for asparagus, especially Sprengeri.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been quite heavy, with stock about equal to the demand in most cases. Funeral work has been the bulk of the business, except on a few warm days, when people thought spring was here. Then they even wanted to plant coleus, but at the present writing nearly everyone has winter wraps out again. The change in the weather has curtailed the cuts quite a little. Roses have been in fair supply, but at times there were hardly enough to go the rounds. Beauties have been scarce. Carnations are coming in quite heavily and are about cleaned up daily. Sweet peas are in great demand and are more abundant than they were a week or so ago, as it seems everyone had the same trouble, the buds not opening. Some fine snapdragons are in the market and find quite a ready sale. Valley has been scarce, with the demand quite heavy at times.

Potted geraniums were good sellers for the few warm days we had. Quite a number of potted roses are disposed of, in Baby Ramblers, La France, Beauties, Hermosa, Richmond, etc. Quite a few lilies are still to be had and are generally used up. There has been quite a demand for pansy plants.

Various Notes.

Sherman Stephens is getting back in shape again and he saved a good part of his geranium stock that was under water. He has only been in touch with the city for a few days, as street cars and telephones have been out of commission and it has made it bad for him, as he does quite a business in the city, as well as at Greenlawn.

John Brust is getting things back in form, but his stock is in bad shape and he will have to depend on getting most of his supply from other sources.

G. H. Woodrow is able to walk around. He got over to the green-

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business has been dull in all quarters during the last week. The wholesalers report that there is plenty of good stock, but the demand has not been heavy. Sweet peas and Cecile Brunner roses are now arriving in large quantities and are welcomed by the retailers. The few orchids and valley that are coming in are being used to good advantage. Lilac is popular for decorating and cut flower purposes, and a few Easter lilies are still to be seen in some of the stores. Daffodils have almost entirely disappeared from the market, but a fine array of excellent tulips has taken their place.

Various Notes.

Business has been keeping up fairly well at J. W. Wolters' store. A fine casket cover, of Cecile Brunner roses and pink sweet peas, and many table decorations help to keep the force busy. A splendid dendrobium, which was displayed in the store, attracted much attention. This specimen was grown by William Hertrich.

A new arrival in the trade is Davidson's Flower Shop, at 2428 South Hoover street. From the progress already made by this store, it promises to be a success.

The name of the Hayward Floral Co. has been changed to Darling's Shop. H. Reeve Darling says business is well up to the average.

Bert Harris and his motorcycle were in a smash-up last week, but he was not seriously injured.

Freeman-Lewis Co. had two good table decorations, but aside from these business was rather dull.

Polder & Groen are bringing in some of the first sweet peas of the season from their Montebello ranch. These are of good quality.

Ye Abbey Flower Shop reports that business is as good as could be expected for a start.

The El Reah Nursery is sending in some fine Radiance, Richmond and White Killarney roses.

Mrs. Wollenberg must be given credit for the fine quality of Cecile Brunners she is sending to a few of the stores.

H. R. Richards has been traveling through the northern part of the state on business for the Germain Seed & Plant Co. This firm's stock at 326 South Main street was partly ruined April 23 by fire and water, following a blaze which is said to have originated in the heating plant of the Belmont hotel, adjoining. The cellar of the feed store was flooded. Damage to the building was estimated at $300, fully covered by insurance, but the damage to stock has not been fixed yet.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather has turned quite warm and flowers of all kinds are being brought into town in large quantities.

With a week of hot days, everything is coming on with a rush. However, the heat is beginning to tell on the stock, and if it continues much longer the quality of inside flowers will deteriorate somewhat. Violets are over for the season, as are also narcissi and daffodils, while the late tulips are about at their close. Lilac is beginning to show the results of the hot weather and the best of it has been gathered. Lilium longiflorum is rather plentiful and moves well. The same can be said of valley. Freesias are gone for the year. Spanish iris is still in fair supply, but will be over in a couple of weeks. Other stock remains as usual. There is little doing in the line of business at present, and if it were not for the funeral trade most of the retailers could take a vacation.

Various Notes.

J. P. Reddy is no longer with Emil Serveau, in the Fillmore street store. He is taking a much needed vacation.

C. Kooyman, of Hogan, Kooyman & Co., Oakland, is on a two weeks' visit to Los Angeles.

Charles Navlet, the well known San Jose retailer, was in town last week.

JOTTINGS FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

The seventh anniversary of the calamitous earthquake and fire finds the Bay City practically all rebuilt, and a remarkably improved city at that. The florists have advanced with the rest of the business world and a more hustling or active crowd would be difficult to find. The retail stores are good and are well distributed—too well distributed for a man with little time to visit them all. Wholesale facilities seem all that could be desired and there is a general feeling of bon camaraderie that is most pleasing. During a short visit I saw one or two things that seemed worthy of brief notice; hence these jottings.

H. Plath, out at The Ferneries, on the south side of the city, has the finest lot of Asplenium Nidus-Avis, or bird's nest fern, I have ever seen. They are there in immense numbers, but it is the quality rather than the quantity that is of interest. From the smallest sporeling up through pricked out flats and small pots to the largest sizes, every plant is perfect. "First-rate" is the only word for them. Other good things are: Adiantum cuneatum; Matador, a tall grower with fine fronds, a sure winner; the new Glory of Mordrecht, and a fine lot of Cibotium Schiedeii, big, spreading stock, in fine order. There are other things of interest, including a big stock of clean, business-looking kentias, but Mr. Plath's stock is too well known to need much eulogium from me. A large new house for ferns is going up.

Schwerin Bros. are tearing down a number of their older houses and replacing them with new ones. The valley here is particularly fine and is grown in large quantities.

I ran across an old friend in William Arnold, formerly foreman at the George Reinberg plant, at Chicago. He is now with Domoto Bros., at Elmhurst, and the results of his good work can already be seen. This is a large range of glass and there is also an immense lath house, where an interesting stock of Holland and Japanese plants is displayed.

H. Hayashi & Co., Elmhurst, have good stocks of pelargoniums, cyclamens, Primula obconica and other crops. An interesting item here was a line of Garland gutter put up nineteen years ago, which had been shipped around the Horn at that time and is still in fine condition.

J. B. Boland is a busy man and his store looks like it. It is only the florist who has nothing to do who can afford to neglect his store.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have surely a magnificent store. The open center, with plants and flowers on each side leading first to the office and then to the workroom behind, is a fine idea. The old Bride and Bridesmaid roses were well shown here, and they are so seldom seen in this vicinity now that I had to take a second look to see what they were.

E. W. McLellan Co., Inc., is located on Lick place, and on the morning of my visit large quantities of fine stock from the Burlingame nurseries were being handled. The Beauties were fine. The wild dog's-tooth violets and a tall growing convallaria, or wild lily of the valley, make good subjects for a cheap but telling display and are largely handled here.

"We depend on the quality of our stock to bring customers," said Mr. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, and it looks that way. Some superb rhododendrons and rambler roses in pots were among the salient points shown; also an immense number of fine cattleyas.

fornia flowers are shown and the work turned out here is of a high order.

George Bros., out at Elmhurst, have a novel way of keeping their daffodil bulbs from ripening off too quickly. They allow volunteer barley and oats to come up between the rows and "grow together till harvest," when the whole thing is cut for hay. The brothers George are natives of the flowery Isles of Scilly, off the Land's End, in England, where daffodils are grown by the trainload.

As a "stranger within the gates," I have to thank all the San Francisco boys for the glad hand and a most pleasant time, only regretting it was all too short.

H. R. Richards.

SAN JOSE, CAL.

The Market.

Lack of rain has held business back in the seed and small plant trade here, but the florists are keeping their end up well, having plenty of funeral work and a good transient business. The supply of flowers is good in all lines, making it possible to turn the work out at a profit, and some excellent designs are sent out. Bulbous stock is fine, but there seems to be a scarcity of really good roses. Carnations are good.

Various Notes.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co., the pioneer flower firm of the town, reports business fine in all lines. J. Mieuli, manager of the flower store, returned from his honeymoon trip April 21 and settled down to work, looking fine. At the nursery large numbers of all kinds of plants are grown for the city and mail order trade. The propagating houses are also full of fine stock. I had a most delightful ride through the cherry orchards here with A. E. Buhot, who manages the nursery and mail order house. Even in this dry season the country is beautiful, and the miles of fruit orchards of all kinds, and the good, hard roads, make automobiling one of the joys of life.

I found Arthur Cann up to his eyes in business, funeral work keeping him and his force strictly on the jump.

The Garden City Bulb Co. is a thriving young concern, run by L. E. Doolittle. At the time of my call his tulips were in fine condition.

San Jose is surely a paradise for the outdoor rose grower. Though well used to California roses, I never before saw such magnificent masses of Gold of Ophir, Beauty of Glazenwood, Cherokee and such types as are here to be seen scrambling all over large old trees and houses, and simply one mass of flowers. A Chinese wistaria, too, covering entirely an old Monterey cypress thirty-five or forty feet high, and every inch covered with the beautiful racemes, was a sight long to be remembered.

H. R. Richards.

built immediately, to take care of the increasing demand.

Owing to a big rush of funeral work, I had little chance of seeing much of George Otto, but he certainly does a thriving business at 1250 Fourth street.

A Cactus Farm.

A 12-acre farm, all planted to spineless cactus, is an unusual sight and worth the journey out on the primitive railway that winds through the lovely El Cajon valley, east of the city. This is the property of Hugo Thum. There are about 60,000 plants, some young "slabs" just rooting, others large specimens eight feet high. Just now the crop is being taken, Mexican laborers cutting the plants off to about ten leaves. It is probably difficult for eastern people to appreciate the value of a cactus crop, but in the desert section, where feed of all kinds is scarce and high and the growth of beets and other roots out of the question, a plant that produces hundreds of tons of succulent stock food is a godsend. The leaves are laid out to dry a little and then planted about six feet apart each way, the first year's crop more than paying all expenses of planting.

proportion. While the continued spring weather is bringing in the stock in abundance, there seems to be an outlet whereby little stock is lost. Roses are at their heaviest, and their quality and colors would be hard to beat, especially the Maids. Kaiserins and Carnots are coming in, but it will be several weeks before they will be in heavy cut. Carnations have an increased cut, almost to a glut, yet the prices have held up remarkably at the first-class stores. Only the smaller fellows are cutting the prices as a special inducement. All classes of spring flowers are gradually passing off the market. There is a scarcity of blooming plants. Snapdragons, iris and dioncums are coming in. E. R. C.

AN inspection of the seed crops in the San Juan and Hollister districts of California, April 19, showed them to be about a month late. The sweet pea vines were from five to eight inches long, whereas they should nearly cover the ground at that date. There has not only been a serious shortage in the rainfall, but the weather has been cool and conditions generally unfavorable to growth.

P. L. A. "We are going strong on all lines of seeds, but we can hardly keep pace with our orders for grass seed. Only this morning we received an order for four tons of grass seed for two country clubs, and four tons, not four bags, is quite a lot of grass seed."

OUR canner friends are always complaining. Now it is that with peas "in the south serious damage has been done to the growing crop by high winds, rains and cold weather. In some sections this damage is said to have amounted to fifty to seventy-five per cent of acreage on which the vines were above ground. In the middle west the floods prevented the delivery of seed to the farmers, and the fields are still so thoroughly saturated

LEGAL WEIGHTS IN IOWA.

An act of the General Assembly of Iowa, going into effect at once, establishes legal weights and measures, provides for inspection and fixes punishment for keeping or using false or incorrect weights and measures. Among the items sold by the bushel or fractional part thereof, are the following of interest to the seed trade, with the avoirdupois weights that will be used to determine the bushel: Alfalfa seed,

SEED TESTING IN ZURICH.

The Swiss Government Station.

Probably there is not a seedsman worthy of the name anywhere in the world who does not know of the seed testing station of the Swiss government, at Zurich. But just what is done there is not so well known. The following extracts from an article, by James Long, which has been going the rounds of the European press, tell the story in part:

The results of the tests of many thousands of samples annually over a period of thirty-six years, as now tabulated, have given a value to the standard of purity and germination which does not exist elsewhere. During this long period seeds of 150 varieties of plants have been examined, and it is, ing seeds a sample should contain. Thus, to take one instance, the number of samples of red clover seeds which have been examined is 22,691; their purity averages ninety-six per cent, while the germination reaches ninety per cent.

A Standard of Quality.

The object of a seed control station is the protection of the buyer, whether he be agriculturist or horticulturist. As I shall show, there are seeds in the market which are absolutely worthless, which are not only impure in the extreme, but which, so far as the pure seeds are concerned, fail to germinate; and it is largely owing to the control which is afforded by the Swiss station that seedsmen are enabled to maintain an approximate standard. In the past year 171 seedsmen sent samples to the number of 11,000 to the Zurich station; they were not only sent from all parts of the United Kingdom, from Italy, France, Germany, Austria, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Hungary and Finland, but from the United States. It can scarcely be regarded as a satisfactory condition of affairs that an agricultural country like our own should be compelled to look to a scientific institution in one of the smallest countries in the world for a solution of its troubles in relation to seed, but such is the case. Of the firms sending seed to Zurich for examination, between twenty and thirty were British.

Training for the Work.

The examination of seed demands long and wide experience, and it is for this reason that something should be done, in however small a way, at the earliest possible moment. Given a grant from the Development Fund for the establishment of a British station, it is difficult to understand how the station could be staffed, for it is scarcely probable that there is anyone in Great Britain whose training can compare with that of the assistants employed at Zurich, however carefully students may have studied the subject. During a visit which I paid to the Swiss station Dr. Stebler—who is still the director, and author of a classic work upon grasses and forage crops—in answer to a question which I put to him as to the extent of the experience required before his assistants were competent, mentioned twenty years. "Which means," I rejoined, "that it practically takes a lifetime?" to which he agreed. While watching a lady assistant examining a sample, seed by seed, I was amazed to notice how easily she separated the impure from the pure seeds. This lady has been ten years at the work and had still much to learn—a fact which can be realized after the examination of the hundreds of samples of cultivated and weed seeds which are shown in Dr. Stebler's collection, large numbers of the one being practically identical with those of the other to the non-observant and unskilled eye.

Diseased Plants Also Examined.

Since my last visit to Dr. Stebler, some ten years ago, he has added to his program the examination of diseased plants. A special assistant—whom I was able to see at his work—is employed for the purpose. I am aware that a great deal of assistance is afforded to farmers by the officials of our agricultural colleges, but with all respect to the capacity of men who are required to know something of many subjects, it is impossible to expect those who are engaged in general agricultural instruction to be specialists either in seed examination or in the physiology of plants and their diseases. Seed examination not only demands scientific knowledge, but long experience in the differentiation of varieties and, to a smaller extent, in the methods of germination.

As a rule the seeds tested for germination are placed in white saucers made of China clay, and covered with glass disks. Each sample is tested in duplicate, 200 seeds in each case, and placed in a special germinating cupboard, the temperature of which is controlled. Thus, in one of these receptacles was a large number of saucers in which the seeds were growing, the temperature varying in June from 68 to 83 degrees between night and morning.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

GEO. J. FOSTER has sold his nursery business at Normal, Ill.

W. G. SCHUCHT, of Chilton, Wis., contemplates embarking in the nursery business.

THE death of H. W. Blowers, of Westfield, N. Y., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

SIXTY men are now employed in the packing sheds of the nurseries of L. L. May & Co., near Lakeland, Minn.

ALABAMA nurserymen are planning to hold a horticultural exhibition. L. H. Read, of Deer Park, manager of the Dixie Coöperative Nurseries, is interested in furthering the undertaking.

THE nursery trade has a representative in Congress in the person of C. A. Kennedy, of Iowa, who is a member of the firm of Kennedy Bros., operating the Eagle Nurseries, at Montrose, Ia.

ONE of the principal Holland nurseries ventures the opinion that two-thirds and possibly three-fourths of the nursery stock exported from Boskoop, and practically all grown there is exported, finds its way to America.

THIS has been another spring season to teach the expediency of pushing the sales for fall delivery. Planting can better be done in autumn than in such springs as this has been in large sections of the United States.

A EUROPEAN nurseryman, now in this country, is telling his customers that the quarantine regulations will not prove so burdensome as they appear at first reading. They entail some little extra work, but he believes the clean bill of health the law gives the nurseries is well worth the extra effort.

KENTUCKY will have a state nursery adjoining the fair grounds at Louisville. The fair association has set apart twenty-five acres for the purpose, and the forestry board of the state has appropriated $1,500 with which to make a start. It is proposed to supply citizens of the state with trees at actual cost.

THE Los Angeles Investment Co., which is developing the Hill tract of land at Los Angeles, Cal., will establish a nursery of its own to provide trees, shrubs and plants. Twenty-five acres have been set aside for the purpose and $10,000 has been made available at once. Louis Horner, who laid out and superintended the grounds of the McCormick estate at Santa Barbara, Cal., will have charge of the new nursery.

GEO. W. JOHNSON, proprietor of the Highland Nursery, at Palouse, Wash., has been appointed superintendent and horticulturist in charge of the Riviera fruit lands, near Riparia, owned by President E. A. Bryan, of the Washington State College, and others. The Highland Nursery will be managed by C. C. Johnson. A large part of the growing stock has been sold to the Riviera company for delivery next fall. Three hundred acres additional will be set to fruit in the fall.

THE Altaloma Citrus Nurseries Co., of Cucamonga, Cal., has been organized. The authorized capital is $25,000 and $9,000 has been subscribed. The directors are: A. J. Worthington, H. G. Klusman, C. T. Brown, W. A. Lucas and H. O. Ward.

THE planting season for the nurserymen in the middle west is holding out better than had been expected. It was late in starting, which many thought would mean an early finish, but spring has been intermittent this year and work has not yet been interrupted by the arrival of summer. In the east, too, it has turned out an unusually long season. They had an early start there and still are at work.

O. K. WHITE, field agent of the Michigan Horticultural College, will give a series of free orchard demonstrations in the vicinity of Kalamazoo, Mich., during the spring and summer, on pruning, spraying, thinning the fruit, grading and packing. Mr. White will give a talk on pruning May 3 before the Oakland County Horticultural Society, which will hold its next meeting then at the fruit farm of E. J. VerDuyn, near Novi, Mich.

THE condition of S. H. MacKeen's citrus stock at Terra Bella, Cal., furnishes an illustration of the fact that water will work wonders in freezing-cold weather. He will not lose a single tree as a result of the heavy and disastrous frosts of January 6 and 7. The stock is green and growing and coming out fine. For seventy-two hours Mr. MacKeen kept a stream of water flooding the ground, and on the two severe mornings he applied water liberally to the tops of the trees.

WHEN the tariff bill was reported back to Congress last week it was unchanged in the paragraphs covering nursery stock. All the ambiguities remain in the bill.

JEAN R. TRUMPY, who is credited with having introduced hydrangeas, rare evergreens and Japanese maples into American landscape gardening in 1864, fractured his right thigh by slipping in a bath tub at his home, and he is now under treatment at a hospital in Flushing, N. Y. He is 83 years old. A number of years ago he was one of the most prominent horticulturists in the country. His first success in growing rare plants in America followed the return from Japan in 1864 of a Mr. Hogue, who brought samples of Japanese maples in which he interested the Parsons Nurseries at Flushing, where Mr. Trumpy was employed. The nursery managers gave them to Mr. Trumpy to determine if they could be grown in this country and under what conditions.

MAY HAVE SPECIAL TRAIN.

M. B. Fox, who is attending to the details of the Nurserymen's Special, which will leave Rochester, N. Y., June 12, for the A. A. N. convention at Portland, Ore., is hopeful of filling a sufficient number of cars by the time St. Paul, Minn., is reached to justify a special train to the coast.

Mr. Fox states that at least one car will be filled from Rochester and he is endeavoring to have two cars filled at Chicago by nurserymen from the middle west and the south, who will join the Rochester party here. At St. Paul, 1905 by O. H. Carlson and rebuilt into a modern plant.

In 1880 C. A. Smith erected a plant at 3501 Portland avenue, which he operated until 1899, when it was bought by L. S. Donaldson and enlarged. Mr. Donaldson has been running this in connection with his department store. W. D. Desmond is the present manager.

In 1886 Wesling & Hartman, then two young men, started what is now Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouse. Two years later they separated, Mr. Hartman remaining on the old place, and Mr. Wesling building at his present location, 3538 Hennepin avenue. The same year Fred Bush began the erection of his present plant. In 1888 John Vasatka started. In 1887 Henry Bartsch opened up. Five years later he moved to Sixth avenue north and Irving, where he stayed until he discontinued business a few years ago. In 1868 E. Nagel started the greenhouses now owned by his son, T. Nagel. About the same time Henry Buckendorf started in business, to retire after a few years.

In 1889 Aug. Swanson commenced what is now called Merriam Park

Greenhouses. Mr. Swanson kept enlarging this plant until it became a leader in the Twin Cities. He leased it a few years ago to Kaiser & Welander. In 1890 the Washburn, Desmond and Sunnyside greenhouses were built. Mr. Desmond's houses were sold in 1893 to R. J. Mendenhall. Gust Malmquist directed the building of Senator Washburn's greenhouse and the last few years he has been running it on his own account. The Sunnyside Greenhouses were built by Miss Hilliker and are now owned and operated by her husband, Walter Pier. In 1892 R. Will laid the foundation of the extensive plant of Will Bros. Co. It was run on a small scale until 1901, when the old houses were torn down and large modern houses built in their place. In 1898 the Drake greenhouse was built. In 1900 John Munson commenced the plant of the Minneapolis Floral Co. By building additions from time to time this has become a leader in size.

"Get them at Dreer's"

All Seasonable Plants—Seeds—Bulbs and Sundries

HARDY PERENNIALS.

The most complete collection of varieties and the largest stock in the country. Our Perennial plants have a national reputation. We spare no expense to have them in the best possible shape for the planter. Such varieties as move better when pot-grown are prepared in this shape. This does not mean little seedlings but in the majority of cases the plants were field-grown, were dug and potted during the fall and winter months, and are just the right size to give immediate results. They are not to be compared with so-called field clumps. Try them and be convinced. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

HYBRID-TEA ROSE
KILLARNEY

ROSES FOR OUTDOOR PLANTING TO GIVE IMMEDIATE RESULTS.

We have three hundred thousand 5 and 6-inch pots, the usual Dreer stock, and the style of plants your retail customers are looking for. These are all two-year field-grown plants which have been potted during the winter months, and which were stored in cold houses and frames, and which are now in prime condition for outdoor planting. The collection is the most up-to-date, including many new varieties not offered by anyone in the trade.

Hybrid Teas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Tea and Ever-blooming, Ramblers, Baby Ramblers, Moss Roses, Hybrid Sweet Briars, Austrian Briars, Wichuriana, etc., etc. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

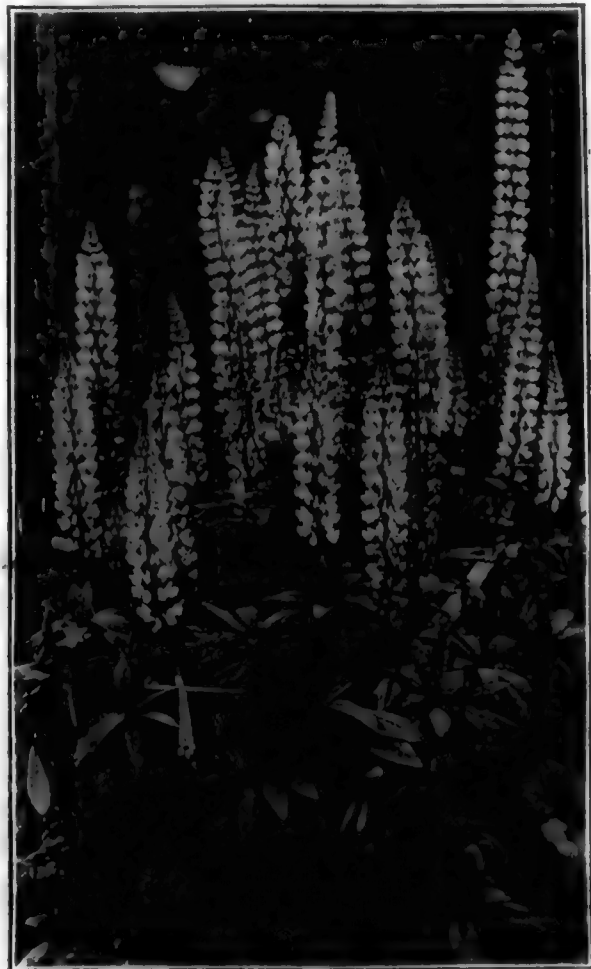

OUR CURRENT WHOLESALE LIST

also describes the following, all of which are handled as Specialties:

Decorative Plants, Palms, Ferns, Pandanus, Bay Trees, Box-woods, Dracaenas, etc., etc.

Hardy Shrubs, Hardy Vines, Hardy Climbers, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, etc., etc.

BULBS—Dahlias, Tuberous Rooted Begonias, Gladiolus, Gloxinias, Fancy Leaved Caladiums, Cannas, etc., etc.

LUPINUS POLYPHYLLUS

AQUATIC PLANTS—Water Lilies,

Nelumbiums, Victorias.

Tender and Hardy Aquatics have been a special feature with us for nearly a quarter of a century; over eight acres of artificial ponds are devoted to their culture. If we can assist you in making plans or selecting varieties, the services of our expert are at your disposal for the asking.

THE MINNEAPOLIS FLORISTS.

About this time greenhouse building became quite popular. In 1901 Sauer & Rosacker built the plant of the East Side Floral Co. The next year Hans Rosacker started his own plant. In 1904 Robert Stern built greenhouses. The same year Mr. Drake erected a building across the street. Both plants are now operated by Mr. Stern. Two years later Thos. Hall, Julius Rieck and Hiawatha Gardens Co. all started. In 1911 the latter company built another plant on Lyndale avenue and Fifty-seventh street south. The same year Hopper & Magnusen built the plant of the Central Floral Co. In 1907 the park board started to build a greenhouse at the Lyndale Farmstead. The plant now consists of five houses. This completes the list, but material is already on the place of John Vasatka, for a new plant.

Up to 1900 every grower was his own retailer and there were only two retailers, Miss. H. B. Whitted, who began in 1894, and A. S. Swanson, in 1898. Thos. Lynes opened in 1901, and R. Latham in 1903. In 1906 Miss H. B. Whitted moved to Fifth street and opened another store at Tenth and Nicollet in 1910. In 1912 she opened a store in the Radisson Hotel building. O. E. Amundson began business in 1904 and Carl Lindscoog in 1907. In 1912 W. F. Holmes and W. H. Bofferding went into business. In addition there are candy and grocery stores which handle flowers as a side line, too numerous to mention.

In 1900 Brant & Noe, of Chicago, opened a commission house in Minneapolis, with Cal. Rice in charge. After a year's experience this was discontinued as not being profitable. After this Cal. Rice and Arthur Rice continued the business under the name of Rice Bros. From a small beginning they now have an establishment which is equal to the best.

BAY TREES JUST IN QUALITY FINE

Decorative Trees and Bushes for Porches, Verandas, Lawns, etc.

BAY TREES (Laurus Nobilis)

These grand ornamental trees are "coming into their own" in the middle and western states. For fifty years and more they have been extensively used in the east and there is nothing to be compared with them for beauty and producing an immediate effect. Our stocks have been especially selected by a specialist in Europe. We carry an immense stock of these Bay Trees. Special prices quoted for quantities.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The papers this week have it that W. J. Lawrence, of Eglinton, is arranging with the authorities at Richmond Hill for the passage of a by-law so that the village may loan him $10,000 wherewith to erect greenhouses in the neighborhood, the said sum to be paid back without interest in ten yearly installments of $1,000 each. Mr. Lawrence suffered a heavy loss about seven weeks ago through the wrecking of his 800-foot house by a severe storm.

John H. Dunlop, of Toronto, is also transferring his business interests to Richmond Hill, having purchased thirty acres of the Hawkins estate, adjoining the Canadian Northern railway yards, for $15,000.

Greenhouse building is being conducted on a lively scale this spring. The Dale Estate has already begun the foundations and power plant for six new houses, each 600 feet long, on property recently purchased from the Lowe estate. Violets will be grown exclusively in this section, provided the labor supply does not fail. Nearly 250 men are at present employed by this firm, and wages are higher than at any previous time in the firm's history. Business is remarkably good, and huge cuts of roses and carnations are of daily occurrence. Last week over 80,000 carnations alone were brought in. New valley houses were recently added, the space formerly taken by valley being monopolized now by orchids. Spring is earlier than it has been for many years, and the carnation plants are already being sent out to the fields,

The Market.

On the whole business last week assumed a steady gait; the first part of the week the weather was warm, which had a tendency to rush on the crops, while it finished the violets and softened the sweet peas. As the week drew to a close and the weather cooled down, stock in all lines shortened up just enough to keep prices satisfactory. Bulbous stock hung fire, while the supply of lilies, especially callas, is ahead of the demand at times. This week opened well and Monday night found the coolers pretty clean.

Various Notes.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports booking quite satisfactory orders for Memorial day.

The Kummer Floral Co. is the name of the new concern which opened a flower stand, with conservatory in connection, on Hopkins road, just across from the entrance to Union cemetery.

The Currie Bros. Co. is the first in the trade to use display card advertisements in the local street cars.

Gust Rusch & Co. report business as keeping up well, with a good Mother's day in sight.

Nick Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, is always one of the first to rush his carnation stock into the field. This year he started April 22.

May 3 is tag day, and flowers will be used. Orders for 25,000 cut flowers have been given.

Although it has orders galore, the A. F. Kellner Co. finds it difficult to get help.

Adam Zender, of Chicago, was the guest of Fred Holton for a few days last week. Other visitors: P. L. McKee, of Moninger's, Chicago; A. Butcher, of Waukesha, Wis., and Mrs. Miller, of Racine. E. O.

The Holton & Hunkel Co., at its Brown Deer plant, will at once proceed with the erection of a new range of six houses, each 28x400. A meeting of the directors of the company was held April 25, at which the contract was awarded to the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. The houses are to be similar to the big new houses of Bassett & Washburn, at Gregg's Station, Ill., and it is planned to have them ready for planting to roses and carnations for next season's supply.

GERANIUMS

We have about 5000 plants of S. A. Nutt and Marvel, which we want to move at once. They are fine, strong young plants in 2-inch pots, and will make fine stock for late spring sales if shifted right away. We also have a few hundred each of Decorator and A. Ricard. There is no finer young stock in the country, and they are really a bargain at the price we are quoting—

$2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000

We also have about 1000 fine young plants of Carnation White Perfection, in 2-inch pots, which we offer you for $20.00 per 1000.

It will be to your advantage as well as ours if you will order at once.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Rochester Florists' Association held its fourth annual banquet April 24, at the Hotel Rochester, and about 100 members and their wives attended. The tables were placed in the shape of a letter U, with the speakers at the bottom. The decorations consisted of pink carnations. W. T. Logan was toastmaster, and called upon the following for addresses: John Dunbar, who spoke on "The Horticultural Horizon;" A. E. Crockett, "The Rochester Flower Show;" W. H. Dildine, "The Successful Florist of the Future;" F. B. Messing; R. G. Salter, "Reminiscences," and H. P. Neun. President John Dunbar said: "If we are correctly informed, a $60,000 appropriation by the legislature for the horticultural department of the Agricultural College at Cornell, for horticultural experimentation, mainly along ornamental lines, is assured. This certainly widens our horticultural horizon."

The entertainment committee was composed of F. W. Vick, G. B. Hart, O. B. Ogston, J. M. Keller and T. R. Schlegel. The association was organized in January, 1908, and now has a membership of 161. The officers are: President, John Dunbar; vice-president, George Arnold; secretary, H. B. Stringer; treasurer, William L. Keller.

Middlebush, N. J.—Edouard C. Matthes will open a branch store in the new Jelin building, in New Brunswick, N. J., and expects to make it one of the finest flower stores in the state. Mr. Matthes has greenhouses at Rosedale, L. I.

Middletown, N. Y.—J. Meiklejohn has sold his business here to F. X. Dienst, the Cottage street florist. Mr. Meiklejohn, who is well known in the trade in New York city and elsewhere, is said to have injured his health by his strenuous work in developing his business during his year or more in this city, and is compelled to retire for a time in order to get the needed rest.

E. O.

Hartford, Conn.—J. A. Weber, for the last twelve years expert florist and horticulturist for James J. Goodwin and Senator Walter L. Goodwin, has accepted a position with E. C. Goodrich, a prominent railroad man, at Excelsior, near Minneapolis, Minn. He will have charge of Mr. Goodrich's estate of more than 200 acres. Theodore Wirth, superintendent of public parks at Minneapolis, and formerly park superintendent of Hartford, was instrumental in securing the new berth for Mr. Weber. Both Mr. Wirth and Mr. Weber attended the National Flower Show in New York, and while there Mr. Wirth received a telegram from Mr. Goodrich asking him to secure a good man to take charge of the estate at Excelsior. Mr. Wirth selected Mr. Weber, who went to Minneapolis to confer with Mr. Goodrich and accepted the latter's proposition. He will leave for Excelsior early this month.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1913 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2½ inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2½-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

JOHN BAUSCHER, 104 Chicago Street, Freeport, Ill.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business was fair the first part of last week, a large quantity of funeral work cleaning up all stock. A steady downpour of rain Saturday and Sunday caused a falling off in trade and the market was pretty well supplied with stock at the opening of the present week.

Various Notes.

A special meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held April 23 at the store of the Bemb Floral Co. Arrangements were made for advertising Mothers' day.

John Klang will soon break ground for a modern store on Forest avenue, east. This will be the permanent home of Mr. Klang's business, which has been growing steadily.

William Wells, of Merstham, England, paid our city a visit last week and was entertained by Philip Breitmeyer and Robert M. Rahaley. Mr. Wells came to look over Carnation Philadelphia and was so well pleased that he placed a large order for stock to be shipped out of pots.

M. Bloy is getting ready for his big spring trade and special sales of bedding plants, which have become popular with the Detroit plant buyers.

Thos. Browne has a fine stock of vincas this year.

G. H. Taepke is ready for spring bedding trade, with a stock of 80,000 plants.

May 1, Raleigh Wells, who has been connected with the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange for some years, will join partnership with Theodore Michel. Mr. Wells has many staunch friends in the trade and certainly has their best wishes for much success. H. S.

Indianapolis, Ind.—S. T. Hitz & Son will add to their range this summer two greenhouses, each 30x147 feet.

Detroit, Mich.—Thieves with a penchant for flowers have robbed the trade of hundreds of dollars' worth of cut stock in the last two weeks. G. H. Taepke and J. F. Sullivan are among the latest sufferers at the hands of intruders, who in every case have made entrance by cutting panes of glass from rear windows and opening the catches.

Choice Plants for Immediate Shipment

A wonderful clock at a hotel in Interlachen, Switzerland. The biggest wonder of nature the world has ever seen.

See that clock? It is made of flowers!

It has hands and shows the time!

See that little house in the rear, also made of flowers! There is hidden a mechanism that strikes the quarter, half and the hour. What do you think this clock is made of? It is made of plants of brilliancy—mostly of dwarf begonias, the Vernon type, short variety, pink and red. The head gardener, the creator of this clock, of this famous, world-wide known hotel at Interlachen, Switzerland, has been offered a fortune by American and other millionaires of the world, to make them a clock similar to this, but he declined the offers, saying that he was hired by the hotel company for the next ten years. I was fortunate enough, during my visit there, to obtain from the head gardener, the creator of this clock, a supply of seed and stock plants of those beautiful varieties of begonias to raise a sufficient crop of about 50,000 young plants in 2½, 3 and 4-inch pots for you to use in a similar clock, carpet bed or other outside work. A bed of these begonias, pink, the Erfordii, or the bright red improved Vernon, is a joy forever. Constant bloomers, stay always short and bushy, the hot rays of the sun have no bad effect on them. They can be grown in a sunny or shady place. We can sell you large 4-inch pot plants, either of the improved Erfordii, the beautiful pink, or the dark bright red improved Vernon, at 10c, $10.00 per 100; 3-inch, $7.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $5.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business was about normal last week and, as a rule, most of the dealers had even clean-ups. On Saturday there was a slight flurry in small bunches of cut flowers for corsage bouquets, the splendid spring weather and the Brown-Princeton baseball game causing a great increase in the demand. There was also a heavy call for seeds and plants for outdoor culture. Prices rule normal and the demand and supply are regular.

Various Notes.

Wm. E. Chappell had a large Masonic decoration last week.

Wm. B. Hazard and Neils G. Pierson have taken the management of the flower department at the store of L. Dimond & Sons, at Westminster and Union streets.

Joseph E. Kopelman has announced that he intends to discontinue the retail business and will, after May 15, confine himself to the wholesale and commission business. For this purpose he is fitting up a new and larger store at 47 Eddy street, only a short distance from his present location. He will increase the capacity of his greenhouses in Oaklawn.

Among the visitors in this city last week were representatives of the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia; H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston.

The Bristol Floral Co., with F. C. F. Geisler and J. H. Kempf as proprietors, has opened a store at the corner of Hope and Church streets, Bristol.

Friday, May 9, will be Arbor day and several of the dealers have orders for trees, shrubbery and plants.

The demand for seeds and garden implements has been unusually brisk with the Philip J. Bowen Co., at 250 Main street, Pawtucket.

Charles Smith, with Joseph Kopelman, spent several days last week in Boston.

Abe Kroll, who has been traveling through the south for several months, arrived in this city last week and is now looking for a location.

Charles H. Hunt visited Brockton, Mass., last week in his automobile, combining business with pleasure.

Thomas Curley is busy with the spring work at the grounds of the State House and State Normal School.

Alexander H. Johnson, city forester, gave an address on shade trees and their care at the monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, April 23. Two new members were elected and vacancies among the officers were filled. It was announced that the speaker for the meeting May 21 would be Dr. Ezra Brainard, president-emeritus of Middlebury College, Vermont. He will give an address on "The Breeding and Growing of New American Violets," with stereopticon illustrations.

The usual flood of government seeds has descended upon the state and the rural mail bags are weighty with the contributions from the several members of Congress.

Joseph P. Gallagher, 318 Main street, Pawtucket, was unusually busy last week with garden and flower seeds and utensils. W. H. M.

Get Interested, Mr. Florist; This Is For You

If you contemplate painting your houses this year it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The LUTTON reputation for high-class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost, and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. Some of the largest growers in the country will testify to this fact.

Album OF Designs

[SECOND EDITION]

It sold so much better than was expected that the First Edition, intended to last a year, was sold out in eight months.

This Album was published in response to many requests from Florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book to be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it is not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it will be when ready for use. With this Album you can show the finished work, in beautifully printed pictures.

The Album has been THOROUGHLY REVISED for the Second Edition and contains a large number of designs not shown in the wonderfully successful First Edition.

NINETY-SIX PAGES, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

75c PER COPY POSTPAID

$6.00 PER DOZEN BY EXPRESS

The price has not been raised for the Second Edition, although everybody says the First Edition was worth more money, and this is a better book in every way.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."
This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

ROSE AFTER-SATISFACTION.

When you buy G. & R. roses you get along with them the after-satisfaction—that sense of realizing all the success that should come from planting quality roses, the knowing that no better results are possible to be obtained outside of G. & R. roses. It is the after-satisfaction that has compelled us to plan to grow for the coming season one million additional roses. Think of it, the after-satisfaction selling five million roses, and demanding a million increase, in one year. "Going some," you say. Yes, but are you getting your share of this "rose after-satisfaction"? If not, why not? Plant G. & R. quality roses. None better, none so good.

Our new catalog giving prices on all roses and other plants now ready. Write for it today.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

USE OF SECOND-HAND PIPE.

We are building a greenhouse and contemplate using second-hand gas pipe for the heating coils. I have been informed that pipe that has once been used for gas will rust out in a short time. Is this correct? Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. O.

The condition of the pipe is not stated, but at best it will not be as durable as new pipe and if it has been used underground its durability will be greatly lessened. It will be well in either case to coat the pipes, inside and outside, with mineral paint, free from tar. If the pipe is in bad condition, its use in the heating coils would not be advisable. F. R.

THE COAL MARKET.

In the modern greenhouse establishment the fires never go out, but the average small grower, especially if his crop is carnations, loses no time in letting the artificial heat go down as early in the spring as nature comes to his assistance. But no sooner than the fires are out the question comes up of the fuel supply for the next season. It is not safe for a grower whose requirements are large to let the approach of frost find him without full bunkers. If a man burns no more than a few wagon loads a month, he can trust to some local retail source of supply; but if he needs forty or fifty tons a day in cold weather, as many growers do, the hand-to-mouth policy will not do. The big grower must have a supply to run him weeks constantly on hand. That he has a month's winter supply on hand May 1 is no reason why he should not at once begin taking in his storage stock against next winter's needs. The large growers all want to take in as much of the season's supply as they can during the summer. The big growers contract early. At present they are more anxious than usual to get under cover, for the reason that no one can tell what will happen this summer in the West Virginia fields whence come the smokeless coals that are so largely used in greenhouses. At the same time the coal trade seems to be specially anxious to find the man who is ready to take in some cars at once. The coal market has not been as strong at any time in the

BOILER AND STACK.

I plan to build two greenhouses 21x150 feet, five feet to the gutter and twelve feet to the ridge, which should be run at about 60 degrees in the climate of northern Indiana. Will you kindly tell me what size of boiler will be necessary, using steam heat, and how high the stack should be? F. A. K.

Any boiler rated at 5,000 feet would be all right. It will take about 4,000 running feet of 1 1/4-inch pipe, but I would get a boiler rated at 5,000 feet. A stack two feet in diameter and forty feet high will serve. F. R.

GAS, COKE, COAL?

Please furnish information as to the relative heating value of hard coal, coke and natural gas, when either is to be used in the return tubular type of boilers and under normal conditions. The gas is under a pressure of one and one-half to three ounces. I would install the latest improved burners and mixers, but would use no steam or compressed air in connection with the gas. The ruling prices in this vicinity are: Hard coal, $6; coke, $3.50; gas, 35 cents per thousand feet. H.

The results obtained when the fuel is used under a tubular boiler might be different from the results as they have been determined in a small sectional heater. In the latter case the coke would be the cheapest of the three fuels at the prices mentioned, but this would require that it be so burned as to secure its full efficiency. Gas would need to be available at 20 cents to equal the price of coke, and at 25 cents to be comparable with the price of hard coal. In favor of the gas should be noted the saving in the expense of firing and of removing the ashes. Using it under a

HOT WATER HEATING SYSTEM

Rose Range of Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, Ill. Charles McCauley, Supt.
Heated by No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler, Kroeschell 2-inch Return Piping System and Kroeschell Generator. Greenhouses each 28 feet by 200 feet. Garland Construction.

The mains are arranged to take care of a future addition of 40,000 sq. ft. of glass; 2-inch returns are used throughout the entire range and each 2-inch return line is controlled by 1-inch gate valve (strictly a Kroeschell feature) insuring perfect control. It is a gravity job; the circulation is perfect, reaching the extreme ends of range in fifteen minutes. The Kroeschell Generator (the high speed gear for hot water heating) is also used for this system.

"Your No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler heats our entire range. We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in our greenhouses, and this temperature is easily maintained even in the very coldest weather. Your boiler has given entire satisfaction. It is the best and quickest heater I have ever used or seen. I have found the boiler very economical in the use of fuel and labor, as it is not necessary to use the best coal, and any labor will do for a fireman. The Kroeschell Piping System with Generator works like a charm. When I want to sulphur, I can heat the water up to 230 to 240 degrees and I get the same results as from steam. Seeing is believing—all Growers are invited to call. Any further information concerning boiler and piping system will be gladly given. We had a large number of Florists at our place recently, and they all thought we had the finest equipped plant in the business."

Continuous Firing for Four Years Twenty-four Hours a Day Fails to Burn Out Cyclone Grates

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

selling well. The market for shorter ones is rather crowded. The carnation supply is so large that at the time of this writing there seems to be little chance to move it all. Only the best and freshest of the stock is finding a ready sale and on that the prices are hammered down to a low point. Both Easter lilies and calla lilies are offered in quantities, but at the best they have only ordinary sales. Some smaller bulbous stock is coming in, but not in large quantities. Sweet peas are again in good supply, but only the best of them meet with any steady call. The valley cut is rather limited. Those that come in are taken up. Other offerings include snapdragon, stocks, iris, pansies, forget-me-nots and the like.

NOTE THE RING WHICH APPEARS AT ONE FOOT INTERVALS TO FACILITATE QUICK AND ACCURATE MEASURING

Made in continuous lengths of 500 feet and furnished on reels—does away with worrying about short ends.

The ring at every foot does your measuring accurately and quickly—eliminates the bothersome yardstick or tape. Besides, these rings add protection to the hose as you drag it over the ground.

Construction is by the latest improved methods; care to the greatest degree is exercised in both materials and workmanship—assuring you of high quality.

And prices—consistent with good quality—are extremely attractive when you consider that you are getting a hose without a peer for quality, service, usefulness and durability.

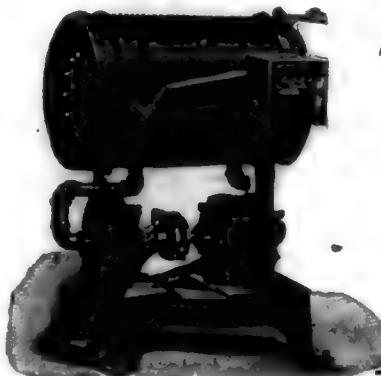

Made in three convenient sizes— $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch, $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch and $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch.

LAWN SILICATE

FOR KILLING WEEDS IN LAWNS

Positively effective and absolutely guaranteed or money returned.

LAWN SILICATE is unquestionably superior to any preparation ever applied as a top dressing to lawns to destroy Plantain, Buckhorn, Dandelion and other low growing, flat leaved weeds that a lawn mower will not kill. It is odorless and is easy to apply. Does not stain or injure hands or clothing. It is positively the most economical, quickest and most effective method of getting rid of weeds ever devised. A 5-lb. package covers 200 to 500 square feet. It does not kill the grass, but the weeds are practically all killed in 24 to 48 hours, and afterwards literally burned up and blown away. This is not a "fairy tale." We invite investigation. It is sold on "money back guarantee."

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The thermometer last week reached the 90-degree mark, with the result that there was an overstocked market. While small quantities of select American Beauty roses sold at $3 per dozen, in quantities they could be had at the buyer's figure, with the result that Beauties with 4-foot stems were peddled on the street at 10 cents each. All other roses ran from $4 to $6 per hundred, with the poorer grades as low as $15 per thousand. Carnations have been in heavy supply, but in fair demand, with $2 per hundred the ruling price. Selected stock and white carnations are quite scarce at $3 and $4. Sweet peas are to be had in large quantities. There is an over-supply of snapdragon, along with the other blossoms, which caused the price to drop. Gardenias, too, were a drag on the market. Outdoor valley has put in an appearance. In fact, outdoor stock of all varieties is being rushed into the market in large quantities. This is materially hurting the sale of greenhouse stock and not only affects the producers but the retailers as well.

Various Notes.

A local concern is putting forth a novelty in the way of forced peonies. This firm during the spring found occasion to move 500 plants and, instead of planting them outdoors at once, conceived the idea of lifting them and placing them in the greenhouse. The experiment seems to have been successful, except that the overstocked market prevented the obtaining of suitable prices.

Among the visitors in town were A. F. Vick, with Robert Craig Co.; J. J. Goudy, with H. A. Dreer, and C. B. Knickman, with McHutchison & Co.

Members of the Florists' Club and their families are being invited by the Washington Chamber of Commerce, in common with other representative commercial organizations, to participate in the annual outing of that body to Atlantic City, May 29 to June 1.

Due to the fact that the annual banquet of the club, May 6, will be given on the evening scheduled for the regular monthly meeting, the business of the club will be discussed in the red room of the Hotel Ebbitt, starting promptly at 7:30 and terminating one hour later. C. L. L.

FUNGUS ON VEGETABLE LEAVES.

I inclose a few sample leaves from my tomatoes, parsley and lettuce. What is the trouble and the remedy for it? They seem to have mildew and mold on them, which is spreading. I have used potassium gas for white fly and I am now about rid of the pest, except a big crop of the eggs. How can I destroy the eggs? H. C. B.

There is no method for the destruction of white fly eggs. The only thing to be done is to wait until the eggs hatch and then fumigate with potassium cyanide several nights in succession.

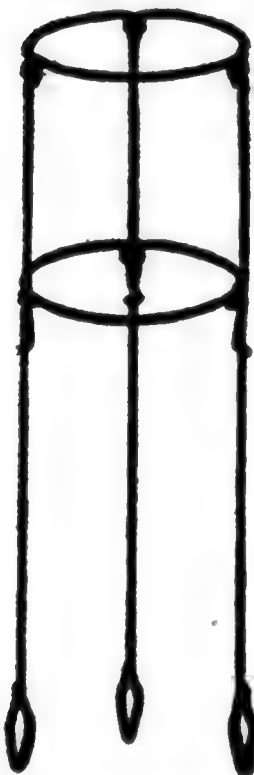

The fungus on the leaves generally follows an attack of white fly and is familiarly known as sooty mold. It is not parasitic on the leaves, but nevertheless the plants are seriously injured from the commercial standpoint. When the white fly is under control the fungus will gradually disappear. G. L. Peltier.

DISEASED ONION TOPS.

I have a bench of onions in my greenhouse and am writing for information about them. The onion tops drop over and wither, some perhaps an inch or two from the top, others halfway down and others, again, at the bottom. The point is clearly defined between the sound and diseased portion. I have examined for insects, but can detect none. Although I have grown onions for years, I never have had this experience before. R. S. P.

There is undoubtedly some trouble with your soil, which can be best remedied another season by sterilization. Growers of lettuce and other vegetable crops nearly all sterilize, and find that this ensures clean, thrifty plants. C. W.

The Curved Eave House is not Too Costly for Commercial Use

No eave but the curved eave is absolutely ice-free at all times. Note the quantity of ice that has formed on the sill and dropped off.

Above the sill is a strip of metal that prevents the ice from breaking the glass.

CONSIDERING the many advantages of the curved eave construction, it is rather a wonder more growers have not adopted it. Surely it cannot be because of the slight difference in price. So it must be because of the fact that curved eave houses, when first built for commercial purposes, were neither practical nor low enough in cost, that the impression has continued. It is a mistake. Houses built by us ten years ago are today just as satisfactory as ever. Their owners state there is no more glass breakage than on other houses. Let us send you our catalogue showing full structural details and a circular telling one owner's opinion of the construction.

We Have Moved Our New York Office

WE have changed the location of our New York Office, from 1133 Broadway to the Forty-Second Street Building, corner of 42d Street and Madison Avenue.

This is diagonally across from the New Grand Central Station. A Subway Station is right handy in the building.

From the Pennsylvania Station you can reach us by taking a 34th Street car, and transferring at Fourth Avenue—only a short ride.

The change makes our location decidedly more accessible, and gives us the more commodious quarters long needed.

You are cordially invited to come and see us.

MONTGOMERY on Grafted Roses, sent by The Review for 25 cents.

The Only Greenhouse Wood

MR. GREENHOUSE MAN, if a contractor tells you frankly, "That kind of lumber will rot too soon, I would rather use Cypress," he is worth dealing with. Trust his judgment, his experience and his honesty. Give him the order.

MR. GREENHOUSE MAN, if a contractor says to you, "Cypress will cost you more to begin with than some 'substitute' wood, but it will be CHEAPER for you if you figure your building costs BY THE YEAR, listen to him. He is speaking from experience, and YOU will do well to PROFIT by his experience, and the experience of the greenhouse trade as a whole.

MR. GREENHOUSEMAN, CYPRESS is the one "natural-born greenhouse wood"—that is as thoroughly established as the succession of days and nights. The thousands and thousands of owners who have tested it out and have profited by its marvelous endurance and corresponding freedom from repair and replacement bills, make a case that CANNOT BE DISPROVED. Don't let any one talk you out of Cypress.

THAT BEING THE FACT, THE REASONABLE CONCLUSION IS: ANY OTHER WOOD THAN CYPRESS FOR GREENHOUSE WORK IS "A SUBSTITUTE" FOR THE PROVEN BEST. CYPRESS IS THE BEST—NO ARGUMENT POSSIBLE ON THAT POINT.

Now for a volume or a dozen volumes of our CYPRESS POCKET LIBRARY—they are free to you. Send a letter or a postal hiking for what you need. VOL. 3 is about GREENHOUSES—nothing but. Just you GET IT.

BRINGS $350

HARTFORD CITY, IND., April 27, 1913.

Florists' Review, Chicago, Ill.

Please discontinue my advertisement for Rex Begonias—sold out. The little 3-line ad sold us over 9000 2-inch Rex Begonias, making $350 for about $6 worth of advertising.

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

MEMORIAL DAY NUMBER

MAY 15

Advertising orders must reach The Review office in Chicago by 5 p. m., Tuesday, May 13, to be in time for this

SPECIAL INTEREST ISSUE

Review Ads More Than Pay

WIDE-AWAKE READERS.

Our ad for paper pots and dirt bands is bringing a lot of orders, some of them big ones. Please continue it. We have been advertising for fifteen years in agricultural journals and we have not often received as good results as your paper is giving. Your readers seem to be wide-awake business men.—F. W. Rochelle & Sons, Chester, N. J., April 25, 1913.

GETS TOO MANY ORDERS.

Please discontinue our to-exchange ad, as we already have had more orders than we can fill.—E. Wickersham & Co., Pottstown, Pa., April 15, 1913.

TRADE'S BUSINESS PAPER.

I have made up my mind that I could not do business without The Review, so I enclose one year's subscription for the florists' business paper.—R. B. Vietz, New Britain, Conn., April 21, 1913.

EVERYBODY WANTS 'EM.

Please take out our ad for coleus rooted cuttings. We have more orders than we probably can fill. Seems as though everybody wanted coleus.—Kelley & Current, Lexington, Ky., April 18, 1913.

RAPID-FIRE RESULTS.

Please discontinue my dahlia ad, as I am about sold out of dahlias. You may continue the gladioli three more issues. The Review is a great salesman.—H. O. Meikel Bulb & Floral Co., Frankfort, Ind., April 18, 1913.

And Ten Days Later.

Please cut out the No. 1 gladioli in my advertisement in the classified. The Review completely sold us out of dahlias and No. 1 size gladioli. It pays to advertise in The Review.—H. O. Meikel Bulb & Floral Co., Frankfort, Ind., April 28, 1913.

THEY DO THE WORK.

Enclosed find check for my advertising bill. Your classified ads do the work.—Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind., April 20, 1913.

BETTER THIS YEAR.

Our aster seed is sold out entirely on many of the colors. The ad brought us better returns than last year.—Herbert & Fleishauer, McMinnville, Ore., April, 1913.

TEN TIMES TOO MANY.

Please discontinue my verbena and althernthera ad, as I have ten times more orders than I can fill.—J. E. Kallenbach, Amarillo, Tex., April 19, 1913.

QUICK RESULTS—THANKS.

Please discontinue our ad for pansy plants in your valued paper, as we are entirely sold out. Continue our ad for Alaska Shasta daisies. Thanking you for the quick results your paper brought.—Elmwood Nurseries, Birmingham, Ala., April 24, 1913.

PROUD OF THE REVIEW.

Please discontinue my ad, as I am sold out in mums and all the Beauty bench plants. Thanks—I am proud of the work done in The Review. I sold a nice lot down in Texas.—Peter Morgen, Huntingburg, Ind., April 19, 1913.

HATES TO REFUND.

Please don't insert my ad for petunias any more. I am all sold out and have to send money back, which I don't like to do.—John Lietzau, Geneva, Ill., April 22, 1913.

CAN'T FILL ORDERS.

Please stop our ad for petunias, as we have all the orders we can fill. We are proud of The Review. It does the work. Let the rest of the money apply on our ad for pansies, as we have a lot of them to sell now.—H. M. Paskins & Co., Basil, O., April 21, 1913.

ROSES

BABY TAUSENSCHON

This is a new introduction this year and will be one of the most popular roses ever sent out. It is exactly the same as the popular rose "Tausendschon" in coloring, but, belonging to the Baby Class, it is an ever bloomer. Every one should try this variety; its great value will be for baskets and for spring planting.

4-inch, 4½-inch, 5-inch and 6-inch pots.....$6.00 per doz.

DRACAENA MANDAIANA

Large leaf, beautifully colored bright red.
 6-inch pots.....$15.00 and $18.00 per doz.

DRACAENA DE SMETIANA

This is one of the most desirable of the broad leaf varieties; a strong, vigorous grower, with bold, dark green foliage which becomes beautifully suffused and variegated. Our stock is exceptionally fine.

7-inch and 8-inch pots.....$2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 each

DRACAENA BRONZE BEAUTY

This variety was offered three years ago with Dracaena Mandalana by the introducer, Wm. A. Manda, and is the strongest growing Dracaena we have. Although not as highly colored as Dracaena De Smetiana, we have found it wonderfully durable as a house plant. We offer splendid specimens.

8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots.....$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $5.00 and $6.00 each

PHOENIX ROEBELENI

MOTHERS' DAY.

Write The Review.

The special feature of The Review for April 24 was Mothers' day, with an account of the methods by which the trade had pushed the day into a leading position. It was because of exploitation by The Review that the trade took up this work and this paper naturally is anxious to know of the work done and the results achieved this year. Particularly, it is important to note the progress made in developing the demand for other flowers than the white carnation. Write The Review about the methods you used to awaken the public and the effect on your sales. Also tell how your trade looked at the idea of

For Mother's memory, a flower white.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

J. Kallenbach, manager of the Amarillo Greenhouses, at Amarillo, Tex., designed and executed the reproduction of "The Old Oaken Bucket," as shown in the accompanying illustration. It was used as a window decoration by the City Light & Water Co., of Amarillo, in conjunction with a display of antique and modern utensils, intended to differentiate between the ease with which the present-day housewife can do her work and the tiresome, prolonged hours of labor that fell to her ancestral sister. Mr. Kallenbach went to Texas from Erie, Pa., a year ago and in a short time he has established a good business.

WHAT IS THE WISEST COURSE?

One of our old established firms here is disposing of its surplus flowers, principally carnations, to fruit stands around town at an extremely low figure, low enough so that they retail at 35 cents per dozen, while the market price at present is 75 cents. This evening (Saturday) one of the purchasers called at my store to buy some plumosus and ferns to put with his flowers.

I do not grow my own stock, but buy out of town, where I know they do not sell in this way. The members of this home firm have asked me several times to buy from them. Their flowers are good and they offer them for less money than I pay, and I could save telephone and express charges by so doing. But if theirs were the only place at which I could buy, I would drop my business.

What is your opinion on this subject? If you can find space to print this letter, perhaps we shall get the opinion of others. At times I have put on special sales of different things, when my grower had a surplus. I do not feel that this hurts my competitors any, but, on the other hand, that it stimulates the business and makes flower buyers of people who would not start when flowers were high.

I have only been in business eighteen months, but at the present rate I could turn this firm $1,800 or $2,000 per year on roses and carnations alone, perhaps ten times as much as the firm receives from all the market stall keepers put together.

A. T. P.

The Review's idea is that it would be an act of good judgment on the part of the correspondent to buy the locally grown stock and thereby take it off his market—then there wouldn't be a surplus to be sold at low prices in com-

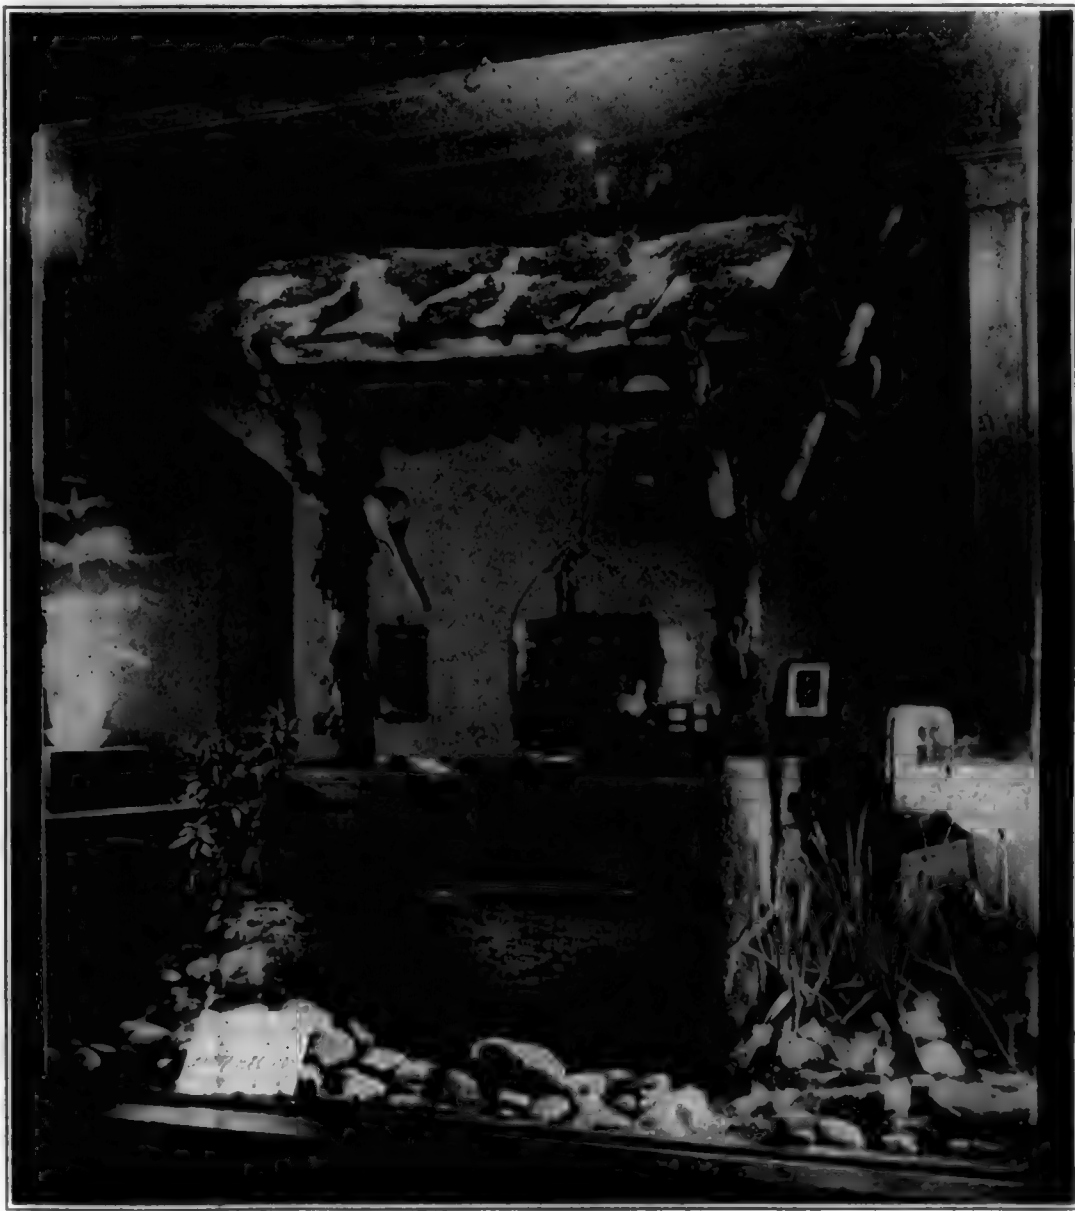

TO ENFORCE RESPONSIBILITY.

Receiver of Merchandise Must Pay.

There are at present two law suits in progress in the state of New York, the outcome of which will be of great importance to all in the trade, for if those who bring the suits are successful it imposes a duty on every purchaser to guard himself against too liberal treatment at the hands of a seller's employees, just the same as the buyer must watch his own interests. If the plaintiffs win it will make it unsafe for a buyer to accept any stock not listed in the bill; if he knowingly receives stock not charged for on the books of the seller he will be guilty of fraud; a buyer may not accept favors at the hands of the seller's agent except at his own risk. The cases now pending are, in brief, as follows:

Kasting vs. Netsch.

A suit is pending in the supreme court at Buffalo, W. F. Kasting Co. vs. Charles H. Netsch, for $2,000 damages. It is alleged that a former employee of petition with him. It seems the obvious thing to do.

Columbus, O. — After investigating the claim of Miss Marie L. Hoar that she was a partner in the Ohio Floral Co., 174 South High street, Judge Dillon refused to grant her application for a receiver. The court found Miss Alice Gill to be the owner of the business and Miss Hoar's connection to be in a managerial capacity. Miss Gill will continue the business.

the Kasting concern sent flowers to the defendant in about double the quantity ordered, until the total was about $4,000. This is alleged to have occurred between June, 1910, and July, 1912. During an argument, April 24, before Justice Emery, on an application for a bill of particulars, it was stated by plaintiff's attorneys that the clerk had made a full statement of his share in the transactions. Counsel for the defendant had asked that he be supplied with details of the purchases on which it is alleged he received flowers for less than their actual value and, at the close of the hearing, Justice Emery directed that the plaintiff furnish copies of invoices of the sales in question. The case will come to trial later.

Boddington vs. Schmidt.

In the supreme court of Westchester county, at White Plains, N. Y., Arthur T. Boddington, of New York, has instituted suit against Frederick F. Schmidt, of Mount Vernon, and William H. Hughes, a former Boddington employee, charging conspiracy and conversion, asking for damages in the sum of $2,500. The plaintiff alleges that from April, 1905, until March, 1912, Hughes was in his employ in a confidential capacity; that between the above dates Hughes shipped goods to the value of $2,500 to Schmidt, but that he never made any entry of the same, and that he suppressed the records of the shipments.

Hughes was ordered to appear in the supreme court March 25, to be examined previous to trial before Justice Keogh. In his answer Schmidt denies all of the allegations in the complaint and it is contended that William H. Hughes was at the time mentioned in the complaint in the employ of the plaintiff as superintendent of the plaintiff's business and as such had charge thereof. Mr. Schmidt asserts that he paid for goods to Hughes believing that his relationship was such as specified in the answer, and his attorney says that he has every reason to believe that he will be able to show that Schmidt is in no way connected with any transaction which would in any way appear to reveal a conspiracy.

MUST NOT USE OWN NAME.

Judge Loring of the supreme court at Boston has confirmed the report of Walter F. Frederick as master, in the suit in which Julius A. Zinn sought to restrain Zinn's Flower Shop from using that name in connection with its business. The decree enjoins the use of the name Zinn's Flower Shop. Julius A. Zinn has carried on business on Park street for many years, advertising as Zinn the Florist. For twelve years Mrs. Olivia F. Zinn, plaintiff's wife, helped him in the business, having charge of the books and accounts. In May, 1912, they had differences about the management of the business, and she remained away from the store. September 2, 1912, Mrs. Zinn, on her own account, began business on West street under the name of Mrs. O. F. Zinn, sending cards to the customers of the plaintiff. September 27, 1912, a corporation was formed under the name of Zinn's Flower Shop. Mr. Zinn frequently visited the store, and advised his wife in matters of business, but they later were permanently separated. It was then that he brought the present proceeding, to prevent her from using the words Zinn's Flower Shop, thereby, as he claimed, diverting business from his store to hers.

RAZING AND REBUILDING.

We expect to tear down and rebuild four old houses. What is the best way to clean the old glass? The west house is fourteen feet wide and six feet eight inches high to the gutter. On the west of this there will be a 6-foot lean-to, which will be replaced next year with

Fine! Unless She Wants Orchids

The latest thing for trimming feminine hats and even gowns, according to the Chicago American, is fresh flowers. Paris so dictates; the latest dispatches from the fashion center of the world say so. The use of flowers will stamp out the excessive luxury of aigrettes and such things for trimmings.

I'm out in the field with the daffydills,
O'er the hills and rippling rills,
Picking posies like a kid,
To be sewed on my wife's lid.
No more aigrettes, happy days,
No more big bills hubby pays.
Just some daisies or some phlox;
Am I happy? Bet your socks.

Life keeps getting worse and worse;
Got a big gimp in my purse;
She won't wear the ones I pick;
I'm quite sure I'm getting sick.
What she wants are orchids rare,
Set me back eight bucks a pair.
Oh, she'll get 'em, sure enough,
And I'm the booby! Gee, it's tough.

a 20-foot house. Using 1½-inch pipe for posts, how much of a concrete foundation should be put in? J. H. W.

The putty can be softened by soaking in a solution of caustic soda, and by using a putty knife most of it can be removed. To clean the soot, shading, etc., from the glass, scrub it with a stiff brush, using sharp sand or Sapolio.

There is no definite rule regarding the depth and height of the foundation wall. If the soil is firm, a depth of eighteen to twenty-four inches will answer and it can be carried to any height desired. If there is to be glass in the side wall, it will be a good plan to carry the concrete up to the wall plate, or, if no glass is to be used, it might be carried to the eave plate. This will be much more durable than a wooden wall and will not cost much more.

WITH NEAR-BOSTON GROWERS.

F. J. Dolansky.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, has come to the front the last two seasons as a successful grower of gardenias and cattleyas, and being interested in seeing how he grew these plants, a visit was paid to his Lynn establishment. While several growers around Boston have been trying houses of gardenias for winter flowering, the general result seems to have been beautiful, healthy plants, but no blooms. It is quite otherwise at Mr. Dolansky's. One house had just been thrown out prior to my visit. Another was in full crop, the flowers being large and stems excellent, many stems carrying two large buds which would open together. A third house in solid beds was just coming into crop and blooming with as much apparent freedom as those in raised benches. The late house will give flowers until July. Houses will be replanted from early in June until the end of July. Most of the young stock is now in 2-inch pots or in the cutting bench and will be given a shift into 3-inch pots before planting. Mr. Dolansky has been practically the only local shipper of high grade gardenias to the Boston market this season.

Cattleyas are grown quite extensively here, there being some 20,000 plants in a wide ridge-and-furrow house on a side hill. Much of the stock is new. Some had not been potted long, but I was impressed with its cleanliness and general vigor. Pans are mostly used and all plants are kept well up to the light. C. Trianae is more grown than any other variety. I noted some charming white varieties in flower. Labiata also is heavily grown. C. Schroederæ was just coming into flower, while the buds on Mossia and Mendelli were showing in the sheaths. Other varieties grown are Gaskelliana, gigas and Dowiana, this list insuring cattleya flowers the year around.

In addition to cattleyas and gardenias, quite a variety of other stock is grown, much of it for the store in Lynn. Carnations looked remarkably well, Pink Delight, Gloriosa, White Wonder, Benora, Beacon, Rosette and White Enchantress being the varieties. White Wonder is much preferred to White Enchantress, owing to its continuous flowering qualities. Two or three houses are devoted to roses and these look well. The varieties are Killarney, Dark Pink Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond, Taft, Ward, Kaiserin and My Maryland. The last named is well liked as a winter bloomer. Quantities of Easter lilies, acacias, azaleas and other Easter plants are grown, while candytuft, stocks and other Memorial day crops were waiting for vacant benches.

William Sim.

The visitors to William Sim's large and up-to-date establishment at Cliftondale always find much to interest them. Everything is well grown and the houses are kept exceedingly neat. At the time of my visit two large houses of sweet peas were in full crop, the stems fifteen to eighteen inches long, with three and four flowers to the stem. The varieties are Florence Denzer, Christmas Pink, Mrs. W. W. Smalley and Watchung. The last named is a dwarfed grower than the others, but carried splendid stems. It is an excellent white variety to grow where headroom is limited. One house 400 feet long was entirely devoted to Zvolanek's new winter-flowering Spencers, fifty varieties in all. These have the same habit as the older winter-blooming sweet peas and some were showing buds while only eighteen inches high.

Many of the best outdoor Spencer varieties are planted, including a quantity of novelties, and the houses should be a grand sight later in the season. The characteristics of the true winter-bloomers and outdoor sweet peas were plainly to be seen here. In one house containing both types the winter-bloomers were eighteen inches high, running right up to flower with a single stem. On the other hand, the outdoor types were much branched close to the ground and only four to five inches high.

Princess of Wales violets are grown between the sweet peas, being pulled out as the latter shade them too much. Some 75,000 plants of these are grown and the work of picking and bunching takes considerable time. Tomatoes are grown to succeed the violets where no sweet peas are planted and to take the places of the earliest sweet peas, about 40,000 plants being grown, mostly of Comet. One house contained pausies of superb quality. These were in evidence at the recent New York show. The flowers carried are simply immense. To supplement the city water supply, Mr. Sim some time ago sunk an artesian well 300 feet and gets a stream of 100 gallons per minute. He keeps his engine going night and day in the dry season, using much of the water for irrigating his outdoor crops in addition to watering the greenhouses. Sweet peas, early sweet corn and tomatoes are specialties here outdoors.

It is worthy of remark that Mr. Sim has never changed the soil in any of his houses. Everything is, of course, on the ground and the soil was in the first place deeply trenched and heavily manured. Crops, far from showing any deterioration, are better each year. Of course cow manure is liberally applied and worked in before violets are planted, and top-dressings and liquid manure are freely applied whenever necessary. The rotation of crops here seems to keep the soil in perfect condition, as sweet peas, violets and tomatoes are one and all as clean and vigorous as anyone could wish to see.

Owing to the mildness of the winter, Mr. Sim estimates he has saved 300 tons of coal as compared with a year ago. He has a battery of four 125 horsepower boilers, but two of these have been sufficient to provide the necessary heat this season. W. N. Craig.

Florists' Review,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

We want to compliment you on the way you have featured Mothers' Day. The Review has put thousands of dollars into the pockets of the florists all over America by its suggestions how to boost Mothers' Day business. It was your exploitation of it that first called our attention to the possibilities of the Day.

And how do you like our Mothers' Day letterhead? It already has brought business, and we expect it to bring much more.

Very truly yours, .

DAINTY TABLE DECORATION.

Mrs. Patterson, with Walter Armacost & Co., at Ocean Park, Cal., arranged the table decoration for the dinner given by Mr. German recently at the King George hotel on the occasion of his seventh wedding anniversary.

The accompanying illustration shows how daintily and artistically Mrs. Patterson executed the order.

ORCHIDS

SCALE ON CATTLEYAS.

We notice in The Review many interesting articles on orchids. Last year we stocked a house with this precious plant and now notice that there are four different kinds of scales popping up in different places. One form is oval, with brown, hard shell; one is small, round and black and white; one is small, yellowish, and one is similar to mealy bug. Will cyanide be effective in small doses, say one-fourth of an ounce to 1,000 cubic feet, once a week, or will fumigating with some nicotine product do the work just as well? We have sprayed, but not with good results, as it is hard to get where they are located, having the plants close together. We give plenty of air and do not carry the house over 60 degrees at night and about 70 degrees during the day. We have cyanide ninety-eight per cent pure and would like to try it, but do not know the quantity it will take for scale and still not injure the plants. Your best remedy for this will be much appreciated. K. B.

The several scales referred to can all be overcome, but it will take a little time to accomplish this. I have found that Aphine as a spray will kill a large proportion of these scales. Plants which are badly encrusted with them can be dipped. To get the plants thoroughly clean, however, I would advise you to go over them with a sponge or soft brush after applying the Aphine. Once your plants are tolerably clean, do not wait until they are again badly infested before using remedial measures. Give a spray once a month and you will keep the scales down pretty well, at least where the spray is carefully applied.

Do not on any account use cyanide at even the weak strength you mention. You would probably kill the scales, but cattleyas, tough as they may appear, will not for some reason stand fumigation with cyanide. More than one prominent grower has proved this to his sorrow. Nicotine fumigation is of practically no value against scale. The cyanide may not affect the plants for a few weeks, but sooner or later they will present a sorry appearance if you use it. W. N. Craig.

J. A. NEWSHAM'S ORCHIDS.

The accompanying illustration shows to advantage a house of Oncidium splendidum in bloom at the nursery of J. A. Newsham, New Orleans, La. These oncidiums, as well as the other varieties, including phalaenopsis, dendrobiums, Cattleya Mossiæ, etc., attracted widespread attention and drew to Mr. Newsham's plant hundreds of admiring visitors, among whom were many florists.

Besides his orchids, Mr. Newsham has one of the finest calla houses in New Orleans. A profitable branch of his business is cucumber growing, in two large greenhouses. After this crop is cut the houses will be planted with chrysanthemums.

BROOKLINE PRIVATE PLACES.

At E. A. Clarke's, Jamaica Plain, Mass., where Alexander McKay has charge, cyclamens, cinerarias, Primula obconica and bulbous plants in variety are well grown and were making a fine show at the time of my visit. A house of American Beauty, Killarney and other roses was in heavy crop. A large number of lilacs, both dwarf and standard, prunus, pyrus, wistarias and other deciduous shrubs are forced. A fine bench of the yellow Calceolaria Stewarti was seen.

At Larz Anderson's, where Duncan Finlayson presides, cyclamens were good. A beautiful batch of Primula malacoides in pans was noted. There were good batches of acacias, ericas and other hard-wooded plants, including some fine specimens. Among the acacias, heterophylla, pubescens and armata hybrida were noteworthy. Coronilla glauca is a charming hard-wooded plant, well liked here. In the orchid houses a fine assortment of cymbidiums was noted, several unique forms being in flower. The other orchids looked well. In the carnation houses Winsor, Enchantress, White Enchantress and Beacon are the favorites. The grape and nectarine houses were started and coming along nicely.

At E. B. Dane's, at Chestnut Hill, there is one of the finest collections of orchids in America. Two divisions of phalaenopsis were a beautiful sight, such varieties as Rimestadiana, Stuartiana, Schilleriana and amabilis being fine. The main cattleya house contained many fine hybrids in flower, in addition to ordinary sorts, such as Trianae and Schröderæ. Several houses are devoted to cyripediums, including practically every rare kind in commerce. Other divisions contain lælias, dendrobies, odontoglossums, etc. In addition to the orchids, houses are devoted to carnations, violets and cyclamens, which were well done. There were two houses which contained ericas, boronias, acacias, genistas, cinerarias, schizanthus and other seasonable flowers, also a house of gardenias. Donald McKenzie has charge of this large and well kept range.

William Downs, at E. S. Webster's place, has some of the finest houses on a private estate around Boston. Here were noted a splendid lot of cinerarias, cyclamens, schizanthus, amaryllis, primulas and other flowering plants. A house of gardenias looked healthy. Other houses are devoted to orchids, carnations, roses, palms and nectarines. Everything here was neat and the stock well grown.

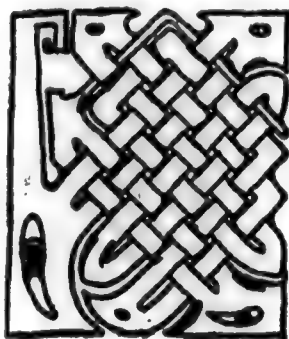

At Mrs. J. L. Gardner's William Thatcher's house of cattleyas and other orchids never looked better. Here are some of the oldest and largest camellias to be seen in New England, while Bignonia venusta, streptosolens and other climbers made a great display in one house. Cinerarias, primulas, bulbous plants, calceolarias, etc., are all well grown. A hard-wooded house contained a fine assortment of boronias, coronillas, ericas and acacias, a number being of quite large size.

The visitor to Prof. C. S. Sargent's will always find much of interest. Here soft-wooded plants are not much grown, but, on the other hand, varieties which

CONGRESS CORRECTS TARIFF MISTAKES

Plant, Bulb and Seed Schedules in Bill Now Pending as Amended on the Floor of the House

IMPORTANT CHANGES MADE.

Hyacinth Bulbs Advanced.

The plant, bulb and nursery schedules in the tariff bill, as adopted by the House of Representatives May 1, remedy some of the inaccuracies of classification and definition that were subjects of controversy and confusion in the old law and which were reported to the House from the ways and means committee to be incorporated in the new law. Several important changes were made on the floor of the House in the form of amendments when the schedules came up for adoption.

Hyacinth bulbs are returned to their former rate, as they stood under the McKinley bill, and will be dutiable at $2.50 per thousand, instead of at 50 cents per thousand, as they were rated under the Payne bill, in which they were classified among "other bulbs and bulbous roots or corms." In the Payne bill hyacinth clumps, which are rarely imported, were listed with other clumps dutiable at $2.50 per thousand, thus defeating the purpose of the bill, as understood at first by the trade, to place hyacinth bulbs under that rating. The remedy in the new bill was effected by placing the word "bulbs" after the word "hyacinth" in the schedule first reported, making the duty $2.50 per thousand. It will be recalled that this phase of the old bill was the subject of the famous Breck case, which went through all the courts, the commerce court finally ruling that the items should stand as they read.

Azaleas in Two Classes.

Another important change was effected when the general term, "azaleas," was made to read "Azalea Indica" in the classification under greenhouse plants, all other azaleas being classed as nursery stock and the rate of duty for Azalea Indica being clearly fixed at twenty-five per cent ad valorem, with other azaleas left to come under unenumerated nursery stock at fifteen per cent ad valorem. The paragraph covering greenhouse stock was changed to omit the words "and all other decorative or greenhouse plants." This leaves orchids, palms and Azalea Indica at twenty-five per cent and includes all other greenhouse plants with unenumerated nursery stock to be admitted at fifteen per cent ad valorem. This removes possibility of confusion in differentiating between greenhouse and nursery stock. Before peony, the word "herbaceous" was inserted, all other peonies being classed as unenumerated nursery stock.

Evergreen Seedlings.

The most far-reaching change in the horticultural schedules was made when

To Be Admitted Free.

The horticultural free list is as follows:
Seeds—Cardamon, cauliflower, celery, coriander, cotton, cummin, fennel, fenugreek, hemp, horehound, mangelwursel, mustard, rape, St. John's bread or bean, sorghum, sugar beet and sugar cane for seed; bulbs and bulbous roots, not edible and not otherwise provided for in this section; all flower and grass seeds; coniferous evergreen seedlings, four years old or less; all the foregoing not specially provided for in this section.

ergreen seedlings," which are followed by "4 years old or less," making the phrase read, "coniferous evergreen seedlings 4 years old or less." The result is that stock which can be described in those words will continue to be admitted free as under previous tariff laws, while evergreens not seedlings, or not coniferous in character, or of an age of 5 years or more, will be dutiable at fifteen per cent ad valorem as nursery stock not otherwise provided for. This change is one long sought by a portion of the nursery trade and will be of great value to the trade and to the government. Honest importers will be relieved of unscrupulous competition, as the new phraseology will make it much easier to prevent Koster Blue spruce, kalmias, boxwood, bay trees, rhododendrons and many other items being brought in free by means of fraudulent entries as evergreen seedlings.

The addition of the words "Rosa rugosa" in the paragraph covering stocks and cuttings also will be of great assistance as specifying unmistakably the rate to be paid on this item. The government will no longer undertake to collect 4 cents each on these, and fraudulent entries of budded roses as briar roses should be less easy.

Greenhouse and Nursery Stock.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, for the committee, offered on the floor of the House the amendments that were made to the bill. Chairman William F. Gude, of the tariff committee of the Society of American Florists, pointed out to Mr. Rainey the complications that must arise through the inaccurate classification of greenhouse plants.

No Change in Seeds.

No changes were made in the seed schedule, the objectionable provision for an ad valorem duty of fifteen per cent on seeds not specially provided for being permitted to remain.

When Mr. Rainey offered the amendments to the bulb and plant schedules Representative Mann asked the occasion for making them, and Mr. Rainey replied that they had been suggested by the Treasury Department. Mr. Mann gave it as his opinion that, instead of settling disputes over classification, as Mr. Rainey declared the Treasury Department said they would do, the amendments would be apt to cause disputes.

"No," said Representative Palmer.

"The gentleman does not know the difference between dielytra and peonies," said Mr. Mann to Mr. Palmer.

"I am an expert on peonies," replied Mr. Palmer.

"What is a dielytra?" asked Mr. Mann.

the free list was reached. The word "coniferous" was inserted before "ev-

"It would take too long to educate the gentleman," was Mr. Palmer's answer.

It was at first proposed to strike out the reference to greenhouse plants in the paragraph where they with nursery stock were dutiable at fifteen per cent, but Mr. Mann objected to raising the duty to twenty-five per cent on greenhouse stock. Mr. Palmer thought it would prevent conflict at the custom house, but Mr. Mann declared that it would not, because there would be conflict whether a plant should be admitted as a greenhouse plant or as nursery stock. In the debate Mr. Mann said that he raised many plants.

Bulbs for Propagating Purposes.

Representative Humphrey, of Washington, asked that when the free list came up the committee should put in an amendment admitting free of duty Holland bulbs for propagating purposes. He said that near Bellingham, Wash., is the only place in the United States where bulbs are grown. The government has a bulb farm there and those in charge of it expect to furnish within the next few years all of the bulbs necessary for distribution by Congressmen. He said he had received many communications from people in that section declaring that if they could get bulbs for propagating free from Holland they could make bulb-growing a profitable industry.

Representative Underwood said he saw no reason why this amendment should not be made, but the committee had not had opportunity to consider it and determine the effect of such an amendment.

Representative Johnson, of Washington, read the following telegram from the Bellingham Chamber of Commerce:

"Desire tariff removed from bulbs imported for propagating purposes only; commercial bulbs to florists and greenhouses to remain as now. Impossible to start bulb-growing in Washington unless mother bulbs are admitted free. Bulbs grow nowhere in the United States except in Whatcom county, Washington. Expansion of commercial bulb industry here demands removal of tariff because present tariff precludes its possibility. Should not object to tariff being replaced in five years. We believe it is contrary to policy of government to impose tariff which will hinder new enterprises. Acceding to our request would not disturb present bulb business."

When the free list was up for adoption May 5 Representative Humphrey proposed a new paragraph to place on the free list bulbs for use exclusively for the purpose of propagation, but it failed.

The earlier propagated plants from leaf cuttings should not be neglected, but be given a shift before the roots get matted around the sides of the pots. Do not give them too heavy a soil. They thrive best in a compost containing considerable flaky leaf-mold. As much of this as of loam should be used and a good dash of sand should be added to help keep it porous. It is evident that Lorraines are going to be much less grown this season, the large specialists growing Cincinnati much more heavily than a year ago. This is not surprising, as the retailers practically tabooed the old variety last season and wanted nothing but Cincinnati.

Rambler Roses.

The finest rambler roses for early forcing are those which are pot-grown through the summer. If these have been overlooked, it is not yet too late to secure some plants which have been held in cold storage. Pot them up and get stout canes for forcing next winter. Ram the soil in the pots firmly and cut down the shoots to within two or three inches of the pot. Quite a crop of new shoots will start from the base, especially in the case of the pink varieties, such as Lady Gay and Dorothy Perkins. Some of these should be rubbed out, leaving five or six to each plant as a maximum, but three or four will suffice. Keep these roses under glass for some time. When placed outdoors, plunge them to the brims in rich soil. Let them root through the pots all they want. Keep them well watered and they will make some splendid canes before fall.

Poinsettias.

If poinsettias have not yet been started, it is time to do so. Cut back the canes somewhat, as the plants will then break more vigorously. Do not water too freely, or some of the plants are likely to rot. It is better not to place the poinsettias in too warm a house, as this makes the shoots soft. In a moderately cool house, nice, stocky cuttings are produced, and these, taken off while quite short, with a heel, will root without much trouble. Shoots, however, which have been allowed to get too long and have to be cut below a leaf are more liable to damp off unless great care is exercised in watering and shading.

Primula Obconica.

It is too late now to sow seeds of this popular primrose, Primula obconica, and have it in 6-inch to 8-inch pots, as is easily possible with the early sown seeds, but nice, usable plants in 5-inch pots can be had by making a sowing right away. After all, there is fully as much money in these smaller plants as in the big fellows. Small plants can be easily made up into pans, selecting plants of the same shade of color. Keep the pans containing the seed well shaded, to prevent drying out. At this season, when the temperature from solar heat is steadily increasing, there is more probability of failures in germination of primulas than when cooler climatic conditions exist.

Port Clinton, O.—Shirly Woner is building an addition to his greenhouses and will use the new space for the growing of tomato plants. He will grow these on a large scale for the Gypsum Canning Co.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Canterbury Bells.

A common mistake is made by many growers in sowing the seed of these beautiful biennials, Canterbury bells, too late. Every year we find growers sowing toward the last of July or even later, and expecting the plants to bloom strongly the next season. A small proportion will probably do so, but they will never equal the earlier sown ones. Canterbury bells are handsome border plants, but are even finer in pots, when grown cool and given the necessary space for their proper development. Some are each year seen at Easter, but never of the quality obtainable later in the season. Nice plants may be had in 7-inch or 8-inch pots, but specimens in 12-inch and 14-inch pots or tubs, nicely staked out, make all observers take their hats off to the growers. Yet these are not difficult to grow as compared with many other plants.

The grower who can hit Memorial day with a batch of these Canterbury bells will make money on them, as they are splendid for bouquet work, as well as valuable in pots. To get good plants for flowering next year, sow the seed at once, then transplant into flats and later plant outdoors in well manured ground, allowing twelve inches between the plants and twenty-four inches between the rows. For pot culture, dig up and pot about the middle of October. The singles are better for pot culture, and also for cutting, than either the double or hose-in-hose varieties.

Snapdragons.

The grower who wants a fall crop of snapdragons must lose no time in rooting some cuttings, or if he has no stock of such varieties as the general buying public wants, he should get some of a taking color from one of the specialists in these charming and increasingly popular plants. Cuttings rooted now and set out in strawberry boxes, as one good grower advises, sinking these overhead in the rows, can be lifted with a good ball in August when the time for planting indoors arrives. Of course, they can be successfully lifted without any ball, but a great deal more care is necessary. Another good plan is to set the plants in 4-inch paper pots, sinking these in the soil. The pots will be pretty well decayed at lifting time, but will permit the snapdragons to be taken up with a better ball.

Lorraine and Cincinnati Begonias.

There is still time in which to take cuttings of Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias and secure nice, salable stock in 4-inch and 5-inch pots or pans next fall. The old stock plants are now starting to grow freely and some good, succulent cuttings are obtainable. There is usually a surplus of the larger sizes of these begonias at Thanksgiving and Christmas and a deficiency in the supply of the smaller plants. The cuttings will root quite easily now, where they can have some bottom heat.

Planting Out Asters for Seed at the Farm of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.

PLANTING ASTERS FOR SEED.

When one firm finds it necessary to employ nineteen men, a number of boys and sixteen horses in planting asters for seed, some new idea of the extent of the aster industry may be obtained. That is what James Vick's Sons, at Rochester, N. Y., do in the spring, and the accompanying illustration shows a part of their force engaged in planting fifty acres with aster plants. The illustration pictures, by a singular coincidence, just thirteen men and thirteen horses at work in the field. There were six more men, some boys and three more horses at work elsewhere when the picture was taken. The view gives an excellent idea of the method used in planting for seed on a wholesale scale, and how rapidly the work may be accomplished may be readily understood.

If only a fairly good harvest of aster seed is secured from the fifty acres planted, it would furnish seed sufficient to set a border of asters on every state line in the United States. It is estimated that the field will grow a single row of aster plants over 35,000 miles long.

Mr. Coleman combines all branches of the business, growing vegetables as well as plants and cut flowers.

SCIENCE AND HORTICULTURE.

[Extracts from a paper by Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass., read before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston.]

Is a more scientific training for those engaged in the practice of horticulture desirable, or is it not? My answer is emphatically in the affirmative. The profession of horticulture is on the verge of a great change along these lines of technical training, and, as a straw indicating the way the wind is beginning to blow, we were told at one of the greatest agricultural and horticultural colleges in the country that the services of every student were engaged at good salaries some months in advance of the date of graduation, and that almost daily applications were coming in for trained men to take charge of estates, of orchards and of various forms of government work. And the sad thing about this is, that few of these men are fit to take the various charges thrust upon them, but more of this later.

Contempt for Scientific Training.

There has been and is now—though to a less extent than formerly, perhaps—an attitude of indifference and even contempt on the part of most practical men toward anything that smacks of science or technical training. This is the same kind of prejudice that formerly existed toward all forms of labor-saving machinery. Sometimes we do not wonder at this attitude when we visit the horticultural colleges or if we happen to hire some of the graduates, but that does not prove the idea of scientific training to be wrong, only that the attempt to put it into practice has been poorly done.

As a little illustration of the prejudice referred to, if I am correctly informed, even among the enlightened members of this club it was boldly asserted that a botanist and a good grower were two incompatible objects, and recently the strictly scientific method of attuning the ear to slight gradations of sound indicating the moisture condition of a potted plant was held up to ridicule and withering scorn.

Every Good Grower a Scientist.

The trouble is that there has been a misunderstanding of what this word science stands for; it means, as I apprehend it, merely "knowledge reduced to a system," and surely no one has any quarrel with knowledge reduced to a system; every good grower is a scientist, whether he knows it or not.

I know of no class of men who could be more helped in their daily problems by a scientific training than gardeners and florists. Not a day but they are confronted with some new or old fungoid disease, some parasite preying upon their plants; or it may be trouble with

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Convention City Notes.

A meeting of the advisory board was held, with all the members of the committee present. C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, and John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., were also in attendance. The general situation regarding the trade exhibit was reviewed and plans were laid out whereby the exhibitors in the trade section would be given sufficient space by widening the aisles more than has been done in past exhibitions of this kind. Both the Auditorium and the Coliseum are magnificent, large, light halls, and all the exhibition space will be on the ground floors.

All materials for structural work will be placed in the Coliseum. At no previous convention have there been such favorable opportunities to make displays. The fact that the "outing" day will be the fifth of the convention will give the trade people another day for business without having any event to distract the attention.

But the most impressive thing was the wonderful work that had been accomplished by Theodore Wirth and others in Minneapolis, in conjunction with the outdoor plant exhibition. Adjacent to the Armory, where the convention will be held, the surroundings of the outdoor exhibit are naturally beautiful and it behooves the growing interests to give every support to this laudable undertaking, this being the first time when, by arrangement, the society is in a position to guarantee the plantsmen that their exhibits will be cared for and grown on under every favorable condition, having the constant attention of competent help who will be under the supervision of Mr. Wirth.

Everything is ready for immediate planting, but, as the space is limited, application for it should be made at once to Secretary John Young, who is superintendent of the trade exhibition. He will forward applications immediately to Mr. Wirth.

This outdoor plant exhibit will be a success and will be one of the features of future conventions. The price of space is nominal—only sufficient to cover the expense of planting and maintenance of the plants during the season.

Outdoor plant exhibits must be shipped, charges prepaid, to Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn. John Young, Sec'y.

Traer, Ia.—Curtis Thomas has purchased materials for a new greenhouse, to take the place of the house that was recently damaged by a storm. He will also use part of the framework of the wrecked structure in the erection of two smaller houses.

NEMATODES IN SOIL.

I received your letter saying you could not find any insect life in the soil I sent you. The insects were in the soil before I put it in the box; what became of them I do not know. I am sending you another sample and I know positively that there are insects in the box now; whether they will get out of the package before it reaches you is another matter. C. P.

The only insect life found in the soil was a considerable number of nematodes. The well known disease, root-knot, is caused by these nematodes. Most of the ornamental and greenhouse plants are more or less subject to root-knot. The rapid multiplication of nematodes is favored by a certain degree of warmth, loose-textured soil, moisture and food supply.

The most efficient method for the control of nematodes in greenhouses and seed beds is the use of live steam. However, if the use of steam is impracticable, the old, infested soil may be entirely removed and the benches thoroughly cleaned out. Then soil which has been allowed to lie through the winter in a place where it has been exposed to freezing and thawing or drying, may be put in its place. Nematodes will not resist alternate freezing and thawing, so that the new soil put in the benches will be free from nematodes.

Old, infested soil may be treated with a solution of formaldehyde, in the proportions of one part commercial formaldehyde to 100 parts of water, and the soil allowed to dry out for one to two weeks before using again.

WHITE FLY ON FUCHSIAS.

Enclosed you will find some leaves of my fuchsias, with some insects on them. Please give me the formula for an insecticide that will destroy them.

T. F.

The fuchsia foliage is smothered with white fly. To get absolute control of this is difficult, outside of the use of hydrocyanic acid gas. Spraying with soap and water is a partial remedy and is favored by those who are afraid to use the gas. If you have a mixed assortment of plants there will, of course, be danger of some being injured by the gas, but a light dose, properly applied, will do a minimum of harm provided the nights selected for fumigation are cool.

If you want to use the gas, secure some cyanide of potassium, ninety-eight per cent pure; also some sulphuric acid. You will also need some stone jars, as the acid would eat away any metal ones. The length of your house, multiplied by the breadth and this again multiplied by the average height, will give the space in cubic feet. Select a cool evening for fumigating. Be sure all ventilators are tight. Stand the jars twenty-five or thirty feet apart, or farther apart than this if the house is narrow. Divide the materials into portions for the jars, according to the area and the number of jars to be used. For each 3,000 cubic feet use one and one-fourth ounces of cyanide, two and one-fourth ounces sulphuric acid and three and one-half ounces water. Place the water first in the jars; then add the sulphuric acid; then start at one end of the house and drop in the cyanide, wrapped in oil paper. Walk toward the exit, dropping in the cyanide as you go. Lock the door securely and allow no one to enter until morning.

Bird's-eye View of Garden for S. A. F. Outdoor Plant Exhibits.

The gas is deadly to all human beings, as well as to all forms of animal life. The house can be entered with safety in the morning and should then be ventilated and sprayed over. Two applications may be necessary to clean out the white fly completely. C. W.

OBITUARY.

Ernest Fischer.

Ernest Fischer died April 29, at his home in Sharon, Pa., after an extended illness. He is survived by his wife and two grown children. He was for many years in business in Pittsburgh, with greenhouses at Castle Shannon, which are now conducted by Henry Meuschke. Later he started the South Hills Floral Co., but after several years he sold his interest in the business and for the last four years he had been a member of the firm of Fischer & Scheick, Sharon, Pa., where they purchased the greenhouses and store formerly owned by M. I. O'Brien. Mr. Fischer was well and favorably known by all the trade in his vicinity. He was always energetic in business and was a good grower. He commanded the respect of all who knew him.

Clarke.

Christopher J. Hess.

Christopher J. Hess, an old resident of Chicago, passed away recently at his home, 12220 Stewart avenue. He had just returned from Florida, where he had spent the winter. He was a grower of seeds, asparagus, etc., and also of greenhouse plants, although he had other larger interests. In his quiet genial way he made many friends in all walks of life. He is survived by his wife and three sons.

Chas. P. Baender.

Chas. P. Baender, one of the oldest residents of Melrose, Cal., died suddenly at his home April 29. He had conducted a general nursery at Fruitvale for over twenty years and was well known to the trade. He was a native of Germany and 73 years old. He leaves a widow and six sons and daughters. Mr. Baender was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the funeral was conducted under its auspices May 1, the interment being in Evergreen cemetery, at Fruitvale, Cal.

John S. Haynes.

John S. Haynes, of Lowell, Mass., died May 3, by his own act. Mr. Haynes was found in a small workshop attached to his greenhouse next to his residence. It is said that no direct cause for the act is known, although he had been despondent since the death of his wife about five years ago.

Mr. Haynes was born in Cambridge-shire, England, and was 57 years of age. For over twenty years he had conducted a florists' shop at the corner of Gorham and Cosgrove streets, in Lowell. He was well and favorably known in that city and his kind deeds, both in his business and social life, had made him many friends. He was a member of the United Workmen, Lowell lodge No. 22, and was an attendant at the Gorham Street Methodist church. He leaves to mourn his death, one son, William G., of Lowell, three brothers and one sister in England.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

St. Paul, Minn.—O. R. Eckhardt Co., wholesale florists, have removed to 318 Minnesota street.

Portland, Me.—A $1,500 greenhouse is being erected for Philip G. Brown, at 85 Vaughan street.

Sparta, Ill.—H. O. Clendenin thinks it about the last straw that he should be laid up with the mumps while the spring business is in full swing.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Henry Young, of this city, and Miss Clara Bleeke, of Decatur, Ind., were married April 28 and went to New York on their wedding trip.

Sterling, Ill.—Mr. Koopman, florist for the International Harvester Co., is again at work on the ornamental plots of the company, which make Main street attractive in the summer.

Lenox, Mass.—A small fire in the furnace room of John Sloane's greenhouse, April 20, brought out the fire department, and the blaze was extinguished before much damage resulted.

Watertown, Wis.—Loeffler & Benke are said to have shipped 450,000 violets to the Milwaukee market in the season now closed, besides quantities of sweet peas, which still are blooming. Some of the peas went to Chicago.

Richmond Hill, Ont.—At a public meeting in Masonic hall, April 11, a resolution was adopted petitioning the council to grant a loan of $5,000 to Mr. Lawrence, to enable him to rebuild his greenhouse, which was wrecked in the storm of March 28. It is proposed to permit Mr. Lawrence to pay the amount back to the city without interest at the rate of $1,000 a year, after the first five years.

Columbus, O.—Frederick M. Brownell, decorator for the Livingston Seed Co., was interviewed recently by a newspaper reporter with reference to Mothers' day, and the report of the interview occupied about three-quarters of a column in the issue of the newspaper for May 1. In his talk Mr. Brownell made the fact clear that the exclusive use of white carnations for the occasion, or the exclusive use of any other one kind or color of flowers, would be both impracticable and inappropriate.

Albuquerque, N. M.—G. Shaw becomes the owner of the Albuquerque Floral Co., Judge Reynolds having directed Receiver R. S. Elwood to sell the property to him. Mr. Shaw was the highest bidder, offering to pay $2,500 in cash, to assume a mortgage for $4,500, held by the First National bank, and to execute a mortgage for $2,000 on the property, due in two years, according to Mr. Elwood's petition to the court for authority to sell. The stockholders of the company adopted a resolution asking Mr. Elwood to obtain authority from the court to make the sale to Mr. Shaw. The property includes four acres, with 20,000 feet of glass, well stocked.

Iola, Kan.—A. H. Pecklers has contracted with the Bixley Fruit Co. to plant 50,000 tomato plants and expects to increase the number to 85,000. Mr. Pecklers has 15,000 cabbage plants and 50,000 celery plants coming on.

Union Hill, N. J.—Henry Schmidt has purchased the place of the late Charles Zarembo, on Church lane, and will have facilities to considerably enlarge his business. His postoffice address will continue to be Weehawken, as he will be at the old place until the lease expires.

Irondequoit, N. Y.—Fire damaged the greenhouses of Almon J. Warren and F. G. Smallbridge, vegetable growers, on the night of April 16, causing a loss of about $8,000. Five houses were more or less affected. The families of both growers were asleep in the dwelling nearby, which was only saved by the timely warning of a neighbor, who discovered the flames.

Lansing, Mich.—The Alpha Floral Co. has let the contract to the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for the material for eight houses of the latest type, each 30x200. These are to be erected at once on a new location on Mt. Hope avenue and as soon as they are finished work is to be begun moving the old glass from River street to the recently acquired new site.

Brookline, Mass.—A. H. Wood was fined $500 by Judge King in the Norfolk Superior court, April 24, for killing Thomas Goldrop, of Cambridge, Mass., whom he found stealing his violets. Mr. Goldrop, who was shot as he attempted to make his escape after detection, was a gardener in poor circumstances and left a wife and small daughter. Mr. Wood pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and Judge King waived sentence and imposed the fine instead, in deference to petitions from citizens of Brookline, who asked leniency for the defendant owing to the critical condition of his wife, who is said to be dying. The judge stated in court, when imposing the fine, that he would have sent the defendant to prison but for the condition of the latter's wife.

Nazareth, Pa.—Mrs. Mary L. Geiger, widow of George R. Geiger, has filed a joint suit asking $20,000 damages against the Nazareth Portland Cement Co., Phoenix Portland Cement Co. and Dexter Portland Cement Co., all located within a mile of her range, which is under lease to Johnson & Garland. The lease expires in December and the firm will not renew it. Mrs. Geiger alleges that the dust from the cement plants forms a thick crust on her 20,000 feet of glass, keeping out the sun and stunting the growth of the plants to such an extent that they mature too late to be marketed at a profit. Johnson & Garland claim they can not operate the range at a profit and will locate elsewhere. Mr. Johnson has purchased a greenhouse at Bethlehem. Mr. Garland is still at the Nazareth range, but is seeking a location.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

"AN empty ice-box never sold anything; keep it filled up," says W. E. Lynch.

No florist can consider himself on safe ground until he is able to discharge all his current obligations regularly each month.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

It is well to remember that it is not wholly the size of the business that determines one's standing in the trade: the methods by which the volume is obtained have an important bearing.

In the big city markets there has been a wonderful increase this season in the quantities of sweet peas handled. They have sold well, although at prices averaging considerably below those returned to the growers in other years.

WHERE it isn't known as Mrs. Taft the rose almost always is called "Bulgaria," perhaps because of the popular color fad and perhaps because it is easier than Bulgare to pronounce. Anyway, it scarcely ever is called Antoine Rivoire.

THE way the retailers have taken up the Mothers' day suggestions in The Review of April 24 insures another big advance for the day this year. Write The Review May 12 telling what you did to boost Mothers' day and how it affected sales.

It is unfortunate that in the minds of some men the question of the quality of certain lots of stock depends on whether they are buying or selling. Too many think stock they would not buy is good enough to sell, not pausing to consider the damage done their standing. The advertiser who sends out stock he would not buy cannot hope for a repeat order. If it is done habitually, sooner or later he will find himself out of business through the difficulty of finding any further customers.

THE editor of The Review has received an invitation to become a life member (fee $151) of the Luther Burbank Society, chartered by the state of California. Membership privileges include, among other things, the right to receive one complete twelve-volume set of the works of Luther Burbank—3,840 pages—and a card of admission to the Luther Burbank experiment farms at Santa Rosa, entitling the member to the freedom of the grounds and a full explanation of the experiments being carried on. It does not appear that the application blank enclosed is non-transferable and, since the editor cannot accept, he will gladly forward it to P. O'Mara, if that gentleman's invitation has failed to reach him.

MORE TROUBLE BREWING.

A bill was introduced in the House of Representatives, at Washington, April 28, which, if it becomes a law, will make all kinds of trouble, especially for such houses as those at Springfield, O., and West Grove, Pa., that do an enormous business in mailing plants. The present law calls for the use of the inspection certificate in connection with all mail shipments of nursery stock, and that would seem to be enough. The proposed measure is as follows:

A BILL

To provide for the inspection of any parcel sent by mail which contains fruit, plants, trees, shrubs, nursery stock, grafts, scions, peach, plum, almond, or the pits of other fruits, cotton seed or vegetables at point of delivery in any post office of the United States that requests such inspection and where the requisite inspectors are provided by the states to perform such service.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall be unlawful for any postmaster or postal clerk to receive any parcel containing fruit, plants, trees, shrubs, nursery stock, grafts, scions, peach, plum, almond, or the pits of other fruits, cotton seed or vegetables to be sent by mail except that the same be plainly labeled, which label shall not only give the character of the parcel, but also the name of the person who produced it and place where grown, if possible; also the name of the sender. It shall also be unlawful for any postmaster or postal clerk to deliver at any post office in any state any parcel containing fruit, plants, trees, shrubs, nursery stock, grafts, scions, peach, plum, almond, or the pits of other fruits, cotton seed or vegetables until the same has been inspected by a regularly appointed fruit inspector provided by the state, and it shall be the duty of the postal officers to appraise said fruit inspectors of the presence of such parcels. It shall also be unlawful for any postmaster or postal clerk to deliver such parcel until it is released by such regularly appointed fruit inspector, who certifies that it is free from injurious insects and injurious fungi. In case any state desires inspection at destination, it shall be divided into a reasonable number of inspection districts, to be determined by the joint action of the Agricultural Department and the state authorities, and that in each of such inspection districts there shall be designated a point of inspection, and that all nursery stock coming through the mails shall be routed through such inspection point and there subject to inspection prior to reshipment to destination, and in this case, immediately after inspection, the parcel shall be carefully rewrapped and remailed to the consignee in case it is free from pests, and otherwise treated and destroyed as the state officials shall direct.

The bill was referred to the committee on agriculture.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The local market is much easier than it has been for the last three weeks and prices have fallen all along the line. Roses are in extremely large supply and fine stock can be had in quantity at moderate prices. The demand has been fairly strong for the season, but clean-up sales have been possible only at buyer's offer. Cooler weather and the approach of Mothers' day, it is hoped, will strengthen the rose market.

Carnations have been good property, but at the close of last week and the opening of the present one prices were distinctly easier. May 2 one house shipped 28,000 on a department store order. A stiff market for white is assured for the close of the week, and a fair market for colors, as Mothers' day orders are heavy. The supply of white is practically booked up to the anticipated cut. The quality of the stock has been impaired by unseasonably warm weather. Enchantress especially seems to be soft.

Bright weather has prevailed and Beauties have been cut more freely in the last week than for the ten days previous. The quality in some cases is not so good as the ones that were

HERE'S WHERE YOU CAN GET BUTTERFLY THE FINEST OF ALL SWEET PEAS

THESE are the true spring-blooming Spencers, and it is the same stock that made such a big hit with the trade last season—really, if YOU use our Butterfly Peas and “the other fellow” uses ANY others, you will find them the biggest advertisement you have had in many a day. We have large supplies of fancy, long-stemmed Butterfly Peas in White, Pink and Lavender; moderate supplies of several other colors. Order some today. They ship well.

FANCY ROSES

Our Stock Has a National Reputation

To be known as handling Amling's Roses means that your store has the reputation of handling the best quality stock. You will find also that our Roses carry larger and finer heads, length for length of stem, than any you have had from other sources. We have a full line. Special attention should be called to our Mrs. Ward. There is no other Rose in such strong demand. We have the largest supply to be found anywhere in America.

BEAUTIES

None Better Ever to Be Had

Our Beauties are famous all over the country—there never are any better Beauties than Amling's, and the steadiness of our supply is as notable as is its quality. The spring crop is just coming on, and these are about the best Beauties of the year. They are trade-builders. Use them.

SNAPDRAGON

Something Your Trade Will Like

Any retailer who has a call for out-of-the-ordinary work should use our Snapdragon. When this stock is used by a man who knows how, it never fails to make a hit. Long stems, beautifully flowered. Can supply other colors, but are especially strong on pink, the true Killarney shade. It works up splendidly. Put a vase of it in your show window and listen to the comments. It will sell.

CARNATIONS

Consider Quality Before Price

At this season of the year the wise buyer will give quality even more careful consideration than in cooler weather. With Carnations it is especially true that it is what you get and not what you pay that determines value. Amling's Carnations will give you best satisfaction, especially if you order the better grades.

EASTER LILIES

You Always Can Get Them Here

You can get here all the Lilies you need, for work and for decorations. We have arranged for a large spring crop, the first of which is just coming in. A steady supply.

cut a fortnight ago, when the crops were on in full. Nevertheless there are plenty of good ones to be had, and for these the wholesalers can realize only fair returns. Local lilacs have arrived on the heels of the first from the downstate shippers, but there is no great demand for this usually popular spring flower. Much of the stock is too poor to sell at any price. Snapdragon is plentiful and is moving fairly well. The first peonies have arrived, Old Red, and by the end of the week this flower will begin to be a market factor. Spanish iris is in big supply, so much above demand that the wholesalers cannot clean up and have much trouble making a satisfactory average; returns are much below last year. Easter lilies are almost in oversupply and there are more than enough callas to meet the demand. Valley is in the usual request and the prices hold firm. Sweet peas are arriving in tens of thousands and they naturally command no advanced figures. The heat hurt the color last week, but otherwise they are fine. The Butterfly peas are now in good supply and are selling well, but in the week preceding May 6 there was scarcely anything that cleaned up at full prices. Even cattleyas are more plentiful, the first locally grown gigas having made their appearance this week. When these are abundant it makes it difficult to sell other varieties. Bulbous stock continues to come in abundantly. There are many tulips, but they are not especially good and sell cheaply. Jonquils, on the other hand, are fine, but the season of best demand has passed. Poets sell better, if at low prices, as not so many are seen.

Various Notes.

April was an unusually favorable month for cut flower production. The mean temperature was 3 degrees above normal, while the hours of sun were sixty-nine per cent of the possible, a full nine per cent more than the average for April. The rainfall was only about two-thirds the normal for the month.

The Chicago Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting at the Union, Thursday evening, May 8. Secretary E. C. Toepel announces that, in addition to reports of committees, Prof. McMillan, entomologist, of Urbana, will be present to talk on insects. President French asks for a large attendance.

The American Express Co., at Batavia, forty miles from town, receipted for nine big boxes of roses, Beauties, carnations, lilies, etc., at a little before three o'clock May 3. Although O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., kept the city store open until 9 o'clock and did a lot of telephoning, delivery was not tendered until the following morning, when the shipment was refused with the statement that a claim for $400 would be filed. May 5 the shipment was accepted for sale for the company's account.

N. J. Wietor says that the reports that are coming from country customers indicate that Mothers' day will show another big advance this year.

Oscar Mangelson, who for eight years has been rose grower for Emil Buettner, at Park Ridge, has formed a partnership with Ernest Hedstrom, foreman for Brant & Noe, and the two have purchased a farm near Cadillac, Mich. They will close the deal in a few days and expect to at once begin working the property.

for ten weeks' stocks this season has been due to the low quality of the flowers. Few really good stocks have been seen.

At the office of the Chicago Carnation Co., A. T. Pyfer, secretary of the Cook County Florists' Association, states that the publicity committee, headed by P. Pearson, is going ahead with the plan of street car advertising discussed at the last meeting. All the florists in town shortly will be given an opportunity to subscribe to a fund that it is hoped will reach $5,400, to pay for cards for a year in 1,500 cars. No individual is to be mentioned in the advertising.

Mrs. W. E. Lynch and daughter went to Hatfield, Mass., May 5 to spend the summer at the old home. Mr. Lynch expects to follow a few weeks later.

Nothing but the memory of the S. A. F. convention here now remains, for "Finis" was written at a love feast the general committee gave at the Union May 1, at which eighteen committeemen and two guests, John Young and C. E. Critchell, were present. Presentations were made to some of the most active workers and everybody made a speech. August Poehlmann presided.

Kennicott Bros. Co. reports the arrival of the first peonies, from Sarcxie, Mo., May 3. Carbondale is expected to ship heavily by the end of the present week.

Gus Ehrhardt, the Park Ridge grower, found an 8-year-old girl wandering in his vicinity April 22 and his family cared for her until the police could locate her parents.

W. W. Randall, traveler for the A. L. Randall Co., went northwest May 5 after a week at home following a trip of fourteen weeks on the Pacific coast. He says he and spring traveled together from San Diego to Seattle and thence east into the mountain country.

O. W. Frese, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., reports inquiries from as far east as New York city for carnations for Mothers' day.

Spanish iris is in larger supply than ever before, according to O. A. Tonner, who adds that four growers are shipping heavily to this one house.

Peter Reinberg has made more money on Richmond this season than on any other rose. He has cut in quantity all winter and, because others have had few Richmonds, the price has averaged decidedly above what any other variety brought.

C. A. Samuelson again is devoting his entire time to business, after a term of service on the April grand jury.

Members of the local trade were pleased to find A. L. Vaughan back at his desk May 5, practically recovered from the attack of rheumatism which has prevented his daily appearance at the store. Two weeks spent at the Sacred Heart sanitarium, in Milwaukee, has sufficed to put him back in fighting trim, although the siege has left him minus a few pounds.

ket. The steady progress of the firm has been watched with much satisfaction by the trade, as Charles Erne was eighteen years with E. H. Hunt and Fred Klingel was also connected with John Kruchten and other wholesalers and both were well and favorably known. Mr. Klingel was also celebrating the first birthday of his twin girls.

According to John F. Kidwell, "the usual spring supply of stock is on hand, probably not so heavy as in former years, for the demand has held pace with the supply right along."

Sinner Bros., M. C. Gunterberg, Frank Beu, H. C. Blewitt and A. E. Hunt & Co. are now nicely settled in their new quarters with H. Wittbold, at 56 East Randolph street.

C. L. Washburn says June 1 will find thirteen houses of the new Greggs Station plant completed if the promises of the contractors hold good. Four are already finished, while the benches are being placed in four others. The other five are well along. They all measure 28x200.

Sidney Buchbinder says the first day of May brought three rush orders for refrigerators. One was for Peter Samuelson, on West Chicago avenue, and another was purchased by George Kasper, who will start a flower shop at 4005 West Twenty-sixth street. The third was from Walter Butler, of Pleasant Ridge, O.

A. Dietsch arrived home from the south May 4 and is feeling much stronger. Mr. Dietsch spent several weeks in Florida and, on his way home, stopped a week at Lookout Mountain, Tenn. He was accompanied by his daughter.

Street car cards bearing a clock dial with the hands pointing to 11 and 12 have created quite a little favorable comment. These cards are another phase of the retail advertising campaign of the Geo. Wittbold Co. The clock hands point to the 'phone number, Graceland 1112.

Miss Mamie Jacobs, well known in musical circles, has accepted a position as secretary to F. Jerome, of the American Importing Co.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The trend of the wholesale cut flower market has been downward during the last week. The extremely hot weather added seriously to the depression. For early May no such temperature has been experienced here in a long time. The official thermometers registered 90 degrees May 3. Roses, especially, showed the effects of the heat, which has not abated, and another dull week is anticipated.

The retail business last week was satisfactory. Many notable weddings, dinners and funerals kept the majority of retail houses busy, and there was little complaining. The quality of all roses is naturally deteriorating. American Beauties seem especially to feel the strain. Prices for Beauties are falling and in quantities these and other varieties can be bought far below the regular quotations. There is now an oversupply of Killarneys, Maids and Marylands. The clean-up on these varieties is made at heavy concessions. Carnations have held up fairly well in price, doubtless in anticipation of Mothers' day, when a wide demand and steady quotations at good figures are assured. Some good stock of the novelties reaches the market daily. Valley is abundant, and prices are lower. Longiflorum also took a drop, and 6 cents is the top price at present. Callas joined the procession downward. Outdoor-grown lilac is already a drug and every wholesale house is overrun with it. There is an abundance of tulips, stocks, sweet peas and spring flowers of every kind, and plenty of gladioli, iris, narcissi, daffodils and daisies for all requirements. Gardenias are not up to the mark in quality and sell slowly. There are more cattleyas arriving than the market can digest with profit to growers and the surplus at times is unprecedented. Important weddings announced for this week are expected to relieve the situation.

Various Notes.

Mothers' day, Sunday, May 11, and the Saturday preceding promise everywhere to be red letter days to the trade, especially to those retailers having the enterprise to feature the celebration as it deserves. Many are already using the suggestions of The Review in judicious advertising, and in letters, circulars and appropriate window decoration, impressing the public with the significance of the anniversary.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held May 12, at its rooms in the Grand Opera House building. This will be International Show evening, with a program of especial interest to the club members. A decision may be reached as to the wisdom of repeating the exhibition in 1914.

George Cotsonas & Co. now occupy the whole building at 127 West Twenty-eighth street.

Herman Weiss has moved his headquarters to 54 West Twenty-eighth street.

M. A. Bowe's most elaborate order last week was both church and house decorations for the McAlpine-Irwin wedding, at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church. American Beauties, dogwood and snapdragon were used without stint in the work, and the decoration was considered one of the most elaborate of the season.

Peter F. McKenney, at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, has had some notable dinner decorations recently at Delmonico's.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold its next exhibition May 10 and 11, at the Museum building in Bronx park. Liberal prizes are offered for the best collections of herbaceous plants, shrubs and trees, tulips, narcissi, gladioli, wild flowers, pelargoniums and calceolarias. The council of the society will meet May 10 at 3 o'clock. Dr. M. A. Howe will give a lecture on "Some Pacific Coast Seaweeds." Geo. V. Nash will escort visitors over the grounds at 5 o'clock.

Arbor day in New York state was May 2. Brooklyn, especially, was enthusiastic and demonstrative in its celebration. The New York park commissioner is planting over 500 pin oaks on Broadway, from One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street to One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, at a cost of $9,000, paying $5 for each tree.

The Market.

Flowers are accumulating and clearances are not easily made. There is really no scarcity in any line. We have had some exceedingly warm weather and this has caused the deterioration in quality, while demand has been far from brisk. Roses are in heavy oversupply and large quantities are handled by the street fakers. Some excellent long-stemmed Beauties and Russells are seen, and the demand has been fair for Tafts and the yellow varieties. The hot weather has hit the carnations badly and quality is on the down grade. Top-notch flowers may realize $3, but many go down at one-third this price or even less.

The supply of narcissi of the yellow trumpet section is about over, but there are plenty of ornatus and medium trumpet flowers. Tulips are still plentiful, but there is little call for them. Spanish iris is good, and quite a few gladioli, such as Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride, are coming in. Valley is in oversupply, and so are lilies, callas and stocks.

Marguerites, which generally sell well, are hard to move, and only the best selected snapdragons sell well.

MOTHS IN GREENHOUSE.

Kindly tell me what is good to kill little brown moths in the greenhouse. They lay their eggs under the geranium leaves and hatch out little green worms, which eat holes in the leaves. Will tobacco smoke kill them? We would use gas. My house is 20x60 feet and about twelve feet from the floor to the ridge. What proportion of cyanide and acid should I use to kill them? I am growing mixed stock. H. B. & S.

the moths referred to. Hydrocyanic acid gas is much more certain to be effective, but even with the greatest of care some plants in such a mixed collection as you probably carry may suffer some little injury. Still, by selecting a cool night for applying the gas, and letting the temperature run pretty low in the house, there will not be much damage done.

For a house such as yours, containing 5,000 cubic feet or thereabouts, use two store jars. In each jar place three ounces of water, then add two ounces of sulphuric acid and later drop into each one ounce of cyanide of potas-

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The strength of the market so late in the season as the first week in May is gratifying. Carnations are particularly strong, fine whites bringing high prices readily, while all good carnations are in demand. Some say there are fewer flowers, owing to the open winter; others that the cool weather, now past for the time being, has encouraged buying, while others assert that the publicity campaign is bearing fruit. Roses have not fared so well. The supply has been enormous since the arrival of the warm wave, yet even roses have done better than usual at this time. Beauties have been in strong demand at fair prices, while white roses have also had good support. The Spencer, or orchid-flowering, or Butterfly sweet peas have arrived. They bring advanced prices. Good sweet peas of the wintering sorts are still having an excellent season. Peonies from the south are here; in fact, the early red officinalis is already over. Festiva Maxima and several good whites and pinks are in their prime. Both the large-flowered and the baby gladioli are features of the market. Cornflower from indoors has come. Snapdragon is arriving in large numbers. Of the finer flowers, cattleyas and valley have been in good demand, but gardenias are not often wanted.

Florists' Club Meets.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting May 6. After reading the minutes of the preceding meeting, Secretary Rust read a transportation communication on the route to be used in going to the convention at Minneapolis in August. Edward Reid urged an early decision, in order to give delegates time to make arrangements and secure desirable accommodations.

Adolph Farenwald's paper on "Affiliation" was followed closely and heartily applauded at the finish. Wallace R. Pierson spoke on advertising possibilities as seen by the editor of a New York paper. Robert Pyle addressed the members on the importance of helping the intelligent amateur. Charles Henry

PEONIES

So far the season is about two weeks ahead of last year and if it continues so, it will mean plenty of Peonies for Memorial Day, not the poor quality early ones but the choicest varieties—Festiva Maxima and that kind. Order now. The probable price will be $8.00 to $10.00 per 100. Some of the choice novelties are coming now from our Southern growers—$10.00 and $12.00 per 100.

Fox praised the National Flower Show at New York. Mr. Pierson asked if Philadelphia members would support a show here and Mr. Fox said he thought they would. The meeting favored the proposition to hold the next National Flower Show in this city. A committee was appointed to ask the park commission to install a rose garden in Fairmount park.

The Use of the Pansy.

I am indebted to Paul Berkowitz for a little bit of information that may be of interest. Mr. Berkowitz says that Henry Penn, the well known Boston florist, makes up beautiful baskets of cut flowers, using pansies in combination with other flowers. The difficulty with the pansy has been that it is frail and easily wilts, rendering it unsafe to use in this way. Mr. Penn solves the problem by putting little glass tubes in the moss with which the baskets are filled. These tubes, placed at different heights to give variety, are filled with water, then paper-covered, and a pansy is slipped into each. The other flowers and greens are inserted in the moss in the usual way. Some beautiful effects are obtained by these pansy combinations.

The Demonstrating Room.

John P. Habermehl led the way to a second story room immediately over the flower shop in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. The room was well lighted and cheerful, commanding a view of Walnut street from its bay-window. It was handsomely furnished, contained large portfolios, an easel, pictures, a handsome center table and a few, not too many, chairs. This room is an absolute necessity to J. J. Habermehl's Sons. Here the many wonderful—I use the word advisedly—decorations are first planned and then sketched, oftentimes in color, before they are put into execution. The host of a ball or any other form of entertainment can tell exactly how every detail will be carried out beforehand, nothing being left to chance. The business-like precision that marks all the dealings of the firm is carried into the field of decoration to the no small satisfaction of the prospective hosts at entertainments, and, I am sure, to the mutual profit of both parties in the transaction.

The Publicity Campaign.

Charles Henry Fox, chairman of the publicity committee of the Retail Florists' Association, is actively pushing educational flower and plant notices in the daily papers. The advantages of flowers as gifts, what to take home, what to send "her," the proper thing for a blonde, the proper thing for a brunette, and other matters of moment are carefully expounded. The latest effort is on Mothers' day. The attempt is being made to divert attention from the white carnation. It is sagely urged that everybody's mother is not for white carnations, so mother's favorite flower, whatever that may be, is much more appropriate to wear. Of course, if successful, this effort will remove professional heart-burnings that come from unfilled orders and advanced prices due to everybody wanting ever so many more white carnations than anybody can possibly supply.

Various Notes.

The Phipps Institute awarded its contract for outdoor decorations at Seventh and Lombard streets May 2 to the Robert Craig Co. The work, which must be completed by May 10, includes putting the grounds in order, planting evergreens, etc., and filling 100 window boxes.

Myers & Samtman, of Wyndmoor, Pa., retain their position in the van by being the first to install cars and track, with switch and turntable, for filling greenhouses with soil.

Bernard Eschner writes from Hamburg, Germany, that the city is full of snap and ginger (sweet words to the small boy when reversed), but lacking in flower stores. Mr. Eschner's advance novelties are already arriving at the establishment of the M. Rice Co.

Recent visitors include Mrs. L. H. Dundore Moore, of Lancaster, Pa., who coined the phrase, "The house of Bay-

The redress carried through for us by the S. A. The Press Bureau.

The daily press goes unchallenged when it comes out and tells the flower-buying public that prices for Easter, or other holidays, on roses and other flowers, are going to be high and that only millionaires can afford them. Such nonsense! There is where a press bureau should take hold.

Or the agitation against flowers at funerals. You all know that our business is hurt by such wrong statements, and our central press bureau would be the best and the only place to fight against it. The education on when and how to use flowers is a problem for this be taken care of by our national society. Just a few days ago I received a communication telling in what shape the tariff on plants is at the present time. In many respects it was simply ridiculous the way it was worded. This should have been taken care of by our society. Sometimes it has taken care of it through some of its most interested members, who spent their time and money to work for the interests of our profession. But we cannot always ask these men to do this without the proper recompense. This time it seems it has passed over—nobody has paid any attention to it—and this ridiculous tariff will go on for another period.

words, we have all the same interest—floriculture is our boat. It doesn't matter if one is a cut flower or a plant grower, a retailer or a commission man, our aim is to advance this boat with as little friction or damage as possible, as by this time it has grown to large proportions; in fact, so large are its proportions that it often is rubbing its sides or running into the mud. We are today in the same fix with our boat, floriculture, as the first great steamboat was, the Great Eastern, years ago. I think it was about 800 feet long, but it lacked powerful engines and steering gear to make it a success.

The Trade's Engine.

Twenty-seven years ago, when this boat of floriculture was a youngster, some of our best captains then put a new and most up-to-date set of engines and steering gear into it, called the S. A. F. It then, and for several years after, did its work well. But as this boat of floriculture has grown so large, and steering gear and engines have not increased in the same proportion, its rudder of twenty-seven years ago is not able to keep us straight, and we get bruised and run into the mud. We need larger machinery and steering gear, which means membership and money. Without larger membership and increased funds, our national society cannot do us much good along the lines I have mentioned, and others. In fact, what little the S. A. F. has done has been done mostly through the generosity and earnest desire of some of its most loyal members, at their own expense of time and money.

No Objection Whatever.

Fellow members, we have a national society, which, if properly backed up by the majority of the men in our profession, could give us splendid results. But we must not stand pat; we must all be willing to do our little share in this crusade for the regeneration of our national society. The florists' clubs all over the country are the offspring of the national society. They are all strong and in a healthy financial condition. There should be no objection whatever to giving back to our national society what is actually her due. It will strengthen, not only the S. A. F., but the florists' clubs all over the country as well. Nobody who has the least idea of the importance of our business should have any objection to paying $1.50 a year to be a member of the S. A. F. We should have no trouble whatever in making it the strongest commercial horticultural society in the world, able to take care of its members, and by so doing solving many conditions which, at the present time, are perplexing.

I know it is uphill work. President Wilson, in his last week's speech at Trenton, said: "It takes courage for a handful of men to start a battle." I hope that all of you members of the Philadelphia Florists' Club will be with me, will be that handful of loyal men to do our best to bring about a larger and more useful national society, worthy of the great cause it stands for.

florists the book will be still more useful.

Of course it is not a cyclopedia of horticulture, even on the smallest scale; it is not bulky enough to contain cultural directions or descriptions of varieties, except such descriptions as are embodied in brief definitions. It is simply a book of definitions. And it does not define the first word of varietal names, but the following words, the words that distinguish varieties from one another. For instance, in the names Asparagus plumosus and Phlox subulata, the book gives the meaning of "plumosus" (feathery or plumed), and of "subulata" (awl-shaped), as these are the words that differentiate that particular sort of asparagus and that particular sort of phlox from other varieties in the same genus. But the user of the book would hunt in it in vain for the word "asparagus" or "phlox." And, as the author states in the preface, "complimentary names of persons given to plants have been omitted."

In using the dictionary it will be helpful to bear in mind that the Latin adjectives have different endings, to correspond with the supposed gender of the plant or shrub or tree referred to. For in Latin, as in some other languages, both ancient and modern, inanimate things are not necessarily neuter, but may have any one of the three genders, masculine, feminine or neuter, for various clear or hazy reasons. In the dictionary the adjectives generally have the masculine ending, which is most frequently "us," as in "plumosus," but the word under consideration—the word that the user of the book wishes to find—may have a feminine ending, as in "plumosa" (Cocos plumosa, for example), or a neuter ending, as in "callosum" (Cypripedium callosum), or another form of the neuter ending, as in "insigne" (Cypripedium insigne). "Insigne," by the way, has a form "insignis," which is either masculine or feminine, and there are many words the masculine form of which ends in "r," as in "acer," and even with these the tiresome list of terminations is not quite terminated. Now, even if a florist is not well acquainted with these endings and does not care to seek an acquaintance with them, yet he will be able to use the book more satisfactorily if he will just remember that these pestiferous little endings really exist, and that their existence is legalized and protected, as it were, by the botanists.

their heating system; or some physical condition of their soil may bother them, or a thousand and one other things, all of which they would be able to meet and combat more intelligently if they had a fair grasp of natural causation, or the why and the wherefore of things.

Science Practically Applied.

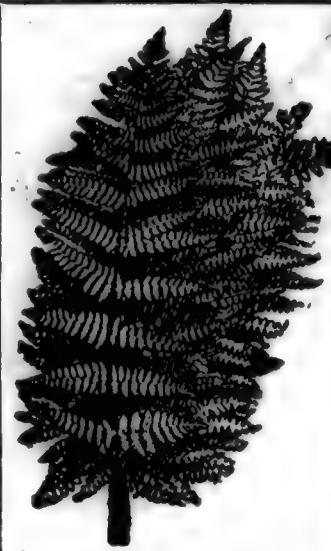

A grasp of the rudiments of plant physiology would enable the grower to treat the various diseases of his plants more intelligently and to appreciate something of what happens when a plant become too dry or too wet. A little knowledge of chemistry, so as to know the essential elements of plant nutrition and what the various commercial fertilizers contain, would enable him to buy more understandingly and might perhaps teach him that excessive nitrogen tends to luxuriant foliage at the expense of fruitfulness and floriferousness. It should help him to know the simple test with blue litmus paper as to the acidity of his soil, and might prevent him from making such mistakes as planting rhododendrons in an alkaline or limy soil. Some geological knowledge would be helpful in selecting a locality for special purposes.

A grounding in natural science would teach him that the slope or pitch of his greenhouse roof has an important bearing on the amount of light that reaches his plants and that it is these chemical rays that enable the plants to digest and utilize their food. Natural science would also show him that this most desirable slope varies with every degree of latitude that we travel, north or south, and would give him an idea of the laws governing the circulation of the water or steam in his heating apparatus, as well as the circulation of air currents in his greenhouse and the possibilities of stagnation in certain parts of it.

The Dew Point in Greenhouses.

Physics is a subject worthy of his careful study. In connection with this I was talking some few years ago with one of your members, a prominent rose grower, on the desirability of finding some easy way of getting at the dew point in greenhouses, as we were both of the opinion that cutting-bed fungus and some other diseases are the result of an overcharge of atmospheric moisture, but on my own part I failed to find means to this end, until a year or so ago I ran across an instrument called Lloyd's hygrodeik, designed in Boston and manufactured in Rochester, N. Y. This hygrodeik is nothing more than the old wet and dry bulb thermometer, with this important difference, that it is fitted with a chart and a pointer, whereby, with a few movements and readings, the dew point is easily discovered. It appears from some records which I kept during the month of May in a rose house, with ideal growing weather, that a difference of four degrees between the wet and dry bulb (the wet bulb, of course, being lowest) is about the correct amount of moisture for good growing. This gives a relative humidity of about eighty-five per cent of saturation. Comparing this with a steam-heated dwelling house, I found there the humidity was from thirty to forty per cent, which I believe is too low for good health.

Scientific Breeding.

After this slight digression, let me enumerate a few more of the advantages to be gained by scientific training. Take the matter of scientific breeding, an art of the greatest potential possibilities and better known of late as Mendelism. How many thousand carnations, for instance, have been discarded because they were single or overdouble bursters from the first cross! Yet, had these two worthless types been bred together they would have produced in a definite ratio a good proportion of the intermediate type, or florists' carnation. The same holds good in the breeding of many other kinds of plants.

Much more might be said on this overwhelmingly interesting subject of Mendel's law and the benefits that I think might be obtained from a more scientific training for gardeners and florists, but I must pass on to another phase of the subject, namely: How is this desired end to be reached? My answer is, through the horticultural colleges, but first they must be brought up to a much higher state of efficiency than at present.

Suggested Reforms in Teaching.

The first radical reform that I would suggest is, that no student should be admitted for training who has not previously had three years of practical experience, and then, having reached college, his training should take a more strictly scientific course than at present. Students should not go to colleges supported by the state to learn to prick out worked up. Further, I would separate the purely experimental from the teaching branch and this experimental branch should be responsible to a state board of horticulture, included in which should be at least three expert, practical horticulturists, who would be sure to know of all the new problems with which growers are confronted from day to day, and they should suggest to the experimenters some of the lines of work to be carried on. Beyond all this, and perhaps of most importance, I would recommend paying much higher salaries to all those engaged as professors in the colleges, so as to attract the right class of men, the pay they receive now being no higher than that of good mechanics.

Government Research Work.

In addition to this, liberal sums should be appropriated for carrying on the research work, as in no other way can this important branch be of much service. The importance and value of this work are shown by the fact that by careful breeding and selection the Cornell station has obtained a variety of timothy grass that yields one ton more per acre than any of the varieties in commerce, and when we consider that the hay crop of the state of New York is worth over one hundred million dollars annually the immense value of this acquisition is easily seen. Another important experiment which they told me of on a recent visit is the selection of potatoes with a view to increasing their productivity. I ventured the opinion that the good of this experiment would be vitiated by the fact, as I believed it, that all plants propagated otherwise than by seed would deteriorate sooner or later. The professor would not agree with me in this, and it is possible that when the yield has been raised to the limit by selection of tubers, then, by raising from seed, this character of productiveness may be fixed, especially if that much debated question be settled in the affirmative, as to whether acquired characteristics are transmitted to offspring.

Please do not interpret anything that I have said as implying any disrespect to the gentlemen in charge of the experiment stations and horticultural colleges. I have nothing but the highest respect for them, as men doing their best, often under the most discouraging and adverse conditions. They are hampered for lack of funds and for lack of room; still, I have always found their courtesy unflinching. And it is for all of us, by agitation and by instructing our representatives in regard to the tremendous importance of this work to the community, to bring about as early as possible the means whereby those who wish can obtain a really scientific training in the oldest and noblest and most essential of all the arts, the art of cultivating the soil and improving its products.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Southwestern Market.

The week ending May 3 found the market in a crowded condition. The five wholesale markets had more stock each day than they could dispose of, though business at the leading retail stores was said to be good every day in the week, with plenty of funeral orders to work up. The splendid weather conditions during the week brought out the flowers in large quantities, both indoors and outdoors.

There was an abundance of roses of good quality, the bulk of them being Killarneys. The prices in all grades were decidedly reasonable. Carnations, too, arrived in big lots daily from local growers. The best sellers are the Enchantress varieties, the Wards, Beacon and Sangamo. Sweet peas were still of excellent quality and a great many more came in than the wholesalers could dispose of. There were also a great many long, fancy Beauties, which reached $4 per dozen for the choice flowers. Callas, too, were overplentiful, but Easter lilies were just about equal to the demand. There was plenty of both outdoor and indoor valley; fancy indoor valley brought $4 and outdoor stock $1 per hundred. Fancy French lilac and common lilac both sold well. Iris was fine. A good grade of Gladiolus America was coming in and brought $12.50 per hundred stalks. Miniature gladioli went at $5 per hundred. Fancy greens of all kinds were plentiful.

The greenhouse men expect to put in a busy week planting out, as the weather for some days has been like summer.

Various Notes.

Pierre Schneider, of the Oakland Floral Co., with Mrs. Schneider, visited relatives in Jefferson county last week. They have returned home, after a pleasant trip.

Both have heavy advance orders in this line.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. is receiving a lot of yellow daisies of fine quality, which are cleaned up almost daily by the local demand.

The Ellison Floral Co. had an order for a lot of bouquets last week, with the old-fashioned bouquet paper around them. These seem to be coming into vogue again.

Grimm & Gorly had a big run of transient trade last week. Their working force now number twenty-two and all were kept busy.

Charles Wors and his three sons will start this week for the hills, to pick dagger ferns for the local trade.

E. W. Guy and H. Emunds, of Belleville, were here last week, buying supplies. They are looking forward to a busy plant season, which will keep them rushed this month.

The committee of the St. Louis County Growers' Association held a meeting April 30 and drew up a set of by-laws, which will be presented at the nations, and roses also have been in good supply. The warm weather will soon have its effect, however, on the roses and carnations. The florists are looking forward to a large sale of carnations for Mothers' day, and are preparing for it.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is cutting lots of good stock and selling it all.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having an immense cut of carnations and other flowers. P. Hopman, the rose man for this firm, expects to leave June 1 for a three months' vacation and will visit his people in Holland.

C. L. Niednagel is building another house, which will be used for propagating purposes when needed. He is cutting some fine long-stemmed American Beauties and other roses.

Ben Kramer is having an excellent trade and is using lots of roses and carnations.

Henry Seymour's carnations are a little off crop at present. Business at his place is good.

Louis Fritsch says business is first-rate. He has purchased a fine looking horse for delivery use.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Centralia, Ore.—E. T. Barnes, retiring president of the Western Dahlia & Gladiolus Association, at Spencer, Ind., has leased a five-acre tract here on which he will establish branch gardens to handle the Pacific coast trade of the firm.

Tacoma, Wash.—The city's largest rose garden, with 1,200 plants of seventy-three varieties, has sprung into life at Point Defiance park under the supervision of Geo. A. Hill, superintendent of parks. Mr. Hill has placed each plant in the one place where its color will harmonize with the general effect of his scheme.

McMinnville, Ore.—Herbert & Fleishauer are drilling a well on their property, having failed to get an adequate supply in dug wells. In case they can get an abundant flow by piercing the rock which underlies their field at a depth of 150 feet, they will considerably increase their acreage of asters for cut flowers and especially for seed.

Reno, Nev.—Fred J. Fischer and G. C. McDonald recently visited San Francisco to purchase stock for the opening of Mr. Fischer's new store, on Virginia street. Mr. Fischer closed his former store a few months ago, but is now resuming business in a larger establishment.

Modesto, Cal.—Articles of incorporation have been filed for the Modesto Spineless Cactus Co. The capital stock is $25,000, $15,000 of which has been subscribed. The directors are L. L. Dennett, a prominent attorney here; E. H. Zion, also a lawyer, and M. F. Hopkins. The company is incorporated for the production and sale of both the fruit and forage varieties of the Burbank spineless cactus.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business slumped considerably during the last part of April and early in May, and the large quantities of stock coming to the market caused more or less of a glut. But that this is only temporary is shown by the inquiries at the principal wholesale houses for deliveries of stock later, when school commencements and June weddings will be in full swing. Growers have begun to throw out and replant roses, and this will help the sale of outdoor stock, while the bulbous and spring flowers are practically over. The cold-foot brigade is already shouting hard times, but this is a frequent occurrence and nobody pays much attention to it. Only a little stock has gone to waste, and if retailers would give a little more heed to the straws that proverbially show the direction of the wind, there would be still less waste. Greens of good quality have kept up well in price, notwithstanding the large amount of stock handled. Pot plants are less plentiful, but the demand is not great.

Santa Monica Flower Show.

Woman's Club was held in Columbia hall. As was to be expected, the arrangements made for the staging of the exhibits were a little amateurish, but this is a condition that will right itself another year, while the quality of the flowers shown was excellent. A brisk competition was brought out, especially in the rose classes, and the other flowers were not far behind.

The stage front was entirely occupied by the exhibit of Walter Armacost & Co., of Ocean Park, who put up a group of fine flowers that would have been a credit to any show, large or small. Especially fine were the Beauties and other roses and the lily of the valley, though all were good and it is difficult to make comparisons. Mr. Armacost worked hard for the benefit of the club and the show, and the many encomiums passed on his work showed it was appreciated.

In the booths put up by ladies of the town the judges had hard work in deciding which were best, a fact that should go far to soften the disappointments often felt by those who do not obtain recognition. The judges were P. D. Barnhart, H. R. Richards and D. Murdoch. C. E. Morton, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, took the judges down in his car. All were entertained in the best style.

Various Notes.

Morris Goldenson has been getting a good share of the funeral work of late and many fine pieces have been sent out. Some exceedingly good lavender sweet peas have been handled here.

H. Reeve Darling's policy of advertising and giving good value to customers is bearing fruit. Though trade was quiet in town on a recent Saturday, over 2,000 roses were cleaned up at popular prices. This is good work, worthy of emulation.

Gus Swenson, formerly with Mrs. Garrett, at Eagle Rock, has taken the place run for some years by J. B. Menasco and is growing roses, chrysanthemums and other stock for cut flowers.

C. Kooyman, of Hogan, Kooyman & Co., Oakland, has been calling on the trade in this city and vicinity.

A local nurseryman has varied the usual "Back in ten minutes" sign by another, reading, "Gone to the dentist's—Ouch!" Hope you got relief, brother.

The money must be coming to the H. N. Gage Co. at a great rate, a new 2,600-pound safe having been installed to take care of it. This and the new office equipment give a business-like appearance to the store. Mr. Gage reports business a little slow outside the city, but he is keeping up fine stock. A nursery department is to be added.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knopf left April 25 for a silver wedding trip through the orange belt, spending a few days with old friends among the orange blossoms at this delightful season. Mr. Knopf says: "This is in lieu of the wedding trip in which we were not able to indulge a quarter of a century ago." All who know him will join me in hoping that he will still be in California when his golden wedding trip is due and that he and Mrs. Knopf will enjoy that as well as they have this one.

During the time of the Ocean Park fire, some months ago, there were many signs among the ruins with such legends as: "Business will be started again in a few days." That put up by Walter Armacost read: "We have not quit business," and there you have the man. Practically everything was lost, for even the stock carried out was damaged, but now he has opened his new store, and it is a far better and more up-to-date one than the one that was burned. The interior is finished in mission style, with everything for convenience. Downstairs is a large workroom and shipping department, with everything necessary. The store is directly opposite a large new hotel that is being erected right in the center of the new and greatly improved Ocean Park that is rising from the ruins of the old one. Mr. Armacost intends to keep up the store he has been running at Venice during the process of rebuilding.

Splendid stock and plenty of it is the order of the day at Wright's Flower Shop, where business seems always brisk.

"Snooping around" is the unfeeling way in which some people describe my habit of looking into things, but I am incurable, anyway. When I saw the address of a well known firm in New Jersey on a large consignment of Ramona roses from a local nursery, I surely thought the red Cherokee must be some traveler. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The weather is neither too warm nor too cold, and everything favors quantities of blossoms. Never has there been in the history of San Francisco a better showing of seasonable flowers than at this time. Although the bulb crop is almost limited to Spanish iris and gladioli, there are a few late tulips and a few daffodils still to be seen. Violets are completely over for the season and the same can be said of freesias, narcissi and lilacs. A few of the later varieties of fruit blossoms still show, but they are past their prime. Inside stock such as roses and carnations is not as plentiful as last week, but it is still sufficiently heavy to be very cheap. It would be misleading to attempt to give prices on carnations. The growers usually take what is offered, and when the stores have been supplied the street hucksters take the balance for almost any price. Roses, however, hold their own somewhat better. The moderately cool days and nights of the last two weeks have kept the crop from swamping the market. As a consequence, there have been no serious breaks for the last few days. Sweet peas are cheaper, but they are not overplentiful. The extreme dryness everywhere has made it difficult to grow them successfully this year, and all have suffered in consequence. Valley is somewhat scarcer, but Lilium longiflorum is plentiful. Orchids are more in evidence than at any time this year. The demand for them is less than for the last two months. Asparagus and maidenhair fern, owing to the favorable weather, are much better in quality, and the growers are much more liberal with the sizes of bunches furnished the retailers.

Various Notes.

The death of Chas. P. Baender is recorded in this week's obituary column. G.

The California Flower Market has leased, for a period of fifteen years, the new building which will be erected by the Macdonough Estate Co., on Bush street, between Kearny street and Grant avenue. The lot has a front of fifty-eight feet and nine inches and a depth of 207 feet. The building will have two stories and basement. It will cost $57,000. The basement, which has a floor area of 13,700 feet, will be devoted to the business of the California Flower Market. The first floor will have eight stores and the second floor will be laid out in offices, which will be rented out by the California Flower Market.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is moving along in a satisfactory way. The demand is holding up nicely. There is plenty of stock to take care of all calls. Roses are in full cut. Kaiserins seem to be in unusually heavy supply. They are a little soft and prove poor shippers, but are good for local use. Carnations are sufficient to meet all demands, but are not in such oversupply as to cause a slump in prices. Mossie cattleyas are producing some elegant flowers, but the de-

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

A well known nurseryman here says: "We have a climate where everything grows;" and it looks like it. Everything not only grows but luxuriates. The surroundings of the town, with the fine groves of live oaks, sycamores and other native timbers, are beautiful in the extreme, the moist atmosphere giving a more vivid green to the foliage than in localities farther south. Many things that have suffered from frost in Los Angeles and San Diego are apparently immune here, although the temperature readings here were lower.

The California Acclimatizing Association, with which Dr. Franceschi was for a long time associated, carries a big stock of many classes of trees, shrubs and other plants not generally known and Mr. Riedel, the proprietor, is well posted on these varieties. A list of the stock here would read like a botanical work, but I must mention the fine specimen of Rosa gigantea that scrambles away up into the tops of trees forty feet high and is one mass of immense single flowers. Mr. Riedel has also a cement pot here that he makes for convenience in shipping trees. The bottom is loose and the pot stands on it, so when lifted the tree or plant has not to be knocked out, but a burlap can be placed on a convenient post and the plant slips out of the pot into the burlap covering. This is a good idea.

J. Whipple has just returned from a trip to Los Angeles. He has a fine lot of Lilium giganteum in good shape and reports business good.

The Exotic Nurseries carry a high grade of nursery stock in all varieties, the young plants all being raised from seed on the place. They may be seen here in all sizes in the finest health and are shipped away by the carload. A recent shipment took five cars to handle.

The Kentia Nurseries are on State street, having a large branch farther out in the country. Big lots of kentias are grown, as well as a general line of nursery stock.

The Mission Oak Nursery, run by A. Beverley, makes a specialty of small plants in great variety. He uses (and sells) the Pacific sprinklers with good results. A number of grand old live oaks here shelter much of the stock grown, including some fine large specimens of Alsophila australis, which are making a most luxuriant growth.

An automobile drive through the beautiful Montecito and Miranar districts with Messrs. Boyt and Beverley, of the Sunshine Irrigation Co., proved to be the most pleasant part of an enjoyable visit. The large private estates here are just as near perfection as they well can be. Set in the grand-

Peonies

The Finest, $8.00 per 100; Medium, $5.00 per 100

WE CONTROL THE CUT FROM SO MANY THOUSANDS OF PLANTS THAT WILL BE THE FINEST IN THE HISTORY OF THE CUT FLOWER TRADE

MAY 30 THE BIG DAY!

In the last few years Decoration Day has become the big day in the flower business. Practically every florist can, if he tries, sell more flowers May 29 and 30 than in any other two days in the year. And it is fine business. Flowers are plentiful and cheap, so that there is a good profit. Also, the customer usually takes the flowers along, so there is no expense for delivery. That adds a whole lot to the profit.

The Peony is the special Decoration Day flower. It makes the biggest show for the money. Also it is the most reliable shipper; you can be sure your Peonies will reach you in fine condition, that they will not go to sleep on your hands and that they will give your customers satisfaction.

Kennicott's is the Peony house. It was our exploitation of the Peony that made the Peony and the Decoration Day business what it is. We handle more Peonies than any other house in America. For Decoration Day we ship them from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard and to the Pacific coast.

Now booking orders. The stock this year promises to be the finest ever, and with the many thousands of plants we control we are assured many thousands of dozens.

The finest, $8.00 per 100; medium, $5.00 to $6.00 per 100; good short stock, $4.00 per 100....

P E O

No buyer can lose on Peonies at Decoration Day — sure sale, the only chance is on the weather.

P E O

THE ADVANTAGE OF ORDERING EARLY:—We want it distinctly understood that we guarantee these prices on all orders for Peonies booked up to May 25. Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Charles N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-first annual convention at Cleveland, June 24 to 26, 1913.

THE peas have had a good start again this season.

It is reported the crop of Roman hyacinths will be light this year and that prices will be high.

L. L. OLDS SEED Co., Madison, Wis., has secured a building permit for the erection of a new warehouse to cost $45,000.

THE reports from California are not encouraging, to say the least, but there is a disposition in some quarters to figure on a better outcome than present conditions indicate.

THE J. F. Latham Seed Co., at 121 North Grand street, Monroe, La., handles garden and field seeds at both wholesale and retail, and is now adding a flower seed department to its business.

THE prices of Texas Bermuda onions in the principal northern markets thus far this season are said to have averaged just about enough to meet the actual cash outlay, leaving the growers nothing for their work.

SEEDSMEN, especially those importing bulbs, will be interested in the action of the House of Representatives in amending the trade's paragraphs in the pending tariff bill, as reported on page 15 of the current issue. Hyacinth bulbs go back to $2.50 per thousand.

THE De Giorgi Bros., at Council Bluffs, Ia., have filed papers incorporating their business as the De Giorgi Bros. Co., with a capital stock of $25,000, divided into 250 shares of $100 each, and non-assessable. The incorporated business will start July 1. The term of incorporation is twenty years, unless terminated sooner by the incorporators. The business will be conducted by a board of five directors, consisting of Ferdinand De Giorgi, Vaclay Fuke, Jos. F. Pribyl, F. E. Britton and Vaclay Tosar, who will serve until the third Monday in January, 1914. The officers will be president, vice-presi-

GROWTH OF SEED PRODUCTION.

Little value may be attached to the statistics of flower and vegetable seed products, as they are shown in the Census Bureau's latest bulletin for 1909, and insofar as they cover the actual figures in the various states, but relatively they are of interest as showing comparisons by states, and particularly the tremendous growth of the seed growing industry in California. Table 38, of the bulletin on agriculture, showing an abstract of farm crops by states, gives the value of the entire product of vegetable and flower seeds in 1909 as $1,411,013, as against $826,019 in 1899, or an increase of almost 100 per cent in ten years.

It is apparent, from these figures, that the Census Bureau has failed to ascertain the real value of seed products, and also that it has not included in this table the peas and beans for seed, which appear to be included in tables 34 and 35. These two tables give classification of all dry edible beans and dry peas and evidently take in beans and peas for seed, although there is no good reason why these seeds should be omitted from table 38, as they should be classed with vegetable seeds.

In the following table, it will be noted, the value of the seed crop of the United States about doubled in ten years, while California, destined to become the greatest seed district in the world, produced in 1909 five times the crop of 1899.

Explaining why no tabulation is given of the acreage from which seeds were grown, the Census Bureau states that in some cases such acreage was not reported, and in many cases it would represent a duplication reported in other tables for flowers, plants and vegetables. The reported production of flower and vegetable seeds, the bulletin explains, doubtless represents chiefly that of farms producing such seeds for sale, small quantities raised by farmers for their own use presumably being often, if not generally omitted. Since statements of quantity for all classes of flower and vegetable

FOR KILLING WEEDS IN LAWNS

Positively effective and absolutely guaranteed or money returned.

LAWN SILICATE is unquestionably superior to any preparation ever applied as a top dressing to lawns to destroy Plantain, Buckhorn, Dandelion and other low growing, flat leaved weeds that a lawn mower will not kill. It is odorless and is easy to apply.

Does not stain or injure hands or clothing. It is positively the most economical, quickest and most effective method of getting rid of weeds ever devised. ¶ A 5-lb. package covers 200 to 500 square feet. It does not kill the grass, but the weeds are practically all killed in 24 to 48 hours, and afterwards literally burned up and blown away. ¶ This is not a "fairy tale." We invite investigation. It is sold on "money back guarantee."

RETAIL PRICES, 5-lb. package, 25c; 10-lb. package, 50c; 100-lb. bags, $5.00; barrel lots in bulk, 4¹/₂c per lb.

BULB DECISION AFFIRMED.

Johannus Jacobus Van Meeruwen and Johannes Tegelaar, bulb growers in Holland under the firm name of Van Meeruwen & Tegelaar, lost for a second time in their suit against August S. Swanson, the former Minneapolis florist, when the supreme court affirmed an order, April 25, of Judge H. D. Dickinson, of the Hennepin county district court, in favor of the defendant. The syllabus by Justice Oscar Hallam states that the Hollanders solicited an order of bulbs and asserted that Swanson had ordered some but later were informed by him that he had sold out his business to another party. The third party refused part of the bulbs when they were shipped and the goods perished in consequence. The Hollanders then sued Swanson, but the court held that he had not agreed to buy any bulbs.

SWEET PEAS AT LOMPOC.

Lompoc valley has become a Mecca for sweet pea growers this year, though in 1912 only seven and one-half acres were grown, aside from those grown by W. Atlee Burpee & Co.

In 1912 the Burpee firm had about 160 acres of sweet peas, all told. Five acres of these were grandifloras, eight acres were the old winter-flowering type and the remainder were principally the most up-to-date standard Spencers, with numerous novelties and Floradale selections. In the present season, an area of 200 acres is about all the Burpees can claim as their share of the total space planted with sweet peas, variously stated as from 500 to 1,200 acres.

Wherever possible, irrigation is now resorted to. Sometimes the River Santa Ynez is tapped for a supply; at other places a slough serves the purpose, and, last but by no means least, wells are used. However, there are wells and wells. The Burpee Floradale seed growing ranch has the deepest well so far put into operation in the valley, and it is far superior to a number of shallow wells. The shallow wells frequently yield a quality of water that is not at all conducive to the well-being of plant life, as the managers of the Burpee seed farm found to their sorrow in 1911, when large numbers of young plants were positively killed by the use of water taken from a well only seventy feet deep.

For nearly three months water was hauled from a spring of pure water three miles away, in order to sustain the few plants which escaped death from the water previously used, taken from the shallow well found on the farm when the Burpees began operations there. The 70-foot well is now entirely abandoned and another 158-foot well has been drilled to take its place, but the well which so far has not been tested to its full capacity is 312 feet deep; it can be made to yield, with little effort, 800 gallons per minute. So far a gasoline engine has furnished the motive power, but next week an electric motor will be installed, which will deliver a much larger volume of water than was formerly possible. The Floradale well is so situated that it will irrigate 200 acres with ease.

SEED TESTING IN ZURICH.

Some Instruments for Testing.

Among the various methods adopted in the examination of seed were two which were new to me. It is well known to farmers that one of the most destructive parasites upon agricultural plants is dodder, which grows upon clover. Great attention has been paid to the elimination of this plant from clover fields as well as to the elimination of its seed, which finds its way into samples of clover seed. Dr. Stebler employs a diminutive water engine, which agitates with some rapidity a series of round trays placed one above the other, each tray being perforated with holes of sizes which are graded. The seed to be tested is placed in the uppermost tray, the dodder finding its way through the holes and leaving the clover seed behind. A new method adopted in testing seeds which are partially transparent is worthy of remark. A hole some four inches in diameter is cut in the center of the floor of a box of a width of twenty to twenty-four inches by eighteen inches high, and of similar depth. The box, one side of which is removed, is painted black within. The seed is laid upon a glass disk, which covers the hole referred to. Eighteen inches below is a mirror resembling that used with the microscope, but considerably larger. By its aid a ray of sunlight—or, in dull weather, the light of a lamp—is directed on to the seed from beneath, when, owing to its transparency, it is recognized, however heavily it may be adulterated.

The first part of this article, by a British writer, dealing with seed testing by the Swiss government, appeared in The Review of May 1.

Proportion of Good and Bad.

The importance of controlling the purity and germinating power of seed may be illustrated by reference to a few varieties among the grasses which are employed with great freedom by farmers in all parts of this country. The average value of Italian rye grass on the basis of the Zurich work during the last thirty-six years is ninety-five per cent for purity and eighty per cent for germination; this gives seventy-six per cent of good seed. The figure may surprise the reader, but if every farmer were able to ensure three grass seeds out of four being perfect he would have good reason to be satisfied. Let us see, however, what last year's examination tells us. The average percentage of purity was ninety-one and of germination seventy-four, while the highest per cent of purity was ninety-nine and four-fifths and of germination ninety-seven, both being exceptional figures. The lowest, however, was sixteen per cent for purity and three per cent for germination, so that of sixteen pure seeds in every hundred only three would grow—and of such instances there are many.

Four Good Seeds in a Hundred.

English rye grass was in one case only forty-five per cent pure, with ten per cent germination; in other words, only four seeds were good out of every hundred. Cocksfoot, which should approximate to 100 in each case, gave in one instance fifteen per cent pure and forty-five per cent for germination, or about seven good seeds per hundred. The well-known foxtail, among the best of our grasses, which should show seventy-five per cent pure and sixty-nine per cent for germination—for it does not stand in the front rank in either respect—gave in one case fourteen per cent for purity and twenty-two per cent for germination, or some three good seeds per hundred. Among meadow fescue, sheep's fescue, red fescue and some other varieties of grass used by English farmers there were several which gave extremely low percentages of purity, while the pure seeds all failed to germinate. Of a list of thirty leading grasses, in no less than twelve cases there were samples in which practically every seed was worthless, owing chiefly to failure in germination. These remarks do not apply in the same degree to the clovers, although there are many cases—and this happens every year—in which numbers of samples show a low germination percentage.

Not Exactly Encouraging.

There is one feature in this question which deserves special comment. The advance or retrogression of the purity and value of seeds is shown specially in a table which Dr. Stebler has prepared. Thus, with regard to the clovers, there was a much larger number of cases which showed a diminution of quality than of those in which there was an improvement—and this especially applies to the grasses. Here improvement was shown in purity in five instances only, and in germination in seven instances only out of thirty varieties. Thus, in spite of all the efforts of growers and of those seedsmen who are devoting special attention to the improvement of seed, there is practically a retrogression, and, if for no other reason, it is of the greatest moment that an official system of control should be established in this country.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

Business has been brisk the last two weeks and everyone seems to be busy with various kinds of work. Cut flowers continue to be plentiful. Because of the warm spell, bulbous stock grown indoors has come to an untimely end. Daffodils, which played such an important part in the cut flower list, have gone and it is hard to find a substitute, as carnations are still scarce and roses are much more expensive. Violets are poor at present. There is little cut white and lavender lilac to be had. Killarney roses in pink and white are best of all. Tafts are off crop, but Mrs. Aaron Wards are fair. Valley and cattleyas are fine. Sweet peas are much more reasonable now and better in quality. Pansies in baskets are much in demand. There are no flowering plants to speak of, although there are a few calceolarias shown in some of the stores. Asparagus is not so plentiful at present and the supply of ferns is decreasing. Plans are being made for a big Mothers' day and for Memorial day, and the progressive florists are busy with preparations.

Various Notes.

Julius Dilloff is no longer with Schloss Bros., of New York, but has started a neckwear business for himself. Milton W. Selinka is representing Schloss Bros. now. He called on the trade here last week.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1912-1913: Pres., Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa.; Vice-Pres., J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-eighth annual meeting, Portland, Ore., June 18 to 20, 1913.

NURSERYMEN will be interested in the article, "More Trouble Brewing," on page 22 of the current issue.

THE summer-like weather of the last few days has brought the season rapidly toward its close with a majority of those in the nursery business.

MRS. MARY S. HOLMAN, aged 78 years, widow of the late David S. Holman, of Springfield, Mo., died April 25. She went to Springfield many years ago with her husband, who conducted a nursery until his death.

THE Hankinson Nursery Co., of Hankinson, N. D., was given the contract to lay out and plant a city park for Wahpeton, N. D., and a force of nurserymen under the direction of C. A. Chinberg began operations last week.

L. J. WESELY, formerly a salesman for the Mitchell Nursery Co., at Owatonna, Minn., has organized a business of his own, to be conducted under the name of the Owatonna Nursery Co. Two farms near Owatonna have been secured and a force of men is at work preparing the ground for use.

NURSERYMEN will be interested in the amendments made in the pending tariff bill, by the House of Representatives as told on page 15 of this issue. No changes are made in rates on nursery stock, the amendments being to simplify administration. The free list now reads "coniferous, evergreen seedlings, 4 years old or less."

THE Fruit Growers' Nurseries, Inc., with headquarters at Newark, N. Y., has filed a certificate of incorporation in the Wayne county clerk's office, Lyons, N. Y., outlining its plan to engage in a general nursery business. The three directors are C. W. Stewart, C. H. Stewart and James M. Pitkin, all of Newark, N. Y. The capital stock is $5,000, fully paid up and non-assessable.

"SOME of our nursery friends," says Frank B. White, "are wondering if the business is really being overdone. The advertisers are not complaining—it's the men who depend on other means of selling who are worried. It is true that the Pacific coast has a large stock for which there seems to be little market. The fruit business of the central states is making steady progress and is pretty sure to make our western big fellows sit up and take notice."

PESSIMISM rules as to the Georgia peach crop for this year. Some weeks since orchard conditions were good and tree buds were so firm and fine that a splendid crop was promised. But these made great development in warm weather and then came cold and frost that worked comparative destruction to the crop all over the state. Experienced growers and expert dealers are of one mind as to a disaster in the matter of yield. The most pessimistic predict a crop of only 1,500 cars, while the most optimistic can see prospects for a maximum of 2,500 cars. Such a crop would compare with 7,000 cars for 1912.

U. S. Nursery Statistics

THE Census Bureau has issued a bulletin giving an agricultural abstract by states for 1909, as of the census of 1910, showing the nursery establishments, nursery acreage and value of nursery products. Table 74 gives this information. The statistics cover the growing of nursery products not only by establishments which devote themselves exclusively to this branch and which employ only intensive methods, but also on ordinary farms that derive a part of their income from nursery products. The acreage in 1909 was 35.5 per cent greater than in 1899, while the value of products was more than twice as great as ten years earlier and was equal to 0.4 per cent of the total value of all farm crops in the United States.

SAGINAW AND BAY CITY.

The Market.

Business has been good with the trade in Saginaw and Bay City, Mich., with plenty of funeral work and now and then a good wedding to brighten up things. Last week we had real summer weather, and everybody got the fever to plant geraniums in their beds and cemetery lots, but at the present writing it is quite different. Overcoats are all the vogue, after a heavy downpour of rain Monday night. Car-

Florists' Club Organized.

The florists of the Saginaw valley have for a long time felt the necessity of an organization, and it finally has been effected more by force than for purpose. There is a bill before the House at Lansing, providing that every florist using steam must employ only licensed engineers as firemen in eight-hour shifts. This was one reason for organizing a society at Saginaw and Bay City.

There are more than 100 people directly engaged in floriculture in Saginaw and Bay City who will be interested in a society that will further the love of flowers. Floriculture in all its phases will be handled in a manner that cannot fail to benefit all that are interested in the trade. There will be monthly business meetings, alternating between Saginaw and Bay City. The membership is growing with each meeting, twenty-eight having signed the constitution and by-laws of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society. At a meeting in Bay City the society elected the following officers: John Irvine, president, Bay City; Carl L. Roethke, vice-president, Saginaw; Albert G. Boehringer, treasurer, Bay City; Henry W. F. Goetz, secretary, Saginaw.

Various Notes.

Charles Frueh & Sons, of Saginaw, are having a splendid cut of carnations and roses from their new houses and find ready sales for all.

The Wm. Roethke Floral Co., of Saginaw, is cutting choice snapdragons that bring fancy prices.

We are in a Position to quote prices on specimen Evergreens that will be decidedly attractive to anyone who is BUYING TO SELL AGAIN. If you are in the market for anything from Norway Spruce to the finer varieties of Evergreens, send in your lists and we will give you a figure that will make you money.

E. A. Grohman, of Saginaw, has the finest hydrangeas that have been seen here for some time, and he says he wishes he had more.

J. B. Goetz Sons, of Saginaw, are getting back into shape again after the wind storm of March 21, which blew down their 75-foot brick chimney, through boiler room, greenhouses and potting shed. If it had not been for the enormous stock they carry they would be losing many sales for Memorial day.

everything in tiptop shape for Memorial day business with the shrub plantings about over.

John Marsh expects to make rapid plant deliveries on Memorial day, for his son Chester is a birdman and has an aeroplane of his own design in which he will make his first flight on that day.

John Irvine, of Bay City, again has the largest stock of geraniums in the valley, which meet with ready sales.

Julius Schulz has geraniums better this year than ever and has made extensive changes on his place to gain more room.

Daniel Shepherd is kept on the jump all the time. He says his best spring will be this year.

Martin Keit is the busiest man in town between his store and greenhouses. He says cut flowers of all kinds are the best sellers.

Harry S. Garland was a visitor and spent several days with the Saginaw-Bay City florists. Gee.

Dallas, Tex.—Mrs. L. Adrian has opened a store to handle cut flowers at 4002 Hall street.

Ogden, Utah.—Damage amounting to $1,000 resulted at the greenhouses of R. Aultman, April 14, from a small blaze in the boiler room and storehouse.

Kewanee, Ill.—Hamilton & Plummer are making additions to their plant that will enable them to grow on a much larger scale than at present. Their greenhouse is being extended, the addition to be 50x75 feet; a new boiler room is being built and a smokestack seventy-five feet high has been erected.

Houston, Tex.—The Robert C. Kerr Floral Co. has been awarded the contract for one year to supply the new Rice hotel with plants and flowers. This is said to be the largest flower contract ever given out in Texas. The permanent decorations will be elaborate, and those for the opening especially so.

"Get them at Dreer's"

All Seasonable Plants—Seeds—Bulbs and Sundries

HARDY PERENNIALS.

The most complete collection of varieties and the largest stock in the country. Our Perennial plants have a national reputation. We spare no expense to have them in the best possible shape for the planter. Such varieties as move better when pot-grown are prepared in this shape. This does not mean little seedlings, but in the majority of cases the plants were field-grown, were dug and potted during the fall and winter months, and are just the right size to give immediate results. They are not to be compared with so-called field clumps. Try them and be convinced. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

HYBRID-TEA ROSE
KILLARNEY

ROSES FOR OUTDOOR PLANTING TO GIVE IMMEDIATE RESULTS.

We have three hundred thousand 5 and 6-inch pots, the usual Dreer stock, and the style of plants your retail customers are looking for. These are all two-year field-grown plants which have been potted during the winter months, and which were stored in cold houses and frames, and which are now in prime condition for outdoor planting. The collection is the most up-to-date, including many new varieties not offered by anyone in the trade.

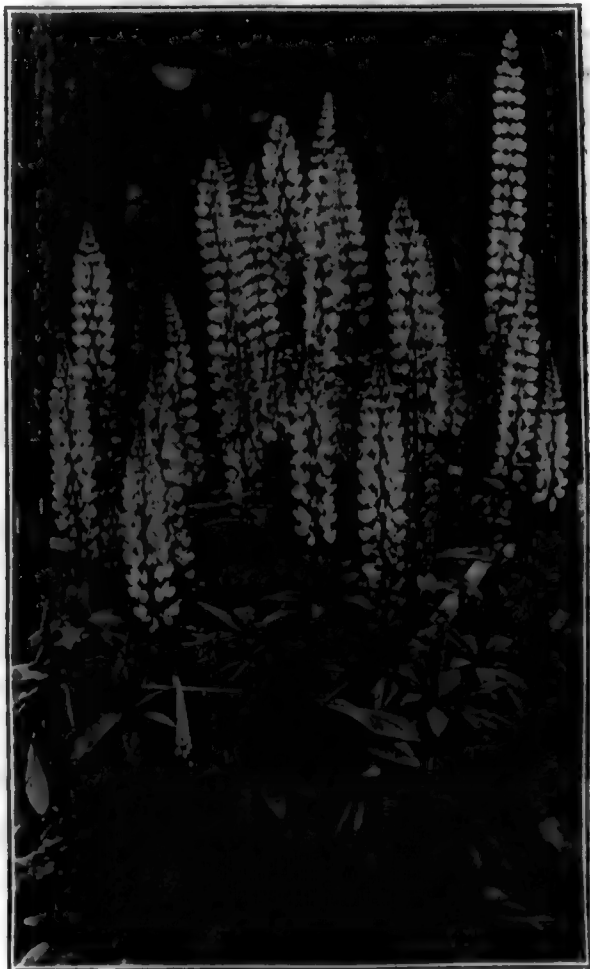

Hybrid Teas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Tea and Ever-blooming, Ramblers, Baby Ramblers, Moss Roses, Hybrid Sweet Briars, Austrian Briars, Wichuraiana, etc., etc. See our current wholesale list for varieties and prices.

OUR CURRENT WHOLESALE LIST

also describes the following, all of which are handled as Specialties:
Decorative Plants, Palms, Ferns, Pandanus, Bay Trees, Box-woods, Dracaenas, etc., etc.

Hardy Shrubs, Hardy Vines, Hardy Climbers, Rhododendrons, Azaleas, etc., etc.

BULBS—Dahlias, Tuberous Rooted Begonias, Gladiolus, Gloxinias, Fancy Leaved Caladiums, Cannas, etc., etc.

LUPINUS POLYPHYLLUS

AQUATIC PLANTS—Water Lilies, Nelumbiums, Victorias.

Tender and Hardy Aquatics have been a special feature with us for nearly a quarter of a century; over eight acres of artificial ponds are devoted to their culture. If we can assist you in making plans or selecting varieties, the services of our expert are at your disposal for the asking.

are rare or uncommon are to be found, and the able superintendent, Charles Sander, one of the best gardeners in America, and most unassuming of men, is ever pleased to see interested visitors. Azaleas are a great feature here. The big specimen plants filling several pits do not flower until May and June, but many seedlings of flowering size, some of them beautiful sorts, are to be seen, and quantities of seedling rhododendrons and azaleas in pans or flats just pricked out are to be seen. Clivias, or imantophyllums, fill one house and comprise all the Veitchian hybrids as well as many home raised seedlings. Nerines, or Guernsey lilies, are also raised from seed in quantities. Mr. Sander states that he failed at first in raising nerines and clivias by covering the seeds, which would rot. Since he left the seeds uncovered he gets a fine germination. Amaryllises also are raised here in quantity. Other interesting plants noted were Pancratium fragrans, Cœlogyne cristata, finely flowered Phaius grandifolius and Plumbago rosea.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

There was a perceptible dullness in the trade during April, but business improved gradually and the sale of cut flowers and plants was generally satisfactory the latter part of the month and early in May. In and out of town, weddings and funerals helped to dispose of the home-grown as well as the shipped stock. Gladioli, Creole lilies, sweet peas, mignonette, etc., are in constant demand and supplied by the local growers. Shasta daisies are making their first appearance, but the outdoor roses cannot be sold over the counter, and as a rule are fit only for cheap work. A number of weddings are scheduled for the next month, and several orders have been placed. Landscape gardeners are busy with extension projects on the outskirts of the city and the trade naturally benefits by the increased activities in suburban development.

Various Notes.

William Nelson is sending in some fine sweet peas, Creole lilies and other cut flowers, and his choice stock is always in demand.

Charles Eble showed his first pure white gladioli, which were admired by the trade as well as the public. In addition to his Phoenix Rebeleenii, he added Cocos plumosa for the wholesale trade, and finds it a paying proposition.

U. J. Virgin reported satisfactory business. He has a fine stock of Gladiolus America and Augusta and the demand for them is up to his expectations.

Peter Chopin's store is always up-to-date and in consequence new customers are being added constantly.

Mrs. Carrie Rehm's place is always a center of attraction, owing to the large frontage and splendidly kept plants in and outdoors. R. E.

Portsmouth, O.—Louise Koenig, of 1238 Second street, lost in the recent flood her greenhouse and entire stock of plants, and suffered heavy damage by having the rear of her dwelling, sheds and outbuildings washed away.

MARKETED IN FULL DRESS

Side growth gracefully tapers from one inch at the flower to three and four inches at base of stem, which adds sufficient green for a well finished bouquet. Buy Silver Pink and have all that is good in snapdragons.

Silver Pink is now growing in a number of foreign countries, carried there by its record and influence, which are safe, sane leaders. A good article is always imitated even to the use of its name. But the beautiful light, silvery shade of pink alone will hold Silver Pink in position. Other pink shades will have a limited use, but, as in the carnation, the one that pleases the public will remain. Recall the Lawson and all kindred shades of carnations. They have passed and the buyer is still calling for the light, daybreak shades. The buyer, governed by the public, rules the situation and will ever do so. Don't spend your time and money trying to break this law. The people buy what they want, hence the great popularity of SILVER PINK—the pioneer commercial snapdragon.

DON'T DELAY SOWING SEED for fall and winter blossoms. Price of seed, my own growing, $1.00 per pkt. of over 500 seeds; 3 pkts., $2.50, cash. Potted plants July and August delivery.

The Market.

Trade was fairly steady last week. The weather has been unusually warm for this time of the year; the thermometers registered 90 degrees several days. There has been some funeral work and the general trade is much better than heretofore. Stock is plentiful, carnations being a glut on the market. Good roses find a steady market. Beauties are moving slowly. Sweet peas and snapdragons are a trifle scarce. Outdoor valley has put in an appearance. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful.

The recent warm weather has caused quite a stir in the bedding plant business and, from all indications, this will be a good year in that line.

Various Notes.

John Bertermann may be seen almost any of these fine days, breaking all speed records in his new Premier auto on East Washington street.

Mrs. Homer Wiegand, who has been in a critical condition at the Methodist hospital, is much improved.

The Pahud Floral Co. suffered much inconvenience from the loss of a box-wood shipment, which was lost in transit.

Pearl James, formerly with the Bertermann Bros. Co., and Fred Kiel, formerly with Alfred Brandt, have taken positions with A. Wiegand & Sons.

Frank Farney, of the M. Rice Co., spent a few days with the trade here last week.

William Langstaff, the veteran florist at the Deaf and Dumb Institute, has been seriously ill at his home. The last reports, however, indicated some improvement.

J. A. E. Haugh, of Anderson, and J. E. Brown, of Shelbyville, were in the city last week.

Alfred Brandt has become a chicken fancier. He intends to raise only pedigreed stock.

All hands at Baur & Steinkamp's have been busy planting carnations during the last week. H. L. W.

Caldwell, N. J.—William Aubry is having built a $5,000 greenhouse on his property in west Caldwell.

Lafayette, Ind.—F. Dorner & Sons Co., which has two ranges of houses, is preparing to make important changes in the older place this summer. Five houses will come down and four new ones, each 30x300, will go up. The place now has two heating plants. These will be consolidated and a new trap system put in, the same as the one that works so well in the newer range.

STANDARD BAY TREE

A pair of Bay Trees or Boxwoods in front of your store will add beauty to their surroundings, and you will find them a most profitable line.

BAY TREES JUST IN QUALITY FINE

Decorative Trees and Bushes for Porches, Verandas, Lawns, etc.

BAY TREES (Laurus Nobilis)

These grand ornamental trees are "coming into their own" in the middle and western states. For fifty years and more they have been extensively used in the east and there is nothing to be compared with them for beauty and producing an immediate effect. Our stocks have been especially selected by a specialist in Europe. We carry an immense stock of these Bay Trees. Special prices quoted for quantities.

Winterson's Seed Store

166 N. Wabash Avenue

[Established 1894]

CHICAGO, ILL.

...NEWS NOTES...

Algona, Ia.—The Curtis Floral Co., of Hampton, Ia., has opened a branch store here.

Du Quoin, Ill.—Wm. L. Thill has just been elected to serve his second term as alderman in the Fourth ward. Mr. Thill reports trade as being satisfactory. He escaped all storms this spring.

Canton, N. Y.—The St. Lawrence School of Agriculture has awarded to Wisner & Arthur, of Lowville, N. Y., the contract to build its new greenhouse and workshop, the price to be $19,000.

La Dorado, Kan.—The El Dorado Floral Co., C. W. Salisbury, manager, recently found a double spathed calla among its ordinary blooms of this flower. So great a curiosity was turned to good advertising account.

Paragould, Ark.—V. H. Chase and Louis Auten will open a store here to handle cut flowers, plants, seeds, fertilizers, etc. The business will be known as the Chase Floral Co. Mr. Auten is in the produce business, being the head of the Louis Auten Produce Co.

Princeton, N. J.—John Heeremans has purchased the business of George Allan, who was obliged to dispose of it on account of ill health. Mr. Heeremans took possession April 1. The business is a retail one, with a store at 40 Nassau street and residence and greenhouses at 48 Spruce street.

GERANIUMS

We have about 5000 plants of S. A. Nutt and Marvel, which we want to move at once. They are fine, strong young plants in 2-inch pots, and will make fine stock for late spring sales if shifted right away. We also have a few hundred each of Decorator and A. Ricard. There is no finer young stock in the country, and they are really a bargain at the price we are quoting—

$2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000

We also have about 1000 fine young plants of Carnation White Perfection, in 2-inch pots, which we offer you for $20.00 per 1000.

It will be to your advantage as well as ours if you will order at once.

POEHLMANN BROS. CO. Greenhouses and Plant Morton Grove, Ill.
 Shipping Department:

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Trade was fair last week, with some increase over the preceding week. Funeral work was much heavier than it has been for some time. Decorations for dinners, weddings, etc., also showed an increase over last week. Stock of nearly all kinds is plentiful. Carnations are cheap, selling at $1 to $3 per hundred. Most of the growers are throwing some of their carnations out, so as to make room for spring stock; this will cause a shortage in home-grown stock. The blooms are becoming small on account of the hot weather. Roses are bringing a good price and some splendid stock is on the market; the growers seem to have a good crop on and are able to dispose of them easily. The roses are selling at $3 to $8 per hundred. Richmonds are in heavy demand. Bedding stock is moving fast and everybody is busy with the orders in that line.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes was exceedingly busy last week with funeral work and decorations. He furnished one of the largest decorations of the season.

Samuel Murray reports that business is good, but nothing extraordinary. Table decorations take the lead.

I. M. Bayersdorfer was in the city last week, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co. W. J. B.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—Alvah Bishop will operate James Coon's greenhouses next year, growing violets.

CANNAS AND BEDDING STOCK

We have an extra fine lot of Cannas in 3-inch pots, ready for shipment in the following sorts, at $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000; 250 of one kind at 1000 rate:

Aphonse Bouvier, Egandale, Florence Vaughan, Gladiator, Hiawatha, J. D. Eisele, Jean Tissot, Mme. Crozy, Niagara, Patria, Pennsylvania, President Meyer, Richard Wallace, Souv. d'Antoine Crozy, Venus, Uncle Sam, Mrs. Kate Gray.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubes, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, painted green. These tubes cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your own convenience, both going and coming. When you will see our palms of all sizes, from 2 1/2-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place) and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

New American Beauty GERANIUM

We take great pleasure in introducing to our many customers for 1918 our new American Beauty Geranium. For the first time, after working on it for nearly three years, we are offering it for sale.

Our Claim for American Beauty Geranium is that it surpasses all other Geraniums in its real American Beauty Color. The individual blooms measure 2 1/4 inches across. It is semi-double, medium dwarf, of stately shape. It has come to stay as a money maker. Prices to the trade: 2 1/2-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 per doz.; 3-in. pots, $1.00 each, $10.00 per doz., cash. Write for circulars in natural colors and prices on large lots.

JOHN BAUSCHER, 104 Chicago Street, Freeport, Ill.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh began last week with a much needed rain, followed by cooler weather with some frost, but the week closed with a beautiful warm day; the thermometers registering 80 degrees on Saturday.

The wholesale houses were in trouble all the week, as stock shortened up, especially carnations, and there was considerable difficulty in filling orders. There was a shortage in about everything except Beauties and cattleyas, of which a big cut has been coming in. With the crop of carnations somewhat off, the outlook for Mothers' day does not seem to be particularly good.

Various Notes.

The Schenley conservatories furnished the decorations for the Mayor Magee banquet, given on Saturday, May 3.

Samuel Cape is one of the enterprising young men in the business. Some time ago he purchased the building on the corner of Penn avenue and Fortieth street, which he has put into shape for an up-to-date flower shop. He opened the new shop on Saturday, May 3.

A. E. McCoyd, who has been conducting a flower stand in the Fifth avenue arcade, discontinued it May 1. The stand has been rented, however, and will be continued by Franks & Gallagher, who are doing business under the name of the Philadelphia Florists.

It is reported that there are some matrimonial notices due from some of Randolph & McClements' young ladies, but I am not permitted to mention names at present.

The E. C. Ludwig baseball team has been cleaning up everything among the amateurs. Now, if there are any florist teams anywhere in this vicinity, let Manager De Forest Ludwig hear from you.

Ernest Fischer, of the firm of Fischer & Scheick, Sharon, Pa., died April 29, after a long illness. Further particulars will be found in this week's obituary column. Clarke.

Waterloo, Ia.—Charles Sherwood has leased the front part of the Sinnard Bros. building and will open a branch store there.

Choice Plants for Immediate Shipment

A wonderful clock at Cur Saal, in Interlachen, Switzerland, one of the most famous and biggest tourist hotels of the world. The biggest wonder of nature the world has ever seen.

See that clock? It is made of flowers!

It has hands and shows the time!

See that little house in the rear, also made of flowers? There is hidden a mechanism that strikes the quarter, half and the hour. What do you think this clock is made of? It is made of plants of brilliancy—mostly of dwarf begonias, the Vernon type, short variety, pink and red. The head gardener, the creator of this clock, of this famous, world-wide known hotel at Interlachen, Switzerland, has been offered a fortune by American and other millionaires of the world, to make them a clock similar to this, but he declined the offers, saying that he was hired by the hotel company for the next ten years. I was fortunate enough, during my visit there, to obtain from the head gardener, the creator of this clock, a supply of seed and stock plants of those beautiful varieties of begonias to raise a sufficient crop of about 50,000 young plants in 2½, 3 and 4-inch pots for you to use in a similar clock, carpet bed or other outside work. A bed of these begonias, pink, the Erfordii, or the bright red improved Vernon, is a joy forever. Constant bloomers, stay always short and bushy, the hot rays of the sun have no bad effect on them. They can be grown in a sunny or shady place. We can sell you large 4-inch pot plants, either of the improved Erfordii, the beautiful pink, or the dark bright red improved Vernon, at 10c, $10.00 per 100; 3-inch, $7.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $5.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

ROSE AFTER-SATISFACTION.

When you buy G. & R. roses you get along with them the after-satisfaction—that sense of realizing all the success that should come from planting quality roses, the knowing that no better results are possible to be obtained outside of G. & R. roses. It is the after-satisfaction that has compelled us to plan to grow for the coming season one million additional roses. Think of it, the after-satisfaction selling five million roses, and demanding a million increase, in one year. "Going some," you say. Yes, but are you getting your share of this "rose after-satisfaction"? If not, why not? Plant G. & R. quality roses. None better, none so good.

Our new catalog giving prices on all roses and other plants now ready. Write for it today.

Greenhouse Heating.

PRICES on coal contracts running through the year are being well maintained.

A TENDENCY is apparent this season among the soft coal producers to curtail production, keeping the coal in the ground whenever they cannot get a price that leaves a margin of profit.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

STEAM FOR ONE HOUSE.

I am building a greenhouse 26x60, ten feet high to the ridge and six feet to the eaves. The north wall is built of cement and lumber. The south side and the ends have two feet of cement wall and the rest is glass. Kindly tell me how to heat the house with steam, from a cast-iron boiler, stating the number and size of pipes needed. I should like to run a flow pipe from the boiler, tapping it at each bench and running a flow and return either under the bench, or on the side if I use solid beds. Is this practical? If so, please give the size of all pipes needed. Will the four flows and four returns give the heat needed? We often have outside temperatures of 15 to 20 degrees below zero for a day or two. Our location is west central Iowa. If my idea is not practical, kindly suggest the cheapest plan.

E. S. F.

The temperature desired is not stated, but if the house is to be used for roses or other crops which require a night temperature of 60 degrees, a considerable increase will be necessary in the radiation mentioned. Instead of running a flow and return pipe under each of the four benches, it is suggested that a 2-inch flow be run overhead, about two feet below the ridge, and that at the end of the house two 1 1/4-inch returns be run in each direction and carried back to the boiler on the plates. In addition to this, there should be two 1 1/4-inch returns under each of the four benches. These should be connected with a 1 1/2-inch pipe, which should be taken off and run in each direction from the overhead flow, at a point over the ends of the benches.

In case 50 degrees or a little less will answer in the coldest weather, it can be secured by means of eight 1 1/4-inch returns, in addition to the 2-inch overhead flow pipe. If solid beds are used, the returns can be on the walls, or a part of them can be in the walks.

FROM HOT WATER TO STEAM.

Will you kindly let your heating expert pass on the following question? My house is 34x70 and sixteen feet high to the ridge, with two feet of glass in the east wall and a solid concrete wall on the west side. The house runs north and south. The south end is glass; the north end abuts against my dwelling. There are six rooms in the dwelling, all heated by a hot water boiler situated in the basement. A 3-inch feed pipe, running under the ridge, feeds nine 2-inch returns under three center benches. One 2-inch feed on the purlin posts feeds five 2-inch returns on the east wall; two 2-inch feeds supply 2-inch returns on the west

What the Users Say

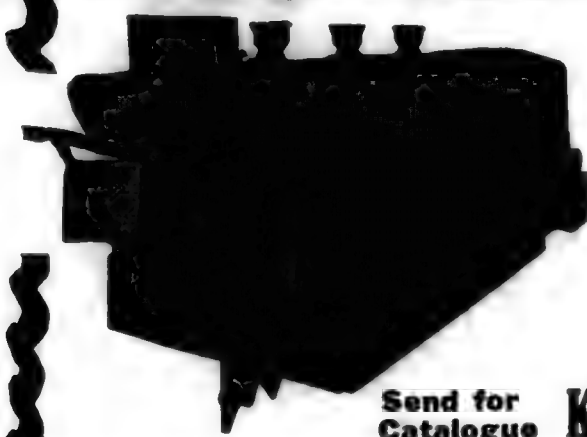

Fires Once Every Four to Six Hours In Coldest Weather

I am fully satisfied with your No. 2 Kroeschell boiler. I have had different kinds of saddle and tubular boilers, but none of them give such satisfaction as yours. I have 7000 sq. ft. of glass, and your boiler would take care of 8000 sq. ft. of glass. I maintain 50° temperature and fire every four to six hours in cold weather; otherwise from six to eight hours.

Continuous Firing for Four Years Twenty-four Hours a Day Fails to Burn Out Cyclone Grates

We have installed many sets of Cyclone Grates where these figures have held true.

Any grates that show no evidence of burning after four years' continuous firing twenty-four hours a day must have something exceptionally worth while about them.

Cyclone Grates resist burning because the Cyclone Plan insists upon a mixture of iron being used which years of experience and experiment have found best suited for the purpose.

wall. This gives us now plenty of heat in the coldest and windiest weather.

I am figuring on heating two hotbeds, seventy feet long, south of the house. These beds will be about ten inches higher than the returns at the boiler. I am also figuring on changing to steam heat, as electric power is too expensive to be used in running the circulation. We could feed these beds from the center 3-inch feed. How many 2-inch pipes would be needed in these beds and how many of the 2-inch pipes could we take out of the house and still have radiation enough? I desire to use the 2-inch pipe I already have. I intend to put in a new boiler. How much grate surface would be needed to carry the radiation mentioned, besides the dwelling, which is 26x26, with an ell 16x24? I am located in eastern Iowa. G. H.

The letter does not state what temperature is desired in the greenhouse, nor does it give any idea of the size of the rooms and the amount of window area in the dwelling.

About all that can be said regarding the amount of radiation required for steam is that, if the present radiation is sufficient with hot water, it will probably answer if about one-half of the returns are removed. There will be no occasion for retaining the 3-inch overhead main; a 2-inch pipe might be substituted for it and one of the flows on the east wall might be changed to a return. A 2-inch pipe on each side of the hotbed will be sufficient for 60 degrees in cold weather and one pipe would answer most of the time.

Just how much radiation will be needed in the dwelling is not clear, but it will probably not be more than 400 square feet, and this, with 600 feet in the greenhouse and 100 feet in the hotbed, would mean about 1,000 square feet of radiation to be supplied by the boiler. With the extreme outside temperature mentioned, it will be well to provide a boiler with considerable reserve capacity and ten to twelve square feet of grate surface will be desirable.

The Market.

Weather conditions the last week resembled those of midsummer and in turn rushed crops along in good shape, but all in all business was good. The demand for red carnations the last fortnight has been ahead of the supply. With this warm spell folks get anxious and the call for bedding stock, although it is still a little early in this locality to plant out soft-wooded stock, is more of a nuisance than a benefit. Local carnation specialists were busy as bees rushing their stock into the field last week. A warm rain May 5 was welcome.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club has not accomplished a great deal for some time past and the time has come when it can help materially in the matter of accommodations and premium list for the annual state fair. In the past, conditions were such that the florists in general took no interest in the fair at all, leaving it to a few who made it their business to be there regularly, resulting in a rather one-sided affair. With a comparatively new management of the State Board of Agriculture and the aid of F. Crane field, of Madison, secretary of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, new life has entered into the project. Mr. Crane field called recently on the club's treasurer, James Livingstone, to help revise the premium list on all indoor floricultural exhibits. The revised list was taken up at the last club meeting and, with a few exceptions, it was approved. As the list now reads the inducements for professional growers should and undoubtedly will bring out many good exhibits. In view of this fact some members thought, judging by arrangements made in past years, there would not be enough room to display exhibits to full advantage. Finally it was voted to send a committee of three to Madison to confer with Mr. Crane field and see what can be accomplished to better conditions.

President Leidiger appointed James Livingstone, C. C. Pollworth and H. V. Hunkel to serve on this committee. While little may be accomplished in aiding this year's fair, the present interest will help to further the cause in the future.

The club voted to hold the annual picnic this summer and the entertainment committee, consisting of Walter Halliday, Nic Zweifel and Gust Rusch, with the latter as chairman, was directed to proceed with the preliminaries.

Various Notes.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. says its four new houses to be built this summer will be used for roses exclusively.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The supply of stock in practically all lines has shortened up materially since last week and this is particularly so in roses and carnations, but there are enough of these to meet all demands. Spencer sweet peas have made their appearance in fair supply and are meeting with a ready sale. Outdoor valley has been quite plentiful during the week, but has been cleaned up well. Some good indoor peonies were to be seen. The demand for peonies is poor, as they interfere with the sale of shrubbery. Bulbous stock is at an end, although some few tulips are still to be had. Calla lilies are still in good supply and demand; the supply of Easter lilies has shortened up a great deal. Lupines still remain scarce, as the local crop seems to have been somewhat of a failure. The first dahlias of the season have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

William F. Gude has been chosen as head of the business men's committee of one hundred, which will seek the $300,000 necessary for the erection of the new Emergency hospital, and this is to be raised in twelve days. This committee is subdivided into groups of ten hustlers each, with a captain at the head of each group. Z. D. Blackstone is one of the captains and other florists are doing valiant work to bring about the erection of the hospital.

Final arrangements have been made for the second annual rose exhibition, to be held May 20 and 21 in the Masonic Temple, Brookland, D. C., by the Brookland Citizens' Association. The judges of exhibits will be Leslie C. Reynolds, superintendent of the National Botanic Gardens; Belle C. Saunders, of the Department of Agriculture, and Dr. John A. Parker.

Adolphus Gude and Fred H. Kramer will go to Germany this summer with the Minute Men of the United States, who will participate in the unveiling of a monument at Leipsic. Mr. Gude holds the rank of captain and regimental paymaster, and Mr. Kramer is captain and regimental commissary.

Adolph Bowdler is busy receiving the congratulations of his friends; it's a boy and arrived last week.

Gude Bros. Co. is showing a fine cutting of delphinium, which is bringing from $3 to $5 per dozen. C. L. L.

The Gateway to the South.

The market underwent a sudden change last week, being dull one day and fairly good the next morning. Business started slowly April 28. The next day it picked up considerably and by the middle of the week it was good. This increased demand comes both from local retailers and out-of-town buyers. Carnations were principally affected by the change. The supply has decreased considerably, partly on account of natural changes, but probably due also to a holding back of the stock for Mothers' day. The prices are again back to a high point. The rose supply is still a trifle larger than is necessary for requirements. This is true even of American Beauties; now and then some of the stock must be sacrificed in order to move it. The great bulk of it, however, yields a fair return when it is in first-class condition.

The supply of callas and Easter lilies continues large. The latter are selling better than a week ago. Some fine outdoor tulips are coming in. Only a little forced valley is being cut these days, but the supply of outdoor valley is large and includes some good offerings. Sweet peas are in fairly good supply. The good ones, particularly the home-grown ones, find a ready call. Snapdragons, too, sell nicely. Other offerings include stocks, alyssum, iris, miniature gladioli, etc. There is an adequate supply of green goods.

Various Notes.

After C. E. Critchell returned from Minneapolis last week he stated that the committees there had all convention affairs so well in hand that if the meeting were to open tomorrow they would be ready. Mr. Critchell's enthusiasm is so great that he declares the convention will be one of the best the organization has ever had.

Joseph Goldman, of Middletown, was a heavy buyer of choice stock last week for use at the Sorg funeral at that place.

George Klotter has been cutting some fine parrot tulips.

W. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., have been sending some extraordinarily fine Kaiserin roses to L. H. Kyrk.

E. G. Gillett says this season has been absolutely the best he has ever had in wirework. The demand has been especially strong for baskets and wreaths.

A. C. Heckman, Jr., and Alex. Ostendarp, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange, are enthusiastic over the excellent quality of a lot of eastern sphagnum they received last week.

Frank Farney, representing the M. Rice Co., and Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., were in the city recently.

Mrs. W. H. Guadinger, of Cynthiana, Ky., was in the city last week, buying bedding stock.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in fine outdoor tulips and German iris from Tom Windram.

The Hill-Heller Co. cleaned up a lot of about 1,200 rose plants at a special sale on Saturday, May 3.

A. Sunderbruch's Sons had the 50-year anniversary decoration at the Pogue stores.

John Evans, of Richmond, Ind., was in the city recently. C. H. H.

How the Irondequoit Growers Came to Build L & B Iron Frame Houses

AN INTERESTING BIT OF DEVELOPMENT HISTORY

THE other day several of our salesmen were lunching together with the Sales Manager. I came in late, but just in time to catch some most interesting facts about how the leading growers in Irondequoit jumped from our Pipe Frame to the 40-foot Iron Frame construction.

It seems that Del Titus first started buying our Pipe Frame houses a good many years ago.

J. H. West & Sons, who had five of the same construction, started the Iron Frame ball rolling when they jumped from Pipe Frame houses 28 feet wide to a 72-foot Iron Framer 125 feet long, divided into three compartments.

Fred Metcalfe and P. B. Pengally were the first to build the 40-foot Iron Framers.

The interesting thing about Mr. Pengally's order was that he had already signed up for a Pipe Frame house, but on visiting, with Mr. Metcalfe, the Burt Olney Canning Co.'s range at Albion, N. Y., he promptly changed his mind in favor of the Iron Frame.

A similar case was C. H. Metcalfe and his brother Fred. C. H. had ordered a Pipe Frame house, but when the materials for his brother's Iron Frame began to arrive he was so thoroughly convinced of its superiority that he promptly canceled the Pipe Frame order and contracted for an Iron Framer 40 x 133 feet.

And then there is Anderson & Merrill. They were entirely satisfied with their L & B Pipe Frame house and had made up their minds to order a duplicate; but, after seeing J. H. West & Sons' and several others, they flopped over to the Iron Frame construction.

The same day that Anderson & Merrill changed their minds, our friend C. W. Cole also "saw the great light" and signed up for one 40 x 141 feet.

After the lunch was over and we were walking back to the office, our Boston man said he felt confident that "in five years' time the market growers wouldn't think of building anything but the best Iron Frame construction money could buy. The ice in the Eastern section," he said, "was broken when Alexander Porter put up his big Iron Framer, 50 x 450 feet, for growing tomatoes."

We have just issued a supplement to our Iron Frame Catalogue, showing half a dozen or more splendid, big double-page illustrations of some of these houses.

Send for it. Get posted on what your brother grower is doing.

The Disastrous Storms and Cyclones of this Spring, which caused such heavy damage to the trade in almost all parts of the country, should no doubt teach greenhouse builders some lessons. While seemingly nothing can resist a cyclone when it strikes with full force, some styles of construction stood the heavy storms while others under the same conditions have collapsed. We recommend in our construction to use purlin posts set solid in concrete to withstand the pressure, and the purlins safely tied down to prevent the suction of the storm—and no loss has been reported to us on any of these houses with exception of one case where the storm picked up part of a shed from a distance and threw it on the houses, demolishing that part which was struck.

We further recommend the Dietsch short-roof construction, which has no purlin posts, but the corrugated-like surface which these houses present to the storm seems to offset the force of pressure and suction and no loss has been reported to us whatever.

At the same time please note that our construction, which has stood the test so well, is inexpensive.
